SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Sweet Peas.

A bed or bench of sweet peas sown at this time will produce a nice crop of flowers in spring when the winter blooming plants are nearly through flowering and the blooms beginning to grow small and before any outside can be had. The newer Spencers make splendid varieties to plant at this time, and while they will not bloom as early as the winter blooming varieties, yet will flower before the warm summer weather, and the beautifully formed flowers make a welcome change. Select a bench with plenty of head room, for these easily grow to a height of six or eight feet under favorable conditions. The seed can be sown six inches apart in rows, with about three feet between rows, and lightly covered. It is just as well to sow two or three seeds together and when they begin to grow thin out to one plant. The beds must be watered sparingly until the plants are large enough to twine on the supports, for they damp off easily even when five or six inches high if overwatered. As soon as the tendrils on the vines appear provide some support for them to twine upon and keep the plants growing erect throughout their culture or crooked stems and worthless flowers will be the result. A cool house is far better for these plants than one having a warm temperature. Aphis are often troublesome in growing sweet peas and a spray is far better with these plants than fumigation.

Chrysanthemum Stock.

This is the time to look over the chrysanthemum stock to see how the cuttings are breaking. There may be some varieties that are not throwing as many cuttings as they should or some that are not in good health and there are yet some growers that have stock plants for sale, so where from either cause it looks as if the supply might not be sufficient, new stock should be purchased at once. Where the stock plants are in good health but there are not enough to furnish the requisite number of cuttings, the early cuttings may be taken and rooted and these grown in flats until it is time to propagate the plants for blooming, and cuttings made from these. There are also some varieties of which good cuttings can be procured at this time, but after the first growths are removed, do not break satisfactorily. These should surely be taken now and grown on in flats, notable as one of this class is Miss Virginia Poehlmann, and some varieties, such as President Roosevelt, are short-jointed and slow in their growth, so early cuttings are preferred. It is a good time now to look the stock over and be sure of good plants and enough of them for another season.

Stocks.

The demand for flowers at Memorial day is in many cases for bunches or sprays to lay upon the graves of the departed relatives and friends, and as much show as can be made is often the object, therefore, the grower must have a quantity of what are called the cheaper flowers, and stocks are one of the best at this time, for they are large and prominent, make up well in bouquets or sprays, and are quickly and easily grown. The seed should be sown by February 1 to be sure to have them in flower by the end of May. The seed germinates quickly and as soon as large enough should be potted. Many grow them in flats but to have them early pot culture is better, for they do not receive such a severe shock when transplanted in the benches. The planting in the benches should be done in the month of March and the plants can be grown in two ways, to the single spike which will produce a much larger, handsome bloom, or to eight or ten lateral spikes. The former method allows of planting from three to four inches apart, while in the latter the plants should be set eight to nine inches each way. Growing the latter way, that is to eight or ten spikes, is the culture most often practiced, and in order to cause the plant to branch, as soon as the terminal flower forms it is rubbed out, and the laterals will grow at once. To have these laterals in bloom for Memorial day the terminal bud should show by the last of April, which will allow about four weeks for the growth of the laterals and the finishing of the bloom. Constant fumigation will be necessary to keep the plants clean of aphis, which very rapidly accumulate on the succulent growth unless kept in check.

Hydrangeas.

The plants of hydrangeas that are to be in bloom for Easter should be started at once, for it is much better to grow them along slowly than to wait and bring them in later and force them much harder. This will give the plants more natural conditions and they will finish with shorter-jointed growths, being not nearly so tall, and well furnished with large heavy foliage completely covering the stems. The plants started at this time should be first placed in a greenhouse having a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees and if the buds and stems look very dry, frequent syringings of the branches will quickly make the buds fill up. After the first leaves are fully formed the plants can be moved in a warmer house and they should come along nicely for Easter—a house with carnation temperature should bring them in bloom by that time, but if the buds are not well set early in March a still warmer temperature will be required. If grown in a warm temperature keep a sharp lookout for red spiders, which gather on the blooms and quickly ruin them.

Hybrid Roses.

Well grown plants of Hybrid Perpetual roses are always good property at Easter and they are very easily brought into bloom when the date of that festival is in April. Pot grown stock is surer of the best results, but dormant stock of many varieties will produce nice plants if properly handled. The plants should be cut back to two eyes on each growth and started in a cool house, one with a night temperature of 40 to 45 degrees being preferred, from the first to the twentieth of January. Frequent syringings will swell the wood and cause the breaks to open evenly. When the buds form the plants should be watered with liquid manure at least once a week. They will probably not have to be carried to a warmer house, but if it is found they are not going to be in bloom in time a little warmer temperature will hurry them along. There are a few varieties that make fine pot plants, those most generally known being Magna Charta, Mme. Gabriel Luizet and Frau Karl Druschki.

Sweet Pea Buds Blasting.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Can you advise the cause of blasting of sweet pea buds? The plants are kept on the end of a carnation house where the door opens upon them. I use cow manure for fertilizer and fumigate with tobacco stems. The plants are kept on the wet side of the house. The vines are vigorous and eight feet high at present.

G.

Pennsylvania.

The most likely cause for the blasting of the buds on sweet peas is too low a temperature, a night temperature of 48 to 50° being required after the plants are in bud. Before that period a night temperature of 45° is sufficient. Too much feeding, especially in dull weather, may also cause this trouble.

Knights of Columbus Emblem.

SEE SUPPLEMENT WITH THIS ISSUE.

The florist is frequently called on to copy in flowers the badges or emblems of various societies, generally for the funeral of a departed member. A number of these designs are quite intricate and difficult to carry out, as some of the figures and parts are quite small and very few flowers are suitable for the purpose.

The accompanying illustration shows an emblem that has not been any too well carried out. To be effective, the shield should have been a different color from the Maltese cross on which it rests. The outline of all such pieces should be as clearly defined as possible. Careful mossing is a great help, the moss being packed fairly firm, then carefully clipped and rounded with the shears. Chenille is a great help, as many parts such as the insignia in the center in this design, can be carried out in almost any color by wrapping with this pliable material. When nicely arranged such a design is of special interest, particularly to a member of the order. The value of this piece is enhanced by its base, a large plateau of green, used as a support for the easel on which it rests.

Standard Side Lines for the Retailer.

Go into any well appointed store in the center of any of our large cities and in nearly every instance you will see a good stock, full and plenty of everything in their lines. The modern drug store is an example of up-to-date storekeeping. In nearly all such establishments there has been added of late years what is called a gift stock; all kinds of stationery, bric-a-brac, cut glass and leather goods, and a host of other articles. All are displayed in a very attractive manner, the plan of the counters or display tables being the work of men skilled in the fitting up of modern stores. Special store decorators arrange the goods, which are not as a rule disturbed, those sold being delivered from the stock rooms, or immediately replenished from there.

ADDING TO THE REVENUES.

There is no reason why the up-to-date retail florist store should not add to its revenue in addition to that obtained from the sale of plants and flowers, by adding a full line of jardinieres, pedestals, window boxes and outdoor garden vases. It is not necessary, if room is limited, to carry a large stock; only enough samples to show the articles and the illustrated catalogue for the complete stock. Quite a number of florists and seedsmen handle cement and terra-cotta vases in this way and find the business very satisfactory, they being able to make quite large sales from these lists. These catalogues are priced for retail trade, with a good commission off for the dealer. Cut flower vases are also good stock, but they must be bought with care and taste in selection as to their utility and beauty. Cut glass vases are always in more or less demand. All kinds of flower holders, English, Japanese and imitations, and shallow bowls for the water are good stock.

BASKETS IN VARIETY.

A full line of baskets in all the newer shades of coloring are essential; nothing cheap or trashy, as such stock so soon becomes shoddy. Here again it is not quantity that is wanted, so much as variety and merit in each piece, and all must be kept up to a state of newness in appearance. Dusty, faded or damaged pieces must be put out of sight at the first symptoms of distress.

Wicker pot covers are useful articles, as there is always a demand for a covering for the plant that is sold. They are now seen in great variety of coloring, duotone and self colors, antique effects, gold and silver, and other shades that are good sellers.

FERNERIES.

Fern dishes are much used, but come to the florist mainly from jewelry shops, department stores or gift stocks in the drug stores. The public should be able to find these popular table pieces at their florist's in assortment. It is in his line and would be found profitable if carried in sufficient quantity.

DISPLAY.

The proper displaying of these accessories is very essential. Study the methods of the department and gift stores; ideas from men trained in the business of displaying goods in an attractive manner are worth imitating. Do not have more goods than can be well shown in the space at one's disposal, as each article should have a chance to be seen. All should be priced, as customers often wait on themselves, determining by the price to purchase or not, as the case may be. In these days of competition, when one man's bright wits is arrayed against another, one cannot sit down and wait for business to come. One must do things to attract it. A well stocked, attractive store in any line it is always a pleasure to visit, even if there is no thought of purchasing, even if nothing is wanted at the time, a favorable impression is made which induces a second visit and most likely a purchase.

PERSONALITY IN SALESPEOPLE.

Much of the successful handling of this stock depends on the salespeople. Every person who comes to select flowers is a possible customer for these accessories, calling attention to this or that recent introduction or the many selling points of any of the goods displayed will often make a sale, when otherwise the caller would have passed them by with but a glance.

Successful merchandising in flowers means that one must be everlastingly at it, or see that in all the departments competent people are always on the job. To be on edge all the time burns up the energy, but there is no other way to success. There is plenty of compensation in the satisfaction of work well done, the expressed commendations of the customers going a great way to lighten the burden.

Scale on Araucarias.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

There is some scale on my araucarias and I wish you would kindly give instructions as to how the plants should be treated to rid them of the scale.

Indiana. C. S.

Scale seldom troubles araucarias, the most common pests that attack these plants being thrips and red spider, both of which may be kept down by vigorous syringing. But the plant in question may have been near some scale-infested plant and thus been attacked by the insects. Dipping in solution of tobacco soap would be a practical method of treatment, repeating the dip at intervals of a week or ten days, until the pests are gone. While giving this treatment it is best to protect the plant from strong sunshine.

THE CARNATION.

Propagating.

The most careful attention should now be given to the work of propagating, an estimate of next season's plantings should be figured out, and every available cutting put into the sand to meet the requirements. There is not any better time for propagating than right now; cuttings put into the sand at this time root quickly and will be ready for potting before we get very many bright warm days. There is also ample time for the young plants to be worked up into sturdy, well established stock for planting out in the field. This latter point is worthy of much consideration. The young plants that have had time to get established with several shoots branching out are far ahead of late propagated stock, an advantage they will hold during the entire season.

Now a word as to the selection of the cuttings, a matter of the greatest importance in producing high grade flowers. There is not another plant that the growers of this country have anything to do with, where it can be said with greater truth that "like begets like," than is the case with carnations. Do not take the cuttings from plants that show signs of disease or weakness of any description, or that are producing flowers that are streaky and not true to type. It is remarkable what a variety will do year in and year out without showing any sign of deterioration when a careful selection of the cuttings is taken, and again a selection of the plants when they are brought into the houses from the field, and is one of the reasons why the careful growers seem to have their plants always in the same perfect condition.

As soon as the cuttings are rooted they should be taken from the sand and potted or boxed, whichever is the method followed, but personally I much prefer growing the young stock in pots. The soil for the first potting must not be very rich, a live fresh loam with a little sand added is the most suitable for them; in such a compost they will grow short and sturdy, and not become drawn and long-jointed, as they will when the soil is over-rich. After potting, the young plants take on renewed strength and require a light place with plenty of air on every favorable occasion, together with a cool temperature at all times. Careful watering is essential for the best development of the young plant; the soil should be kept moist but not wet enough to be soggy, nor on the other hand be allowed to become dust dry.

The plants on the benches are now at the height of their growth, and from now on will need some additional nourishment to encourage continued growth and keep the quality of the flowers up to the high standard required. We do not believe in feeding very much until the cuttings are all taken off, which brings us to the time of the year when the older plants can stand it and are greatly benefited by it both as regards growth and bloom. The roots of the plants have so matted the soil that they are pushing out through the surface, which means they are stretching out for more nourishment and the soil in the beds is becoming exhausted.

The application of manure to carnation plants at this season requires the greatest care, or the results will be just the opposite to what is aimed at. Extra heavy mulching will cause a soft growth, bringing with it weak stems and bursted calyxes, as well as flowers that will go to sleep quickly after being cut. We now have the different kinds of manure in the pulverized form so that it is not as big a job to mulch a bench of plants with manure in this shape as it is to use the manure in its rough state, and there is the advantage of being able to mulch lightly and repeat as often as the plants require it. Where the soil has become washed so that the roots show out on the surface a mulch of fresh soil should be put on to cover up these roots before putting on the manure. The condition of the soil in the beds should be the guide as to the right time for putting on the mulch so as to get the most benefit from it; if it is put on just before the soil gets to the dry state when it requires watering, then watered in, the plants will begin to feel the effect right away, but if the mulch is put on when the beds are wet, the roots of the plants are not as active and the growth becomes sluggish. Look well to the general routine of caring for the plants, such as watering, airing and keeping them clean of insects.

ROSE NOTES.

Grafting.

Whether the war will cause a delay in the shipment of the Manetti stocks from abroad it is hard to say, but from recent reports, the distributors on this side fully expect their regular consignments, and one can expect the stocks to arrive at any time now. To those that have not ordered their Manetti I should advise ordering at once and be sure to order at least 20 per cent more than is actually required as there will always be a loss to a certain extent in handling the stocks, in several ways; some of the stocks will have poor roots and if one gets 90 per cent in the strike of grafts, one is doing exceptionally well, especially the beginners.

Indoor rose grafting is comparatively a simple operation, but like many other things there are certain preparations that must be carefully looked after that tend to simplify the work from beginning to end. First, good fresh stocks should be procured, they should be potted up in a good rose compost of one part well rotted cow manure to three parts soil (good heavy fresh sod soil) and potted firmly into 2½ inch pots. The pots should be washed (if new pots are not to be used) as there is always a lot of fungus lurking around old pots that will quickly start to spread in a grafting case, and everything must be as cleanly handled as possible, pertaining to all the work of grafting.

The stocks after potting should be kept in a cool, shaded place, where the temperature will not go higher than 50°, or lower than 45°, and the tops should be sprayed every day, after first watering the plants thoroughly. Never let the soil become dry in the pots at any stage of the work. If the stocks are in good condition when received, they will be ready to work in about two weeks after potting. Remember, it isn't foliage you want to get, but the slightest root action and a plumping up of the top eyes usually indicate a start at the roots, if the temperature has been kept at the above figures.

In the meantime, while the stocks are coming along, the case to hold the grafts can be made ready. We won't go into too many details, any more than to state that the case should be a boxed-up affair, covered with sash, about a foot to 15 inches head room, made as air tight as possible with sufficient bottom heat to bring the temperature of the case up to 75° in the coldest weather. The case should be shaded by a north wall or partition, so that artificial shading will not have to be resorted to; if this isn't possible, the sash must be shaded by hanging thin cotton cloth above it overhead, as shading directly on the glass doesn't seem to work well. A layer of moss should be put on the bottom of the case covered with about an inch of finely screened ashes, and the ashes packed firmly. Stop all cracks with wet moss, where there is any possibility of hot air getting into the case, or cold air from above. Give the case on ashes a good soaking with hot water, having several thermometers in the case, and if the temperature reaches 80° and stays there, it will be safe, as one can regulate the temperature by cutting off the heat under the case. The tools required for grafting are two good knives; one kept for shaping the scions, and the other for cutting the Manetti (they must both be sharp), some raffia cut into 12-inch length, and split once, moistened, and tied in bunches to keep from getting scattered around. Also a good whetstone, a large rose jar to hold the wood, cleaned thoroughly and filled with fresh water at 60° temperature, a shallow dish or basin to hold the scions after they are made. A table or potting bench makes a handy place to work at.

Edward Sceery, Paterson, N. J.
President Paterson Park Board.

By all means use flowering wood. We prefer to remove the buds when they are just beginning to open, say three days before they are ready for cutting; just snap out the buds and the wood will be in fine shape to work in about four days after the buds are taken off. Care should be exercised in selecting the buds that have the greatest number of eyes to the stem, as some of the stems will contain poor eyes. Cut the wood off and place in the jar of fresh water. Then cut off each eye and place on clean paper; after the wood is all cut up place the eyes back into the jar and start to shape the scions. Be careful when cutting up the eyes to leave good foliage with each eye and not to bruise the wood above the eye, or cut too close to it; a slanting cut half an inch to five-eighths of an inch, diagonally across the scion, corresponding with a similar cut on the Manetti stock one inch from the pot, is the best all-around splice to use, especially if one grafts for the trade as they make the firmest points and there is less broken in shipment. At the same time by cutting the Manetti almost square across (one inch from the pot), then cutting a little slice out of one side to match the diagonally cut scion, which places the scion to one side of the stock, this will be found a very satisfactory method also. Tie firmly with the raffia, but not tight enough to cut the bark on scion; let the last wind of the raffia go over the fore finger of the hand holding the pot and scion, then withdraw the finger. This leaves a loop to run the end of the raffia through; draw the end through tightly and the tie is accomplished. One can soon learn to do this rapidly. Place the grafts into case so the foliage won't overlap, spray with bulb sprinkler and close the case quickly; lose as little time as possible when putting grafts into case so as to keep the temperature right. If the case is right in every way it will not require any attention for the first 10 days, unless the foliage dries off, then open just long enough to spray this foliage. Fungus will play havoc if it once gets in. It will be necessary to remove the plants affected, to avoid spreading. Keep the case at a temperature of 75° day and night and do not air until the callous at the joint begins to ripen, then air gradually, starting with a crack the thickness of a label and increasing the amount a little each day until they can stand several inches. This will require a week or ten days perhaps. At the least sign of the foliage wilting, when starting to air the case, spray lightly and close the case at once and don't be in a hurry to harden them off, as the gradual airing and ripening of the grafts is the most important part of the whole thing, so if you can not give the case constant attention, your success will be rather poor. Yet with the usual, careful rose grower the grafting will be a pleasure and easily done.

E.

Edward Sceery.

On January 5 Edward Sceery, the well-known florist of Paterson, N. J., was for the fifth time elected president of the park board. In re-appointing Mr. Sceery, the mayor said to the members of the board: "As you are probably aware, one of your oldest members in point of service has been returned. In reappointing Edward Sceery I consider his peculiar fitness for the duties of his office and his untiring work in behalf of the park system of the city of Paterson." Mr. Sceery is now beginning his seventeenth year of service to the city. When Commissioner Fletcher nominated Mr. Sceery for president, his choice was unanimous. Andrew T. Fletcher was elected vice-president. In reply to the mayor and his colleagues, President Sceery said in part: "This is my fifth term as president of this board, and it is a proud moment to be returned and honored by you, my colleagues."

Edward Sceery has long been the leading retail florist of Paterson, with greenhouses at Passiac. He is yet a comparatively young man. He has been identified with the city of Paterson since boyhood, having learned the florist business there. He is a good business man and is likewise possessed of fine social qualifications.

Fertilizer Resources of the United States.

In discussing the fertilizer resources of the United States, the bureau of soils, United States department of agriculture, in its annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1914, says in part:

While the extraction of potash from such natural silicates as the feldspars is quite feasible physically, it is not practicable economically, unless some other salable product is produced in the same operation. An investigation into the use of feldspar in the fixation of atmospheric nitrogen showed promise of a practical method of producing ammonia simultaneously with potash from feldspar. The most promising American source of potash, however, is the annual crop of giant kelps on the Pacific coast. Working maps have now been made of nearly all the commercially available kelp beds from the Cedros Islands to the Shumagins, off the Alaskan coast. The area of these beds aggregate nearly 400 square miles, capable of yielding annually either as dried kelp or as pure potassium chloride. over six times the present consumption of soluble potash salts in the United States, or something more than the world's present total production. The development of a great American industry based on the conservation and utilization of this important national resource, of fundamental importance to the national agricultural interests, seems now to be a matter of time only.

If all the coal that is now coked in the United States were treated in modern by-product ovens and the ammonia thereby saved, the nitrogen tonnage would be about that now consumed in the fertilizer trade of the country. While the transition from the old "beehive" to the modern furnace method is steadily progressing, the greater dependence for nitrogen carriers yet remains in cottonseed meal, slaughterhouse by-products, fish scrap and some other less important materials. It would be premature to announce the results of the department's investigations as yet, but the types of material which are of commercial promise for American conditions have been pretty well worked out and substantial progress has been made in the investigation of the fundamental technical factors which must control the production of these particular types. At the same time investigation is being made of other possible sources of nitrogen. Following up previous investigation of the possibilities of the fish-scrap industry of the Atlantic coast, already developed, a study has been made of the possibilities on the Pacific coast, including Alaska. The waste fish and fish refuse approximate annually 120,000 tons and can be made to yield about 12,000 tons of scrap (fertilizer) and 3,000,000 gallons of oil, worth, perhaps, $1,800,000.

Although improvements are being made, the wastage of phosphate rock at the mines is still disconcertingly large. In Florida, where the most actively worked fields are situated, investigations of the Bureau of Soils have shown that practically two pounds of phosphorus goes to waste for every pound produced in merchantable rock. Studies are now being made looking to the recovery or prevention of some of this wastage of mechanical methods, while several chemical methods have been carefully investigated. One of the latter is a modification of the well-known sulphuric acid extraction, but by "steps." Extraction by electrolysis has been shown to be economically impracticable, but the use of the electric current to produce temperatures necessary for volatilization methods appears very promising, and at least two such methods are now being subjected to factory trials by outside commercial organizations.

Color Changes in Yellow Flowers.

Plants with pure yellow flowers rarely produce albinos, though they may give rise to blossoms much paler than ordinary. These are often spoken of as primrose-colored forms. In composites with yellow or orange-yellow rays, a number of these paler forms have been distinguished and named. It would appear from the studies of Prof. T. D. A. Cockerell that the paler color may be due to the dropping out of a "determiner" whose presence accounts for the deeper color in other flowers. Breeding experiments have shown that the primrose color is "recessive" to orange yellow, as the evolutionists say, and breeds out according to Mendelian principles. Sections of some of the flowers show that the difference in color is largely due to a difference in the amount of pigment in the cells, though the pigment itself may be paler in the aberrant forms. The phenomena of these colors are doubtless akin to the condition in normally red flowers or fruits which on occasion produce yellow variations.—American Botanist.

The Grower of Flowers.

Obviously the man who raises flowers is a better man than one who raises Cain, though he may be no better than one who raises cane. But, it seems to us, the man who raises flowers should be the happy man; a happier man than many a one who is in engaged in other vocations. It should contribute to ones' happiness to daily potter among plants and growing things; to pot and plant, and graft—in the only way that grafting is reputable—and to see his work continually glorified in endless reproductions. He can say, with truth: "Yes, Nature is the author, but I am Nature's servant and assistant; and, behold, what miracles we have together wrought!"

The man who raises flowers should be a good as well as a happy man; for the happy man cannot be other than good. He lives with innocence and beauty. He saturates his soul with such colorings as no artist can place upon his palette; and he lives in an atmosphere of fragrance as sweet as the incense which rises before holy altars; more sweet, indeed, for it is fragrance fresh from the hands of God.

This man, who spends his days urging the soil to join with the sun and the breeze in the creation of beauty, must rejoice in the pure chastity of the lily and thrill, at times, in sympathy with the passion of the rose. He is so closely in touch with the microscopic tides of life, with the ardor of Nature's chemistry, that he cannot escape their influence if he would; and he would not if he could. If he be something of a poet, he may at times, in imagination at least, hear the tiny ripplings of the vital streams as they go singing along the mysterious avenues of leaf and stalk and bough.

It is a wonderful vocation, this flower culturing. There must be vastly more to it than the money one gets out of it. If ever there was a labor that one could easily love, and ought to love, it must be this labor which enables a man to conjure forth buds and blossoms of beauty.

And the flowers—they go to cheer the sick; they come to our desks and tables to cheer us when we are well; we weave them into coronals for our daughters when they go to their nuptials; and we lay them reverently on the cold bosoms of our dead.

The man who raises flowers thinks of all these things, feels these things; for he is human, and being the guardian of the secrets of loveliness and innocence, a loveliness and innocence in the creation of which he has had a part, in thought he must follow them upon their various missions into the world.

Flowers, birds and children, this old world could not do without them; without them it would not be a fit place in which to live; and without them, we think, there could be no proper or desirable heaven for souls which once inhabited mortal bodies.

Every flower is a voiceless prayer, just as the laugh of a child and the song of a bird represent prayer expressed in tones of harmony.

Yes, we think the man who raises flowers ought to be a happy, a very happy, man.—W. G. Matthews in Dayton Herald.

Washington.

With the continuous cloudy and rainy weather stock has taken a big jump. Carnations were scarce, as were also roses, and the prices advanced rapidly. Carnations brought from $3 to $4, while roses sold at from $6 to $15 in all varieties. Sweet peas are not overly plentiful, especially the Spencer type. Gardenias last week went "a-begging," selling as low as $6 per hundred for fair flowers, with good stems. Orchids sold as low as $18 per hundred, with nobody to take care of the surplus stock, as funeral work was not overly plentiful.

NOTES.

At the meeting of the Washington chamber of commerce, January 12, Representative Thos. N. Sisson, of Mississippi, presented Wm. F. Gude with a gavel made from mahogany and bronze from the old capitol door, burned by the British. The handle of the gavel is of cedar from the home of Thomas Jefferson. Representative Sisson claims that the door from which the gavel was made was found in the crypt of the capitol in 1898.

Geo. H. Cooke has been very busy the last week with decorations. Noteworthy were the decoration for Representative and Mrs. Peter Gerry at the country club. The walls and ceiling were covered with southern smilax, while large banks of palms and ferns were displayed to good advantage throughout the ball room. The table decorations consisted of pink roses, pink snapdragon, pink carnations, begonias and rubrum lilies.

Z. D. Blackistone was elected chairman of the florists' section of the merchants' association at a meeting held last night. G. C. D.

TRADE GENERALLY GOOD.

There has been a slight increase in the demand for cut flowers over last week, and with a corresponding lessening in the supply, the market keeps pretty well cleaned up. A few short-stemmed La Lorraine tulips arrive, but are too short for anything but funeral work. A few daffodils also arrive, but not enough to make them a factor. Freesia Purity is in good supply, with a good demand. Callas and Easter lilies are not in demand at present, and good orchids are to be had now at reasonable prices. Valley and violets are in fine shape and supply equal to call. Carnations are in better demand and some colors are not in sufficient supply to meet the demand, particularly white. Aaron Ward, Sunburst and Richmond roses are quite scarce, and orders on these are taken conditionally only. Killarney roses are off crop now and early orders are advisable. Sweet peas in light pink and lavender are quite plentiful, but white and dark pink are scarce. Calendula meets with a fair call. Asparagus plumosus has been very hard to get lately, and such as does arrive is short and dark in color. Boxwood has been used quite freely, and stock is exceptionally good. Adiantum is a little more plentiful. Paper White narcissi remain plentiful, with little demand.

NOTES.

A very interesting talk on "Advertising" was given by Mr. Oswald, and a blackboard lecture by H. P. Knoble were features of the last meeting. About 50 florists sat down to a banquet at the Hollenden, Monday evening, January 11. Everybody reported a fine time and feed, after which they adjourned to the meeting place in club room "B." There will be something of interest next meeting night, so don't fail to come.

The regular meeting nights of the Cleveland Florists' Club have been changed from the second to the first Monday of each month hereafter. Members who were not present last week will please take notice.

Visitors: Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., en route to the Pacific coast; C. M. Witsch, sales manager of the Johnston Tinfoil & Metal Co., St. Louis, Mo., en route to New York.

The automobile show January 16-23 at the Wigmore coliseum called for large quantities of decorative green, such as laurel and southern smilax, also flowering plants. C. F. B.

TRADE CONDITIONS IN DECLINE.

Trade conditions at present are not so good, a big crop of nearly all the items on the list, with a limited demand, has created the inevitable glut and consequent lower prices. Roses alone are somewhat better in quality than they have been recently and a threatened shortage is reported in the near future. Violets are fine, but not selling well, and the advent of the fine sweet peas on the market aggravates the situation to the disadvantage of the product of Rhinebeck, N. Y., where all the violets for market come from.

CLUB MEETINGS.

The club meeting Monday evening, January 18, was well attended and an interesting program gave much satisfaction to those who faced the snowstorm to be present. Sweet peas was the subject assigned for the meeting and a splendid exhibition of blooms was staged; these were grown by A. Van Beversluys, Mt. Clemens, Mich., and A. J. Stahelin, Redford, Mich. Some of the varieties were Beauty, White Orchid, Venus and Mrs. Manda. Those grown by Mr. Stahelin were exceptionally well grown and elicited much praise, while the other grower's product was fully up to the usual standard as seen locally. Both exhibitors received a hearty vote of thanks. In the discussion that followed a possible glut with consequent low prices in these flowers was hinted at and the problem of a compensating price for such fine flowers was taken up and discussed most freely; the growers present, however, seemed disposed to bow to the inevitable and low prices that may prevail will not be criticized. W. E. Cook and Chas. Schwake, N. Y., and Geo. Hampton and S. S. Skidelsky, Philadelphia, Pa., were present and freely participated in the discussion of the various subjects as presented. S. S. Skidelsky being asked to give his views upon the business conditions of the country as observed in his travels, said: "I believe we are on the way to a most prosperous era; in the extreme east some dissatisfaction is felt in the trade, but as I go westward increasingly favorable reports are the rule and no apprehension of slow trade tha coming season is felt." The next meeting of the club, February 1, will be devoted to carnations, including an exhibit of new varieties; a report, too, of the American Carnation Society's meeting and exhibition at Buffalo will be expected from those of our members who may attend that convention, but so far only Philip Breitmeyer and M. Bloy have signified their intention to go.

NOTES.

The uptown store of John Breitmeyer's Sons is rapidly approaching completion. This is in the new Whitney building, near the Grand Circus park, and will be complete in all its appointments.

B. Schroeder and G. H. Taepke are on the sick list. Some improvement is reported in their condition and hopes for their early and permanent recovery are entertained by their many friends. J. F. S.

STOCK MOVES WELL.

The past week the market has had a good demand for carnations and roses, the latter being sold out daily at fair prices. Stock in general is moving well. Violets have taken a considerable drop and are selling at low figures. There were plenty of lily of the valley and sweet peas to fill all orders, and sweet peas are showing a great improvement both in quantity and quality, due to the bright weather prevailing. Paper Whites are and have been a glut on the market. Plenty of stevia, smilax and Sprengeri are seen. There seems to be a scarcity of Asparagus plumosus at the present time.

NOTES.

The Cudahy Floral Co. is consigning some fine roses to Gust Rusch & Co., which find ready sale. This firm reports business good.

Currie Bros. Co. are practically settled in their new quarters on East Water street, and are ready for their spring seed trade.

The Kellner Florist Co. had the decorations at the auto show and they were very pretty.

Miss Grace Pilger, of A. Currie & Co., visited in Beaver Dam for a few days.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. is cutting some fine Mrs. Chas. Russell roses.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. reports trade as good, with roses in good demand.

W. M. Maas & Co. contemplate buying another delivery car.

James Chacona made a business trip to Chicago this week. G. R.

MARKET SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Market conditions are much better than at any time since the Christmas holidays. The supply of stock is not as heavy as it was, while the demand is steadier and more active than for the past two or three weeks. . The market cleans up very nicely each day and better prices than before have been the result. The rose receipts have fallen off greatly in quantity, and at times it seems almost as though there will be hardly enough to go around and satisfy everyone's wants in this line. American Beauties are not selling quite as well as the other varieties in roses, but still they are making a much better record in the way of sales than they did since New Years. Carnations, too, are coming in greatly decreased quantities, but they have brought about a firmness in the market for this flower that we have not had for quite some time. Lilies are plentiful and are selling well. The same is true of lily of the valley. The fancy single violets sell pretty well, but doubles are moving rather slowly and have only a fair sale. Narcissi are meeting with a better demand than they have had for some time. Other offerings include orchids, Roman hyacinths and freesias.

NOTES.

Harry Bayersdorfer of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., stopped in this city for the first time in many years. Other visitors were: "Sprinkleproof" Samuel Seligman of Werthheimer Bros., New York; V. H. Morgan, of Lord & Burnham Co., New York; H. F. Winter, of Charleston, W. Va.

C. E. Critchell suffered a $500 loss last week when a water pipe in the floor above his place burst and damaged a part of his stock of supplies.

Nassau County Hort. Society.

The January meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held Wednesday, January 13, at Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, N. Y., President Ernest Westlake presiding. Final arrangements for the annual dinner of the society were discussed. It will be held at the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, Friday evening, January 29. Three new members were elected, William Preston and W. H. Reynolds of Locust Valley, George Ford of Glen Cove.

The judges of the monthly exhibit were James Duthie, Samuel J. Trepess and James Halloway. Their awards for first prizes went to Frank Honeyman for three poinsettias and to Harry Jones for three heads of celery. For an exhibition plant of Primula malacoides (double) a certificate of merit was awarded to Angus McGregor, and a cultural certificate was awarded to A. Fournier for display of chicory.

The secretary was instructed to write a letter of condolence to Mrs. McTaggart on the death of her son. It was moved to ascertain the views of other local societies concerning the transfer of members. The exhibits for next meeting will be 12 sprays freesias, one Primula malacoides in pot, and one stock in pot. An offer of a silver cup for the fall show was received from Mrs. W. D. Guthrie.

WEATHER FAVORABLE.

We are having spring-like weather, with buds swelling and the forsythias in bloom after an extraordinarily cold December, the coldest December since 1874, so the local forecaster reports. The florists during the Christmas holidays averaged about the same as usual for the season; you can only take care of so much business. Plants sold well and some of the trade sold out while others did not. Cut flowers were listed too high, and country orders were not particularly numerous for that reason. Of course we rely on the Chicago market for carnations. After the local price lists had been mailed the florists found that several thousand more carnations could have been sold at sensible prices. In an experience of 20 years in flowers in the local market this has happened 19 years out of the 20. Last year local florists paid $10 and $12 per hundred for red carnations. This year prices were about half. Roses were in ample supply from local growers, but were priced too high, influenced by advance quotations from Chicago. Since January 1 several dinners and receptions have called for flowers, and the usual amount of funeral work keep the stores from absolutely "drying up."

The seed and plant catalogues issued locally are bringing in results from the early buyers. Some good rose plant orders are noticed coming in, showing that the country is not broke and will buy its usual quota.

NOTES

One of the local flower shops recently brought suit in a magistrate's court against a prominent Chicago wholesale cut flower firm for damages on account of a defective ice box. The magistrate gave judgment against the wholesaler for $499.99. Immediately a garnishment was isued against a prominent florist and grower for the above amount, which speedily brought a representative of the wholesale house to this city, but the garnishment, it is said, still holds. The utility of the ice box as a preserver of carnations, so far as the writer's experience is concerned, is governed by the character of the stock. If the flowers are highly fed and grown under high pressure and travel say from Chicago to this city they will not ship, keep or be salable when they arrive at their destination.

Alfred Houseman, a distressed Belgian florist, arrived from Kansas City, Mo., and found employment.

Paul M. Palez, of Little Rock, Ark., was here for a short visit this week.

OERITAS.

Knoxville Florists' Society.

The Knoxville Florists' Society held its mid-winter banquet at Hotel Imperial, Tuesday evening, January 12. This being the monthly meeting, all business was suspended and everyone joined in having a good time. A delightful seven course dinner was served, after which, with A. H. Dailey acting as toastmaster, a number of instructive as well as amusing talks were heard. Dr. Sam Boyd, an honorary member of the society, who returned thanks, and was afterwards asked to make a talk, required the assistance of two waiters to gain his feet. The table was beautifully decorated with roses and carnations of the latest varieties, artistically arranged in vases. The society is very grateful to E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., for his goodly donation on this occasion. He sent a box of the latest roses, namely Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia, and several varieties of the latest carnations, which were used in decorating, and commended very highly by everyone present. Gunnar Teilmann, of Johnson City, Tenn., sent a nice vase of his new seedling Carnation Lady Grace, which were used in the decoration, and for which the society wishes to extend its hearty thanks. Dr. Sam, C. L. Baum's new white seedling carnation, was also used in the decoration and worn by everyone present.

Although the banquet was a success, and thoroughly enjoyed by everyone, there was one thought of disappointment and sorrow, in that Mr. and Mrs. Rynos' chairs were vacant. On account of the unexpected death of Mr. Ryno's mother it was impossible for them to be present; it was thought to postpone the banquet on this account, but upon conferring with Mr. Ryno he insisted that it proceed. Upon motion the secretary was instructed to write the bereaved members a letter extending the heartfelt sympathy and best wishes of the society.

Michigan Agricultural College.

Plans are now well under way for the seventh annual horticultural show to be given by the students of Michigan Agricultural College at Lansing. This show will be held January 28-29 and will contain in addition to the exhibits of fruits raised on the college farm a large number of samples of fruits raised by recent graduates of the schools which will be sent in for the occasion.

Montgomery County Horticultural Society

The monthly meeting of the Montgomery County Horticultural Society held January 6 at Memorial hall, Dayton, Ohio, was featured by an address on topics of general interest to horticulturists by County Agricultural Agent E. A. Brenneman. Reports of committees were made by those serving during the past year. The new committees named by President Fromm will take up the work this month. The meeting closed with an informal talk by President Fromm, outlining in a brief way the plans he has in mind for the good of the organization during the coming 12 months.

Oshkosh, Wis. Horticultural Society.

The Oshkosh Horticultural Society held its annual meeting at the Chamber of Commerce, January 6, and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: William Nelson, town of Omro, president; James Roe, Oshkosh, vice-president; Peter Fisher, town of Omro, secretary; C. Phillipson, Oshkosh, treasurer.

The matter of the annual distribution of seeds to children for prize garden competition was discussed and it was decided to follow the same plan as last year, giving the seeds to the children free of charge and awarding cash prizes at the county fair next fall for the best results obtained by the youthful horticulturists. The society also took up the project of children's gardens in various districts of the city, and it was decided to present the plan to the city officials for co-operation. The idea is to secure the use of vacant lots for gardens to be planted and cared for by children.

OBITUARY.

Michael Sweeney.

Michael Sweeney, for 42 years a florist of Providence, R. I., and a former member of the city council, died at his home, Norwood avenue and Broad street, Edgewood, January 17, aged 71 years. He was born in Leitrim, Ireland, and came to this country at an early age. He settled in Providence, and, in 1873, established a greenhouse at Broad and Pine streets. Since that time he had remained in that location.

Always of a retiring disposition, Mr. Sweeney spent the greater part of his time at home, when not at his place of business. In 1888, however, he yielded to the persuasions of his friends, and was elected to the city council from the sixth ward, a position he held for three years, retiring in 1891, at his own request. He was a member of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, being president for two years.

He married Miss Mary Amelia Powers and eight children were born. Of these four daughters survive, Mrs. William T. Murphy, Misses Katherine P., Mary I. and Nannie M. Sweeney. He also leaves two grandchildren, Roberta Sweeney Grimes and Russell Sweeney Murphy.

SLEEPY CARNATIONS, according to one of our well informed correspondents, are caused by over-feeding and high-pressure culture generally, and will not keep or ship satisfactorily.

ELMER D. SMITH calls attention to two errors in the Review of the Work of the Chrysanthemum Society of America, printed in the issue of THE AMERICAN FLORIST of January 16, page 1347, namely where Niza is recorded as shown November 17, and Rodi, November 31. The month in both cases should have been October.

San Francisco Convention Transportation.

Various trade organizations, local and national, are now considering the question of transportation to the annual conventions, several of which are to be held this year at San Francisco, affording an opportunity to visit the Panama-Pacific expositions, of that city and San Diego. There are many, of course, who can make this a grand tour, covering many points of trade or scenic interest, but for the benefit of the many, time and expense involved in the trip must be closely considered. Doubtless prolonged tours will be arranged by many outside agencies and members of the trade can join these where it may be advantageous to do so. It would, therefore, seem desirable that the trade transportation committees plan their convention trips rather on a business basis, arranging stop-overs only at important points along the main line of travel.

Chicago to Buffalo.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY MEETING.

The transportation committee of the Chicago Florists' Club has selected the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern Railroad for the trip to Buffalo, N. Y., on the occasion of the annual convention and exhibition of the American Carnation Society, to be held at the Iroquois hotel, January 27-28, taking the Lake Shore Ltd., leaving the LaSalle street station, Van Buren street, January 26, at 5:30 p. m., due in Buffalo the morning of January 27 at 6:45 a. m., central time, 7:45 a. m., eastern time. The regular one-way individual rate is $13.10. There is a party rate for 10 or more people traveling together on the same ticket of $10.50. Pullman rates are as follows: Lowers, $3; uppers, $2.40; drawing rooms, $11.

For reservations on this train address or call up G. K. Thompson, 100 South Clark street, Chicago. Telephone Randolph 5300.

BUFFALO CONVENTION NEXT WEEK.

The American Carnation Society will hold its twenty-fourth annual convention and exhibition in Buffalo, N. Y., January 27-28, 1915. Headquarters will be at Hotel Iroquois, where the exhibition and meetings will be held. Everything, including the banquet, will be held in this building and the members will find it unnecessary to leave the building during the entire convention. The exhibition hall and other accommodations compare favorably with any that have ever been placed at our disposal, so that with the accessibility of Buffalo from all directions, this should be a banner convention. Make up your mind early and reserve your hotel accommodations in advance, to save annoyance in case of crowding. A banquet will be served Thursday evening, January 28. Each member will pay for his plate, as was done with very satisfactory results last year. Register as soon as you arrive at the exhibition hall and secure your banquet ticket.

The exhibition will be reserved for the members until 8 p. m. Wednesday and again until 2 p. m. Thursday, to enable them to thoroughly inspect the exhibits. The public will be admitted on Wednesday evening and again on Thursday afternoon and evening. No admission will be charged the public at the door. All members are requested to attend the business sessions and to lend their assistance in making them interesting. The first session will be called to order at 8 p. m. Wednesday. Papers are being prepared on live subjects and opportunity will be afforded the members to discuss them fully. Reports will be submitted by the officers and new officers will be elected. If you have perplexing problems, the most expert growers in the country will be on hand to help you solve them. Submit your questions to the secretary in writing, before the convention if possible.

American Rose Society.

A meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society was held at the office of Traendly & Schenck in New York, Monday, January 11. Those present were Wallace R. Pierson, president; Robert Pyle, S. S. Pennock, Louis J. Reuter, Harry O. May and Benjamin Hammond. The decision to hold the annual exhibition and meeting for 1915 with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural hall, Boston, March 18-21, inclusive, was carried.

The committee on schedules consists of L. J. Reuter, Thomas Roland and Alex. Montgomery, who reported having received special contributions to the prize fund of $25 each from the following: The Montgomery Rose Co., Inc., Hadley, Mass.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; Budlong Rose Company, Boston, Mass.; Thomas N. Cook, and S. J. Reuter & Son, Inc., Westerly, R. I. The full schedule will be issued within a few days. The pot roses will be staged on the first day, March 18, and the classes for cut roses will be staged March 19. The appointment of a manager for the rose show was left with the schedule committee.

The annual meeting of the society will be held in Horticultural hall, Friday, March 19, at 3 p. m. The matter of judges for the exhibition was provided for, there being two sets. Robert Simpson was appointed a committee of one to confer with the New York Botanical Garden committee relative to a June show at that place. A communication was received from Philadelphia relative to an exhibition by the American Rose Society in the spring of 1916, and a sum of a substantial amount was offered for a prize list. This was gone over carefully and held subject to approval at the annual meeting in March next.

Our Supplements.

Subscribers should see that they get copies of the fine supplementary illustrations showing high-grade design and decorative work. These fine supplements should be carefully preserved, as they mean much to the retail florists in dealing with their customers, illustrating as they do the various kinds of work that the every-day florist is called upon to perform.

The papers in which the supplements appear should be likewise preserved, as they contain much valuable data with regard to these special illustrations. Subscribers should see that they get every issue, as otherwise they may miss some of the high-grade work.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK PROMISING.

Judging from interviews with many of this city's prominent florists, both retailers and growers, 1914 was not what would be called a disastrous year. The trade is united in its verdict that taken as a whole the year was quite satisfactory and about equal to 1913, which was in every respect a great year. A wonderful number of plants were sold last year, especially azaleas. Florists here are not a bit discouraged about the prospects for the coming year and look forward to a good business. There has been an exceedingly satisfactory demand for all kinds of stock during the past two weeks. Ultra fashionable weddings, which demanded especially elaborate church floral decorations, have helped materially, together with an unusual number of funerals. The weather has been a mixture of dark dreary days and clear, sunshiny weather, with the result that stock is good and bad. Roses, particularly the pink variety, have been rather scarce and the demand has been lively. The quality has been poor, due in a great measure to the cloudy weather. Carnations are fairly good and of good supply. A great quantity of narcissi, while flooding the market, have come in extremely handy for funeral work. Violets and sweet peas are not any too plentiful. Orchids have enjoyed a better sale of late than usual.

CLUB MEETING.

It was too bad that a raging snow storm prevented many local florists from attending the meeting of the florists' club held at Krueger Bros.' in East Toledo, because they missed an exceedingly interesting and instructive talk by C. M. Cook, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., New York, whose topic was "Costs and Profits; How to Figure Them." He demonstrated to the satisfaction of those present that he was well versed in his subject, and gave some illuminating pointers on the office end of the business. He maintained the right way to figure profits is on the selling price, because all expenses—rent, heat, light and advertising—must come out of the dollar taken in. Hence before the dollar is taken in there is nothing with which to pay expenses. Costs, he argued, do not merely include the price of the plant or article bought, but there must be added to this the cost of selling the article, advertising, and each sale must bear its pro rata part of the total expense of doing business. The vital point in doing business, he argued, is not how much business is done, but how much business is done at a correct profit. This subject is Mr. Cook's hobby, and he certainly opened the eyes of a number of local florists.

NOTES.

M. Magee, of the Scottwood Greenhouse, had several very elaborate wedding decorations during the past few weeks, which have kept him very busy. At one wedding the bride received a check of $100,000 from her father and the groom $16,000, so you can judge that the floral decorations for the formal wedding at the church were by no means on an inexpensive scale.

Schramm Bros. report that last year's business made a fair gain, with holiday business about 20 per cent better than last year, which is going some. A beautiful folder sent out before the holidays in large numbers brought good returns. They secured the order to furnish all the decorative material for the automobile show, which will be held the early part of February.

Metz & Bateman, Madison avenue retailers, are very much pleased with the way business has been coming of late. There are no dull times at this progressive flower shop. Mr. Metz said that they have simply been swamped during the last month or so, especially during the holidays.

S. S. Skidelsky, of Philadelphia, Pa., was in town last week, brimming over with enthusiasm about the florists' trade and its future. He is exceedingly optimistic and expects the present year to be a good one after things readjust themselves a little more. K.

SUPPLY SHORTENS BUT TRADE DULL.

The flower supply in general was less than during the previous week, both in carnations and roses, but the demand was also poor and trade was dull. The bright weather has increased the supply in sweet peas as well as violets, the shorter stem grades selling best in these. Harrisii lilies are plentiful. American Beauty roses seem to be off crop. Plumosus in bunches is scarce.

NOTES.

The local florists' club met January 14. The American Carnation Society was invited to hold its 1916 meeting in St. Louis. The dance committee reported everything ready for a large party January 27. Julius Edmann was elected a member. The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., displayed a vase of the new rose Hoosier Beauty and Fred Ammann also displayed his new rose Ophelia. These received honorable mention.

Dave Geddis, of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, had charge of the decorations at the cathedral and at home at the Cahill wedding. Several thousand Killarney roses, orchids and lily of the valley were used.

Harry Bayersdorfer, of Philadelphia, Pa., attended the wedding of Miss Minnie Bertig and Lee Pollock. Grimm & Gorley had the decorations at the Planters' hotel, where the ceremony was performed.

Leopold Von Graffen, chauffeur of the Windler Wholesale Floral Co., was married in Murhpsyboro, Ill., to a young lady from Jonesboro, Ill. Congratulations are in order.

Will Sanders, buyer for the Grand avenue, north end store, is a daily visitor at the market. Miss Betty is buyer for the down-town shop.

Ed. Gullett, of Lincoln, Ill., was here January 16, having his eyes treated. He is shipping some good carnations to H. G. Berning.

A special meeting has been called by the Florists' and Nurserymen's Union for January 21.

F. H. Weber had a fine display of plants and fine stock in cut flowers the past week.

The Koenig Floral Co. has a fine display of palms and plants in their windows.

Arthur F. Waldmann reports trade good in both plants and cut flowers.

F. C. Weber's window display is artistic and attracts much attention.

Cizkowski, the Cass avenue florist, has a pretty window display.

Mrs. Pelletier reports good trade in funeral work. W. F.

POINSETTIAS

Good strong two year old plants $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000, or will exchange for 2½-inch Whitmani Ferns.

F. F. CRUMP, Florist, Colorado Springs Col.

Oklahoma City.

MARKET IS VERY INACTIVE.

There seems to be a wave of economy over spreading this city and vicinity, and the flower business is a decided sufferer therefrom. There is absolutely nothing doing on the social side of the flower trade, funeral orders are not plentiful by any means, consequently, saying that trade is quiet does not begin to explain the real condition of affairs. January 11 our newly elected governor was sworn into office; at the inaugural ball, which took place that evening, the sum of $20 was expended in decorating the auditorium for that event. Four years ago, when the last inaugural ball was held, and in the same auditorium, the committee in charge made a contract for the decorations for the sum of $250. The same spirit of economy seemed to pervade among the flower purchasers for the ball. Corsage bouquets were conspicuous by their miniature proportions; a very few flowers were made to go a long way for wearing purposes, all of which was bad for our business. Of course, the war is blamed for our dull times, but, considering the distance between here and the seat of war, it is but fair to assume that the cause is more imaginary than real, and no doubt will soon pass away.

NOTES.

Clyde Batten returned from his vacation in St. Paul, Minn., January 16. It seems the vacation was had for a double purpose for he brought back with him a wife. His marriage took place January 6 in St. Paul. Everybody in the trade gives him good wishes. He is one of our rising young florists and was recently elected secretary of the Oklahoma State Florists' Society.

Burglars entered the garage of Furrow & Company one night this week, took the tires, press-tank, lights and every other movable thing from their delivery automobile, and got away with the plunder. Not a trace so far has been discovered as to who did the job.

TRADE SHOWS DECREASE.

There has been quite a falling off in the volume of business during the past week, although funeral work has been fairly good. A large number of pieces were sent to the Gammell funeral. There were several large orders, among them a casket cover of lily of the valley, roses and cattleyas. T. O'Connor had the majority of this work.

The Rhode Island Horticultural Society held its annual election of officers at its meeting January 20. Following the business meeting there was a lecture by Clifton W. Loveland, ornithologist for the state board of agriculture, on "The Relation of Birds to Horticulture." The lecture was illustrated with slides of those birds which have proven themselves either helpful or harmful to the interests of the horticulturist.

Michael Sweeney, one of the pioneer florists of this city, died at his home Sunday, January 17, aged 71 years. He was a member of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island, and was its president for two years. His obituary will be found in another column.

George Johnson, one of the oldest florists in this city, passed away last week. He had been city forester for many years, also conducting a store and greenhouse on Elmwood avenue.

The heavy snow during the past week damaged the greenhouses of W. E. Chappell, Branch avenue, breaking about 10 feet of glass in one of the houses.

We Offer For Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well-established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly

Valuable New Roses

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, and Prince E. C. D'Arenberg.

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly, and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA. No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer, and has fine stems. It sells on sight The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively. Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120 00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY. This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red, and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer, and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG. This variety might well have been termed Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color, the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest, It has fine foliage comes away quickly, and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

We will be glad to quote on application prices on all the newer and standard varieties—strong grafted plants ready in March.

F. R. PIERSON, Tarrytown, New York

The florists' club banquet and installation of officers will be held January 25 in the club rooms on Westminster street.

Many of the florists have pussy willows in bloom, and some very pleasing effects are made with them.

Wm. Hoffman, of Pawtucket, is bringing in some very fine cyclamen in five and eight-inch pots.

Carnations and narcissi, including Paper Whites, are plentiful, and are filling the markets.

C. S. Macnair is recovering from his recent illness, and is expected to be about again soon.

Appleton, the Florist, has a new delivery wagon that makes a neat showing.

EASTER LILIES

Large flowers on fine long stems. Now that short Roses are scarce, these fine Lilies make the best show for the money in funeral work.

Beauties

Our Beauties are the finest coming to this market. The very short stem Beauties we do not advise handling at this time of year.

Roses

Killarney Brilliant, Rhea Reid, Sunburst, Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond, etc. Exceptionally fine flowers on all lengths of stems.

Carnations

Our carnation houses are the wonder of the trade, for the flowers are so large and strong.

☞We solicit orders and ask for a comparison in quality with any flowers in this market. Growing all the flowers we sell, our customers are getting the benefit of the best methods and careful handling in a large modern range of glass. The advantage of buying direct of the grower is immense.

ROSES STILL SCARCE.

Roses are still scarce, especially in the short and medium grades, and prices are higher now than they were at Christmas. While there seems to be a good supply of fancy Killarney, White Killarney and Killarney Brilliant at times, long-stemmed stock is none too plentiful and the supply is pretty well cleaned up each day. Richmond and other red roses are very scarce and are bringing good prices. Yellow roses are also on the short side and the same holds good for American Beauty roses, which have again advanced in price. Carnations are moving better, but are not bringing the prices that they should. Lily of the valley is in fair supply and lilies are plentiful. Freesia of fine quality is to be had in quantity, and is having a good call. Tulips are seen in larger numbers, but the supply of jonquils cleans up nicely each day at $3.00, $4.00 and $5.00 per 100. Paper White narcissi are not moving as well as they should, which accounts for the large supply seen at many of the houses. Sweet peas have been in good demand, especially fancy stock, which is sold quickly at good prices. Single violets are moving fairly well but the New York doubles could sell better, although prices on this stock have been much firmer this week. Stevia is not quite as plentiful as it has been. Orchids and gardenias are in good supply and large quantities of cypripediums are to be had at low prices. Taken all in all stock in general is none too plentiful and business has shown some improvement the past week. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and exceptionally fine ferns and smilax are now being offered. The quality of the cut flowers now reaching the market is exceptionally grand and all that can be desired. Some of the finest Killarney and Killarney Brilliant that have been offered for a long time are obtainable now, and the same holds good for Mrs. Aaron Ward, My Maryland and Mrs. George Shawyer roses.

NOTES.

John Muir received a telegram from San Francisco, Calif., on January 18, to the effect that Charles Ussing is dying there and asking him for information in regard to his relatives, if any. Mr. Ussing was formerly in his employ and left about a year ago to find employment on the coast, for he was in ill health and thought that a change of climate would do him good. Judging from the telegram he must be in the employ of the Misses Hannon of the coast city, for they were the ones that were asking for information. All that any one here knew of him was that he was a gentleman in every respect and that he originally came from New York City.

Miss Leona C. Sculer and George H. Wietor were married at St. Henry's church on Tuesday, January 19. The groom is a son of Henry Wietor, of Wietor Bros., and has charge of a section of American Beauty roses at Wietor's greenhouses. The happy young couple have the best wishes of their many friends in the trade for a successful voyage on the sea of matrimony.

H. Dieu Schiller is well pleased with the way business is keeping up at Schiller's North Side store, and says that the outlook is very encouraging for the future.

Martin A. Magnuson, 338 Center street, has had a good run on funeral work the past few weeks, which was scattered pretty well throughout the city.

Beauties-Roses

George Wienhoeber has had some very attractive window displays at his South Wabash avenue store since he took possession of the premises, January 1. P. N. Miller has charge of the window decorations and one cannot help but stop and admire the beautiful displays as one passes by. It seems that of late each of the loop stores are trying to outdo each other in their window showings, and it is pleasing to note that the proprietors are awake to the business that may be derived from advertising of this nature.

Percy Jones is offering some very choice ferns at present, and has plenty on hand to supply all of his customers with throughout the season. H. Van Gelder has already contracted for this firm's next season supply of boxwood through his southern representative, who writes that the quality will be the best ever for some of the trees will be just right for trimming and that he can figure on a larger than ever supply.

The McNeff-Swenson Co.'s Valentine day folder is now ready for distribution and everyone that has seen it is more than pleased with it, and agree that it compares most favorably with any of the others that this firm has yet issued. Hilmer Swenson is calling on the trade in the northwestern states and L. Dow McNeff is on a similar mission in Canada.

At Zech & Mann's store the receipts of American Beauty, Killarney and White Killarney roses are quite heavy and the quality is all that can be desired. Freesia is arriving in good supply daily at this house and is in good demand now. John Zech says that his daughter Carrie is feeling much better this week and an early recovery is hoped for.

Wietor Bros. are just coming in nice crop with Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond roses and the receipts are gradually increasing at this store now. N. J. Wietor is well pleased with the past week's business, which was very good, and is rather inclined to think that trade will gradually show improvement from now on.

The Chicago Floral Co. is enjoying a brisk transient trade at its West Randolph street store, opposite the Colonial theatre. The proprietor has made good use of the supplements in THE AMERICAN FLORIST that have appeared in the past, and many of them have been framed and now adorn the wall of the store.

George Manos, the Union Depot Florist, wishes that he had larger quarters in his present location, for he is working under a handicap, as he is now situated. He does a nice business because he sells at reasonble prices and gives his customers good value for their money.

George Economopolus reports that trade is improving gradually at the Alpha Floral Co.'s store on South Wabash avenue, and that the general outlook is brighter than it has been for some time. Transient trade is always good at this establishment for it is located on one of the busiest corners in the loop.

Erne & Klingel are pleasing their customers with fancy Butterfly sweet peas, as well as very fine Killarney and White Killarney roses. Nico-Fume and To-bak-ine are still handled as side lines at this busy store.

Joseph Ziska, Jr., of Joseph Ziska & Sons, must think the winter is pretty well over, for he has taken his Auburn car out of the garage and will use it to good advantage in calling on the trade in this vicinity.

Nick Kronos, of Manusos Bros., was married recently and is now spending his honeymoon in the east. He is a brother of George Manos' partner, who looks after the Pittsburgh, Pa., stores.

The Frank Floral Co. is featuring choice jonquils in large quantities this week, but the demand is so heavy at present for this kind of stock that a cleanup is experienced each day.

J. A. Budlong is in good crop with American Beauty roses and some fine stock in this line is now seen at this store, and lily of the valley is always in good supply here.

Joe Schouten has been doing the buying on the local market for the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co. during the illness of the regular buyer, Wm. Wienhoeber.

Sharp, Partridge & Co. are furnishing the glass for the new eight-story building at the southwest corner of Lake street and North Wabash avenue.

Robert Hand has accepted a position as rose grower with Poehlmann Bros. Co. at Plant B, where Adolph Poehlmann so ably presides.

The Cook County Florists' Association will meet at the Tavern, West Washington street, Thursday, January 21, at 8. p. m.

The local Greeks celebrated New Year's day in grand style on Thursway, January 14. Ety Polla to Neon Etos.

James Chacona, of Milwaukee, Wis., was a visitor in the wholesale market, January 14.

Guy Reyburn, of A. Henderson & Co., is in the city this week.

THE ALWAYS RELIABLE WHOLESALE FLORISTS

BEAUTIES--ROSES

Never before at this season of the year have we had such splendid quality to offer the trade in Beauties and Roses as we have now. The Beauties are magnificent and we can supply them in the Long, Medium and Short grades. Our Killarney and White Killarney roses are extra fine and second to none, as far as quality is concerned, in this or any other market. You wil appreciate this stock if you once see it, for it is, without question, the finest that has been offered for a long time.

FREESIAS--CARNATIONS

Fancy stock of both in large supply as well as Orchids, Tulips, Jonquils, Narcissus, Lilies Callas, Valley, Stevia, Romans, Violets and Greens. Our line is complete in every respect and if there is anything you want that you do not see mentioned, ask for it. for we have it if it is obtainable.

Mrs. Williams, of the Atlas Floral Co., is making quite a saleslady of her stenographer and bookkeeper, Miss Lillian Glatter, who is proving to be a valuable addition to the regular force. This store has attracted more attention of late with its magnificent window displays than it has for a long time past.

Hoerber Bros. are still growing My Maryland roses in fairly good supply and think that it is a good enough variety to keep on their list. Very few florists in this vicinity are growing this variety now, but this rose always seems to find ready buyers at this house.

Paul Klingsporn says that trade was good at the Chicago Flower Growers' Association store the past season and that the records from July 1, 1914, to January 1, 1915, show an increase over the corresponding months of the previous year.

Frank Oechslin has a nice supply of bulbous stock in pans which he is now distributing in fairly large quantities. Stock in general throughout the Oechslin greenhouses is in grand shape and is a pleasure to look upon.

O. Johnson, of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., says that trade has improved wonderfully during the past week and that roses are bringing better prices now than they did at Christmas.

John Risch says that Weiland & Risch have averaged 500 Mrs. Chas. Russell roses a day so far from their winter cuts.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is booking orders every day on a large scale for grafted and own-root rose plants in all the best standard and newer varieties. Chrysanthemum cuttings and plants and carnation cuttings are also handled in large quantities, and the buyer can get just about what he wants at this place. The demand for grafted plants of the new rose, Mrs. Chas. Russell, is surprisingly large, which indicates that it will be grown heavily in the future. In the supply department the regular force has been increased in the person of Joe Zarobi, an efficient basket decorator, who was formerly with the A. L. Randall Co.

A surprise party was given in honor of J. Muno and wife on January 17 at their home at 2464 Kenilworth avenue, and it is needless to add that everyone present had a most delightful time. The party was given in honor of their thirty-fifth wedding anniversary, and among those present were Peter Reinberg, Adam Zender, D. E. Freres and many other well-known people in the trade. Joseph Gast made an appropriate speech and his little son, John, presented the Munos with a handsome bouquet of 35 Killarney roses.

Peter Reinberg has had a good call for Killarney and White Killarney roses all week, and no trouble at all has been experienced in moving the large cuts. Felix Reichling says that many complimentary letters have been received in regard to the splendid keeping qualities of their new pink seedling carnation, Josie Merle. It is a fine shipper and is used for pink on nearly all out-of-town orders when possible.

Among those who have reserved berths on the Chicago car for the carnation meeting at Buffalo next week are the following: August Poehlmann, W. N. Rudd, George Asmus, A. T. Pyfer, C. W. Johnson, P. J. Foley, Fred Lautenschlager, P. W. Peterson and Frank Fischer, Joliet, J. A. Valentine, Denver, Colo., and E. F. Kurowski.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are looking forward to better business and are going to make a strong bid for same from now on. Another stenographer has been added to the office staff and with the increased sales force they are confident that they are ably prepared to take care of all orders that may be entrusted to them.

Bassett & Washburn are cutting quite heavily in roses and some especially fine Killarney and White Killarney are now being featured at this establishment. Bulbous stock is being handled on a large scale at this store now, particularly tulips, jonquils and Paper White narcissi.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has been awarded the contract for the new greenhouses of the Ohio State University at Columbus, which will be devoted to vegetables. The new range will consist of three houses 14.9x135 feet of the ridge and furrow type of connected houses.

H. B. Kennicott says that trade has been very encouraging at Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store this week, and that stock in all lines has been in good demand. This firm will continue to handle all green goods as it has in the past, and even on a larger scale than before.

The Chicago Carnation Co. will be one of the exhibitors at the twenty-fourth annual convention and exhibition of the American Carnation Society to be held at Buffalo January 27-28. A. T. Pyfer is planning on attending the meeting and show.

W. F. Duntemann of Bensenville is shipping some very fine Mrs. Aaron Ward roses to this market now. A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling some of his stock.

J. F. Kidwell & Brother had the order for the Wietor-Sculer wedding on Tuesday, January 19.

The E. F. Winterson Co. is the recipient of daily shipments of local grown cypripediums.

Kyle & Foerster are showing quite a large supply of fancy Killarney Brilliant roses.

Chicago Bowling.

The bowling team representing the local florists in the North Chicago League journeyed out to Maywood on Friday evening, January 15, to play a picked five from that place. The local boys won two out of the three games played and were declared the winners. The following are the scores which were made in the league tournament this week:

STOCK SHORTENS BUT DEMAND IS LIGHT.

Stock has shortened up very materially the past week, there being a positive scarcity in some lines. This is very noticeable in roses, which now appear to be off crop in most of the varieties. If the business had any life to it there would be a great scramble for stock, but the demand continues very light. Carnations are an exception, they being offered very much in excess of the demand. The quantity prices are very low and enable the department stores to stock up and sell at ruinous figures, at least as compared to the price the majority of the stores are compelled to ask. Even the choice stock, such as gardenias and orchids, are moved with difficulty, selling at about half normal figures. Sweet peas of the Spencer type are becoming more plentiful and sell as well as anything at fair prices; they will be an important factor from this time on, as will daffodils, which in a week or so will flood the market. Paper Whites are considered well sold just now at $1 per hundred. Violets are much more plentiful, while lily of the valley is about normal. The demand in the stores is considered very light for the season. That flowers can be sold at a price, even now, is demonstrated by the department stores, who handle large quantities at their cut rate price. The Wanamaker counter in the basement appears to be more than an experiment and may be continued while the stock can be obtained at gift prices.

NOTES.

Voller's House of Flowers has added a new Ford delivery car to its service. It appears to be a very serviceable machine. The show windows at this establishment were very attractive the past week, one being filled with cattleyas and ferns and the other was a novelty window filled with colonial bouquets in bouquet papers from small to large sizes made of various fruits. One window of cigars and cigarettes and another of packages of gold tipped cigarettes, each with a gardenia boutonniere and labeled "Bouquets for Gentlemen," were very effective as a window attraction.

M. J. Brinton, of Christiana, Pa., has made a success of Lilium formosum planted in the chrysanthemum beds immediately after the crop was off. Planted out in this way results in much more satisfactory than in pots or boxes, the growth being much stronger, and the flowers of the highest grade. Cold storage giganteums are also grown in quantity the year around.

The Ritz-Carleton flower shop of the Habermehls, which opened for business last week, is the last word in modern fixtures and appointments for a cut flower store.

American Beauty roses are still the feature with the Leo Niessen Co. High grade carnations and orchid peas are seen in quantity.

The Robert Craig Co. offers the finest stock of four-inch cyclamen it has ever had; they are splendid stock for running a special sale.

Edward Reid presents a new candidate for public approval, a red sport of Shawyer. The color is deeper than a well colored Russell.

Charles Henry Fox has been elected vice-president of the Young Republican Club, a strong political organization of this city.

Berger Brothers say the volume of business is helped by the low prices. Calla lilies and fancy sweet peas are features here.

The M. Rice Co. is preparing for a busy spring season. Valentine novelties are offered in great variety.

Henry A. Dreer is having a great run on table ferns. Cocos for centers are also a feature. K.

TRADE SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Business took a change for the better this week. It was quiet during the first few days, but showed a decided improvement towards the end of the week. The cloudy weather we have been having seemed to shorten the supply. Roses were the most active line, the prices nearly doubling those of the previous week on short-stemmed stock. Carnations continue to drag a little, but Saturday, January 16, there was a good demand. Violets are very plentiful, and consequently prices on them are below normal. Sweet peas continue popular and bring very good money. Orchids, of all reasonable varieties, are very plentiful and hard to move. Bulbous stock, with the exception of spurs, are moving slowly and it looks now as if there would soon be an over supply. The quality is very good and shipments are becoming larger every day. The shipping business has picked up considerably and does much toward giving the business a brighter aspect. The plant trade continues very good, cyclamen being the best seller.

NOTES.

Wm. Elliott is shipping from his range at Madbury, N. H., a large supply of high grade roses. Sunburst, Killarney Queen, Killarney Brilliant and Cecile Brunner are his leading varieties at present. He is selling Plumosus nanus seeds, greenhouse grown, with very good results.

W. R. Morris, of Wellesley, Mass., is going to change his entire stock of roses for next season. He has already purchased Dark Pink Killarney, Killarney Brilliant, Russell, Hadley, Ophelia, Sunburst and Ward. Altogether he will purchase about 20,000 plants.

The carnations grown by A. Pembroke, of Beverly, Mass., are coming into a heavy crop. He is cutting some of the best Delights and Matchless coming into the city. His Benora, Dagmar, White Wonder and Gorgeous are exceptionally fine.

J. Petros reports business as being very satisfactory at his new store at the corner of Massachusetts and Huntington avenues. He has a nice roomy store, well equipped, and from all appearances will make a success of his new enterprise.

J. T. Butterworth, So. Framington, Mass., is shipping to the Boston Flower Exchange a large supply of cattleyas and cypripediums. He also is cutting some very nice yellow tulips and Paper Whites.

N. Fishelson has opened a store on Harvard avenue, Allston, under the name of the Allston Flower Shop. Since he left Boston last year he has had stores in San Francisco and Montreal.

In addition to a fine line of carnations, W. D. Howard, of Milford, is cutting a crop of sweet peas. His salmon pink sport of Winsor and also Wards are coming very good at present.

Wm. Hannan & Sons, of Dorchester, are cutting a heavy supply of Dutch spurs. They also have a good supply of carnations, Matchless being their best variety.

Thos. J. Grey Co. are busy booking orders for their spring business. From all appearances business will be up to the standard, despite the dull times.

The finest Easter lilies coming to Boston are grown by Thomas Cox, of Dorchester. He also has cypripediums and smilax that are far above the average. F. L. W.

New York.

SHORTENING SUPPLY HELPS TRADE.

During the last days of the past week there was some improvement, due not so much to an increased demand as to a falling off in the supply. American Beauty roses are off crop and there are indications that they may yet be less plentiful, but the buyers balk at paying $50 for specials. The other roses have not advanced appreciably in prices, but they are moving more freely. Carnations are doing a little better. In lilies, lily of the valley and sweet peas, there is little change to note. Some very good tulips and jonquils are now seen, the asking prices for the best being at the rate of $3.50 and $4 per 100. Paper White narcissi are selling very cheap; 100 bunches of it were sold to one buyer recently for $5.

January 18.—In the early morning hours a heavy rain set in which continued throughout the forenoon, having a depressing effect on business.

NOTES.

The funeral of Chas. McTaggart, notice of whose tragic death appeared in our last issue, was held at the family home, 189 Kearny avenue, Kearny, N. J., January 13. A large delegation, mostly private gardeners, assembled at the store of W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, and proceeded to Kearny in a body. There were appropriate and touching funeral services conducted by Rev. Robert T. Graham, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Kearny. The pall bearers were. A. E. Wheeler and Harry Rute, of W. E. Marshall & Co.; Peter Duff, Thomas Adams and John Brown. Interment was at Arlington, N. J. There were a large number of beautiful floral tributes. Among those who went from New York to the funeral the following were noted: Thos. Adams, Jno. Brunger, Jas. Aitchison, Wm. Barclay, Robt. Berry, Jas. Bell, Ed. Benson, Wm. Bunny, J. Alexander, M. C. Ebel, A. F. Faulkner, Jno. Garvan, Jno. Hayes, A. Herz, Thos. Locke, Alex. McKenzie, Ewen McKenzie, Malcolm MacRorie, John McQueen, Jos. Marshall, Geo. Meadows, Geo. Mustol, Wm. Metzdorf, L. E. Oritz, Robt. Petrie, Owen G. Owen, P. W. Popp, Jas. Stuart, Martin Tillotson, Alex. Thompson, Geo. Thompson, Geo. Wilson, Ant. Wild, Andrew Wilson, S. H. Whitefield, Wm. Kayser. W. E. Marshall was in the middle west, 1,100 miles from New York, when he heard of Mr. McTaggart's death. He immediately returned but arrived too late for the funeral. He has now gone back to resume his business trip.

Charles Kelly, for the past seven years bookkeeper for M. C. Ford, 121 West 28th street, was stricken with paralysis while riding on an elevated train, January 8. He is under the care of physicians at his home, and is reported to be improving. Mr. Kelly was popular, not only with his employer and associates in the store, but also with many others in the street, and it is hoped that he will soon regain his health.

In addition to a great stock of fine roses, H. E. Froment is receiving a good supply of gladioli.

At the United Cut Flower Co. we note splendid yellow tulips and jonquils.

Wm. P. Ford is handling exceptionally fine sweet peas of the Spencer type.

M. C. Ford is receiving excellent stock of jonquils.

At John Young's we note a good display of tulips.

Connecticut Horticultural Society.

The Connecticut Horticultural Society met in the County building, Hartford, Conn., Friday evening, January 8, Warren S. Mason of Farmington, the new president, in the chair for the first time. President Mason announced the following committees: Executive Committee—J. F. Huss, G. H. Hollister, W. W. Hunt, C. H. Sierman, Oscar Gritzmacher. Publicity Committee—James M. Adams, Edward Brassill, Alfred Dixon.

President Mason exhibited a fine collection of camellias in various colors, Charizenia illicifolia and Clerodendron Balforni, from the conservatories of Mrs. A. A. Pope of Farmington, and Alex Cummings, Jr., of the Pierson greenhouses of Cromwell exhibited rare specimens of Buddleia Asiatica. G. H. Hollister, C. H. Sierman and Frank Roulier were appointed judges and awarded a cultural certificate on the exhibit of camellias and Buddleia Asiatica.

President Mason advocated a spring or early summer flower show to be given for the benefit of the Red Cross or some similar society. This brought out a general discussion and much enthusiasm for the project. The executive committee was instructed to meet at once and make plans for the proposed exhibit. The general impression was that the last of May or mid-June would be a good time, as there would be an abundance of roses, peonies, perennials, etc., as well as greenhouse plants. Several new members were elected to membership.

Rochester, N. Y.

At the annual meeting of the ladies' auxiliary of the Rochester Florists' Association held January 12, the following officers were elected: Mrs. Fred Vick, president; Mrs. H. W. Wilson, vice-president; Mrs. E. P. Wilson, secretary; Mrs. E. R. Fry, treasurer.

The sixtieth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society will be held in this city, January 27-29.

New Orleans.

New Orleans florists joined the campaign to beautify New Orleans January 11, when nearly a score of them met at the Association of Commerce in response to a call sent out and pledged their aid to those in charge of the movement. The florists will direct their energies to teaching citizens how to beautify their premises, plant shrubbery in their front and back yards, make lawns, set trees along the sidewalks in front, and put pot plants on the galleries and in the windows of the homes.

Among the florists attending the conference, who were addressed by J. F. Carter, Jr., were G. W. Eichling, Paul Abele, J. G. Schattmaier, J. H. Bierhorst, Peter A. Chopin, E. A. Farley, Herman C. Doescher, J. G. Quinette and E. G. Fleckt.

CARO, MICH.—A. J. Packer has just completed the erection of a quadruple range covering 8,500 square feet. The entire structural work is of steel and the building is equipped with the best heating and ventilating systems.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The sixteenth annual dinner of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society held at the Florence Inn, January 12, was without a doubt, the best ever held under the auspices of this society. The dining room was handsomely decorated with the choicest flowers, and when the members and friends had taken their places there was not a vacant chair. John F. Dinkle acted as toastmaster, and after President William Jamieson welcomed the guests to the festal board, Frank R. Pierson extended a welcome on behalf of the village of Tarrytown to all of the guests, and commended the society for the excellence of all its affairs, exhibitions and dinners. He referred to the flourishing condition of the society and said that it now had $2,000 in its permanent relief fund, which sum was to be invested and the interest used to further the work of the society. He said the society was on "easy street" and had never known a deficit. Letters of regret were read from Assemblyman Walter W. Law, Jr., The Monmouth Society, W. J. Stewart of Boston, Mass., J. Austin Shaw, R. A. Patteson, W. R. Cobb and A. P. Cobb.

As the cigars were being passed, the Rev. J. J. Henry was introduced, and interpolated a supply of witty stories with thoughts from the serious side. Senator Charles P. McClelland spoke of the conflict abroad, and as he closed proposed a toast to "Our Country," and this was followed by singing "America" with much enthusiasm. Judge Arthur S. Tompkins, of Nyack, N. Y., was next introduced and gave one of the most inspiring addresses ever listened to in Tarrytown. He spoke earnestly on gatherings and affiliations that make for brotherly love and fraternity, and that more of that spirit, and the spirit of charity and comradeship would bring about co-operation and success. Judge Tompkins was warmly applauded and his address was listened to with closest attention. Other speakers of the evening were Hon. Frank L. Young, Ossining, C. H. Tibbitts, White Plains, John J. Sinnott, Charles D. Millard and Wallace Odell. The sixteenth annual dinner set a high mark, and it will only be surpassed by another Tarrytown Horticultural Society dinner.

Holyoke and Northampton Club.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held in Amherst, Mass., at the home of that fine old veteran gardener, Thos. Foulds, on the evening of January 12. It is the custom for the members of this club to hold their monthly meetings at each other's places of business or greenhouses. Owing to age and failing health, Mr. Foulds has not been able to attend any of the meetings for the past year, so the club decided to hold their January meeting at his home. His gentlemanly character and kindly disposition have won the love of all the members while his broad acquaintance and love of plants, together with his helpful talks, has been an inspiration. E. H. Downer of the Smith College botanic gardens had an excellent paper on herbaceous perennials which caused much discussion. Mr. Sinclair exhibited some fine blooms of the newer carnations from his new Smith's Ferry greenhouse and was awarded a first class certificate of merit. Mr. Carey, of South Hadley, also showed carnations and was awarded a certificate. Although there was an icy rain storm all the evening, some fifteen members were present, and five new candidates were elected to membership. Mrs. Foulds and daughters provided refreshments, and it was one of the most enjoyable evenings the club has had.

E. J. C.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The Tri-City Florists' Club met in regular session at the residence of Julius Staack, with a large attendance. President John Staack called the meeting to order. In addition to the general order of business, the constitution and by-laws were revised to better meet the requirements of the club. The entertainment committee brought in their report in favor of a stag banquet to be held at the Harper house, Rock Island, Ill., January 22. A committee for the nomination of officers for the ensuing year to report at next meeting was appointed by the chair as follows: Wm. Knees, James Hansen, Henry Staack, Ed. Allchin and R. M. C. Rohlfs. The club members then enjoyed a social hour with lunch and refreshments, and after extending a vote of thanks for their hospitality to their host and hostess, the club adjourned to meet at the residence of Henry Pauli, Davenport, Ia., February 11, 1915.

WE are Growers of this stock in quantity and the bulbs we ship for forcing under glass are especially selected for this purpose. We have a first extra grade for counter.

Besides the following standard kinds, most of which we can offer in two sizes (both flowering), we carry nearly all standard kinds and many fancy imported novelties secured by our Mr. Vaughan last year in Europe.

	Per 1000
Mrs. Francis King, First size	$10.00
Mrs. Francis King, Medium size	8.00
Augusta, First size	12.00

We Can Quote Special Prices on Quantities of Several Kinds.

We are in position to quote all Seedsmen and Florists who are interested in Gladiolus, either forcing, for counter trade, or for outdoor planting, all sizes from EXTRAS down to the smaller grades.

PLANTING STOCK. Of several leading kinds we can supply planting stock, white bulbs under one inch and small black bulblets by the bushel.

Ask for 1915 Book for Florists. It's a Good One.

Special Flower Seed Price List—all Early Stocks. Ask for it.

I regard Mrs Francis King as the best florists' variety of its color. Its wonderful profusion of bloom and firmness of its petals makes it a great favorite all along the New Jersey Coast with the cottage people as a cut flower

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif., President; J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., First Vice-President; E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer; S. F. Willard, Jr., Cleveland, O., Assistant Secretary.

Thirty-Third annual meeting, San Francisco, Calif., June 1915.

W. ATLEE BURPEE, Philadelphia, Pa., sailed for Costa Rica on a brief vacation trip January 16.

FOREIGN seed shipments are arriving very slowly and delaying badly the completion of wholesale stocks.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—Thirty-three sacks of garden seeds were cleared at the customs house January 12 for the A. J. Brown Seed Company.

L. W. WHEELER, of the Pieters-Wheeler Seed Co., writing from Gilroy, Calif., January 15, says that "crop prospects for 1915 so far are good."

FRENCH BULBS.—Advices from Toulon, France, the middle of December, indicate that the market again will be fixed on the annual reunion of the syndicate.

LOUISVILLE, KY.—United States Commissioner Arthur Cox has rendered a decision to the effect that R. B. Hutchcraft, of Paris, Ky., seedsman, is a bankrupt.

THE meeting of the executive committee of the American Seed Trade Association called for January 20, at Chicago, has been postponed to some future date.

SOME big lots of German lily of the valley have arrived in Dutch boats, badly sprouted, mostly a total loss. Stock arriving in Danish boats is reported to have fared better.

WHOLESALE seed orders in the west are reported as coming in freely. The amount of money spent for telegrams and postage on inquiries for beans unobtainable is difficult to compute.

ABERDEEN, S. D.—The program has been issued for the second annual South Dakota corn and alfalfa convention which will be held in this city during the week of February 8-15.

F. H. HENRY, of Henry & Lee, New York, who has just returned from a six months' visit to Japan, says the possibilities of that country seeking a quarrel with the United States are very remote.

THE decision in the Buckbee-Hohenadel case, details of which appeared in our Seed Trade Department last week, pages 1370-1372, has greatly interested both seed growers and seed dealers.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade January 20 were as follows: Timothy, $6.00 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.—A. H. Goodwin, of the W. W. Barnard Co., is making an eastern trip.

THE national canners and corn packers were in session at the LaSalle hotel, Chicago, January 20. The seedsmen in attendance included representatives of the Leonard Seed Co., the W. W. Barnard Co., Chicago; The Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.

GARRISON, N. D.—The Missouri Slope Seed Company has been incorporated by Geo. L. Robinson, Alex Slagg, both of Garrison, and George Barrow, Emmet, N. D. Capital $5,000.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; L. L. May, of L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Minn.; Wm. Fosgate, Santa Clara, Calif.; R. C. McGill, of the McGill Seed Growers' Co., San Francisco, Calif.; Chas. Loechner, of Loechner & Co., New York.

POTATOES.—White potatoes at Chicago January 15 sold at a decline of 3@5c a bushel, making the lowest prices in several weeks. Receipts were posted at only 25 cars, but buyers would not take hold, except at big concessions, claiming they had more stock on hand than they needed for immediate needs. Sales were made at 35 to 42 cents a bushel on track, with only one car at the outside price.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The property of the McVay Seed Co., consisting of the stock and fixtures, was sold at public auction, January 11, by order of the bankrupt court and was bid in by J. H. Perdue, the purchase price being $2,900. The sale was confirmed by Judge E. H. Dryer, referee in bankruptcy. The company has been reorganized and incorporated as the McVay Seed and Floral company, and is ready for business at 2018 First avenue. The officers of the new company are: Dr. R. B. Mobley, president; J. H. Perdue, vice president; R. V. Harris, secretary and treasurer. The new company has $10,000 capital stock already paid in.

Barrel Standardized By Law.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 13.—For the first time in history the federal government will exercise its constitutional control of the weights and measures of the country under a bill agreed to today by the house and which already has passed the senate establishing a standard barrel for fruits, vegetables and other dry commodities.

The standard barrel bill provides for a barrel with 28½ inch staves and 17⅛ inch heads made of material not thicker than four-tenths of an inch. However, any barrel having a capacity of 7,056 cubic inches will be considered standard. A separate standard is fixed for cranberry barrels.

A fine of $500 or imprisonment for six months is the penalty for violation.

Commission Seed Dealers Exempt.

We are indebted to Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich., for the subjoined ruling of the treasury department in the matter of imposing revenue tax on commission seed dealers regarding which we have had numerous inquiries recently.

Treasury Department,
Washington, December 7, 1914.

Sir:—Referring to your personal visit to this office relative to the alleged liability of the customers of D. M. Ferry & Company through their method of handling goods of that firm, you are advised that it is the understanding of this office from your statements and papers submitted that D. M. Ferry & Company receive orders from druggists, country merchants and others for boxes of assorted seeds which are furnished them upon an agreement or contract that the seeds sold shall be paid for at the end of the season, less certain specified discounts, and that unsold seeds may be returned to D. M. Ferry & Company.

The question of the status of a transaction of this character has been before the supreme court of the state of Alabama, which decided in effect that such transactions did not involve liability as commission merchants, in which view this office concurs, and it is, therefore, held that special tax liability as commission merchants is not incurred by customers of D. M. Ferry & Company under the act of October 22, 1914, and under conditions noted.

Respectfully,
W. H. OSBORN, Commissioner.

TWIN FALLS, IDAHO.—The Jerome B. Rice Seed Co. is in the market for a large acreage of peas for the coming season. The local manager, A. E. Wilson, stated that his company would endeavor to secure 3,000 acres on the tract for the coming season. In the St. Anthony territory the company has secured contracts for more than 4,000 acres for the coming year. Mr. Wilson stated that the soil and climate on the Twin Falls tract was ideal for pea raising. The contract price for peas which the farmer will raise this coming season is somewhat higher than last year.

American Association of Nurserymen.

Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala., President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Fortieth annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 23-25, 1915.

LIVE OAK, CALIF.—Fire destroyed the home of A. E. Davis, nurseryman, January 3. Loss, $1,000.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—L. L. May & Co. report their sales of nursery stock to date exceed last season's business to date by 35 per cent.

DURANT, OKLA.—At the annual meeting of the directors of the Durant Nursery Co., January 6, W. A. Wagner was chosen as manager.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA.—The American Spineless Cactus Co, has incorporated with headquarters in this city, and will soon establish a nursery of five acres.

KALISPEL, MONT.—The Montana Horticultural Society held its annual meeting in this city January 19-21. It was one of the best meetings the society has held.

HEYWORTH, ILL.—Frank Johnson, who has been identified with the Phoenix Nursery Co., at Normal, Ill., for 25 years, is contemplating the establishment of a nursery here.

RICHMOND, IND.—Park Superintendent Ford and City Forester Spray, have suggested to the board of public works the establishment of a nursery in Glen Miller park for the purpose of raising shade trees.

HOUSTON, TEX.—Griffing Bros., nurserymen, of Port Arthur, Tex., with branches all through the South, have opened a Houston branch, at Lowell street and Montrose boulevard. Henk Dirken is manager of the local branch.

GREENSBORO, N. C.—The war in Europe has almost completely paralyzed the commerce of France and some of the other countries involved, but not quite. A shipment of 35,000 apple trees, just imported from France by a local nursery, is evidence that they are still doing some business over there.

Johnny Appleseed Monument

Johnny Appleseed, historic character of pioneer days, who went about over Ohio planting apple trees, will have a monument erected in his honor, if the plans of the horticultural society of Ohio State University prove successful. At a recent meeting, this organization voted to solicit donations from horticulturalists of the state for this purpose. For years, there has been talk of erecting a monument to this well-known character, but heretofore nobody has pushed actively the campaign for subscriptions. The society proposes to rush the campaign, however, and already has started the collection of money.

The body of Johnny Appleseed at present lies in an unmarked grave near Indianapolis. The students who are interested in apple culture deem it a shame that this man who did everything in his power to make Ohio a leading state in the raising of apples, should be unremembered.

THE FIFTH annual convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of New York will be held at Ithaca, February 9-12.

TOPEKA KAN.—The Kansas State Horticultural Society has for distribution a number of volumes of Nos. 27, 28, 29 and 32, which contain papers of interest to truck and fruit growers. These volumes will be sent free to those writing the secretary, J. L. Pelham, Topeka.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 19.—Mushrooms, 40 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, 18 cents to 22 cents per box; radishes, 25 cents to 40 cents per dozen bunches; asparagus, $2.00 per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 7½ cents to 20 cents; cucumbers, $1.50 per dozen.

New York, January 19.—Cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 75 cents to $1.50 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 15 cents to 20 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $3.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.00 to $1.50.

Vegetables Under Glass.

ED. AMERCAN FLORIST:

In growing lettuce in greenhouses, how many years can the same soil be used if it is covered with manure through the summer months and kept well wet down? Do the larger growers adopt above plan? Would it be possible to grow a crop of cauliflower in the greenhouse during the fall months? I would like to have it ready for market about November 1 to November 15. Any information as to the time to sow seed, kind of seed, time to move inside, distance apart to set plants and kind of soil, would be appreciated. Do the large lettuce growers let their houses lie idle in summer? If not, what to they grow in vegetables? Is it too warm for tomatoes?

MISSOURI BEGINNER.

Lettuce growers as a rule believe that the soil in greenhouses improves with age if properly cared for. There are several points to observe: First, keep adding enough manure annually to provide plenty of humus. Second, supply a proper amount of lime to avoid acidity. Third, use liberally acid phosphate or bone meal to supply phosphates, of which the manure is deficient. Fourth, practice good sanitation, which means the prompt removal of all crops and residues to avoid diseases. It is generally best to apply the lime in the fall and the phosphatic elements in the spring to separate them as much as possible, as they are unfriendly elements.

In regard to cauliflower, it would be perfectly practical to grow a crop in the fall if the houses, soil and especially the grower are right. Such varieties as Snowball require about 90 days to maturity. All cauliflowers are exceedingly sensitive to checks, which cause them to button and bolt to seed, hence the plants need close attention. Some growers resort to potting the young plants to make the final transplanting easier. If cauliflower plants are allowed to grow too large before transplanting to permanent beds, success is seldom obtained—keep the young plants growing from the first and transplant as soon as of nice size. Cauliflowers require a very rich soil and much water. Growers prefer cow manure to any other material, to which should be added a fair allowance of bone meal. Distance apart can be 18x18 inches or a trifle less.

Large growers keep their houses busy most of the time. Cucumbers generally follow lettuce and these cucumbers are carried down to the point when the outdoor crop breaks the market. Tomatoes answer the same purpose—the choice depends upon market conditions, or overhead room in the houses. Cucumbers, of course, require much more room, as they are grown up right under glass. Where the heat is too intense in summer a little shade on the glass will benefit either cucumbers or tomatoes.

MARKETMAN.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

Installation of officers was one of the features of the monthly meeting of the society held in Doran's hall, Greenwich, Conn., January 8. The officers for the ensuing year are as follows: W. J. Sealey, president; Wm. Morrow, vice-president; Robert Williamson, treasurer; J. B. McArdle, secretary; P. W. Popp, corresponding secretary. The executive committee is composed of the following: James Stuart, Ewen MacKenzie, Wm. Morrow, Thos. Ryan, Jas. Foster and J. T. Burns.

All monthly meetings for the ensuing year will start promptly at 7:30 p. m., thereby enabling those who come from a distance to attend the meetings and stay until the business session is finished, before leaving. Two new members were elected and several proposals for membership were received and filed. A very satisfactory report was received from the executive committee and placed on file. It was decided at this meeting to hold the annual summer show, the time and place to be definitely settled at the next meeting. A committee was also appointed to make all arrangements for the annual entertainment and dance, to be held in February. The date and location of the hall will be announced at an early date.

The prizes offered by J. B. McArdle, seedsman, Greenwich, Conn., for the best 18 carnations, six each of three varieties, caused a wonderful display to be placed on the exhibition tables. All of the old favorites, as well as the novelties of recent introduction, were shown in the greatest profusion, and of a quality not to be surpassed anywhere. The judges awarded the first prize to Thos. Ryan; second prize to John Canning; third prize to Robt. Grunnert. The other competitors were each acorded a hearty vote of thanks for their splendid display. In the non-competitive class, the judges made the following awards: Samuel Bachelor, manager of the Amohat Greenhouses, Mamaroneck, N. Y., vote of thanks for each of several very fine vases of carnations and a cultural certificate for a grand vase of Carnation Gorgeous; Thos. Ryan, vote of thanks for a vase of mixed carnations; P. W. Popp, vote of thanks for a vase of carnations, variegated yellow sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward; vote of thanks to Thos. Aitchison for display of carnations; A. Wynne, highly commended for vase of seedling carnations; Carl Hankenson, vote of thanks for a vase of Pink Killarney roses; A. L. Marshall, highly commended for a grand vase of cut orchid blooms, lælias in variety; Robt. Williamson, for specimen cypripedium was highly commended. A bunch of rhubarb and plate of tomatoes from Robt. Grunnert were awarded a vote of thanks. A specimen plant of Buddleia Asiatica from P. W. Popp was given a vote of thanks.

The lecturer for the evening was Neil Morrow Ladd, president of the Greenwich Bird Protective Society, who spoke in a very convincing manner, and the beautifully colored views which were projected on a screen were true to life and showed the various methods of attracting the birds, the feeding during severe weather, and the various devices used for feeding and sheltering. The subject is worthy of serious consideration by the members of our profession. A rising vote of thanks was extended to the speaker for his interesting lecture. The subject of the lecture scheduled for the next meeting will be "Coniferous Trees," by James Kelley of Mt. Caanan, Conn. The next meeting will be held February 12. John Canning offers cash prizes for the best vase of roses, any variety.

For Spring Sales and Memorial Day

Our stock is in prime condition, retarded dormant plants from 6-inch pots, in fine shape to flower for Spring Sales or for Memorial Day; any of the varieties described below at $30.00 per 100.

Avalanche. A splendid large white with a well esrab ished reputation; an easy variety to force.

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of rosy amber tu ning to bright pink; a favorite with all growers.

Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color.

E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade, growth vigorous, foliage of a pea green color, large and attractive.

General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.

La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite.

Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous.

Mme. E. Mouillere. Probably the most popular white variety on the market today, an early easy variety to force.

Mme. Maurice Hamar. A delicate fresh-rose color, a vigorous grower, the individual flowers as well as the trusses being very large.

Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white; flowers large and very freely produced.

Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a fine acquisition.

Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear-flesh rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties.

Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose-tint.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads of bright rose-colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.

Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections; flowers produced in immense large heads; on the style of La Lorraine, but an earlier bloomer.

Vieux Chateau. Very large pure white becoming suffused with delicate rosy carmine as they mature.

Hydrangea Otaksa. Dormant plants, 6-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 10-inch tubs, $1.00 each; 12 inch tubs, $2.50 each.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120 page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

The principle—Two layers of glass with a 5/8-inch layer of dry still air

Get ready for your winter garden

Glass must be used whether you garden for profit or simply to enjoy having vegetables and flowers when they are a luxury and sell high.

And you must have Sunlight Double Glass Sash if you want to get the best results at the least cost of money and labor. They have become the standard throughout the best and largest gardens in the country for very good reasons:—

Three reasons why

1 The air space enclosed between the two layers of glass makes a transparent cover that affords better protection than the mats and shutters on the old single sash. And, it never has to be put on and off. It is always there though invisible.

2 This air space saves more than one half the labor.

3 It makes far earlier and stronger plants.

Our inexpensive greenhouse

A handy man can set it up in a few hours. It is framed of cypress and covered top and sides with Sunlight Double Glass Sash which can be removed at will for use elsewhere or for repairs.

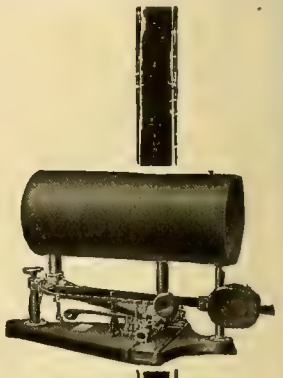
Morehead
~~Back to Boiler~~ SYSTEM



Solves the condensation problem in the greenhouse. Condensation in the steam apparatus means a sluggish steam system—and wasted heat units. Greenhouses, where the temperature is not uniform, produce imperfect stock. Correct both these conditions by installing a Morehead System. It puts the condensation back into the boilers—hot. That not only means a saving in heat but it protects you against poor steam circulation, leaks and repair expenses. Have our engineers tell you why. Write today.

The Exhibition.

The twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the American Carnation Society, held at the Hotel Iroquois, Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 27-28, was one of the best in the history of this society, the number and quality of the exhibits, together with the attendance and enthusiasm of the members bringing inspiration to the officers of the society, and the flower loving public took advantage of the exhibition by attending in large numbers. Matchless, the gold medal winner of 1914, from The Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., was again the stellar variety of the exhibition, winning first in the class of 100 white; also the Hitchings and Co. sweepstakes silver cup. Champion, the fine scarlet of the F. Dorner & Sons Co., LaFayette, Ind., was away to the front in this color, and had every appearance of being a contender with Beacon for first place in the scarlet class. Mrs. C. W. Ward was again the leader in the rose pink color, and this variety was never shown in any better, if as good shape by so many different growers as at this exhibition. Rosette was also in elegant shape from a large number of exhibitors; the advancement this variety has attained as to color and stem was most marked. Pink Delight was first and second in the light pink class, and there were two or three vases that were close up to the winners. Cottage Maid, the light pink sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward, was another striking vase of flowers in this class. Miss Alice Coombs, from A. Roper, Tewksbury, Mass., was awarded the A. C. S. silver medal. This same exhibitor has also another very promising light pink seedling under number 316, which was awarded the S. A. F. bronze medal. The S. A. F. silver medal went to Bassett and Washburn, Chicago, for their fine scarlet variety, Belle Washburn, which has all the qualities of a fine commercial variety. Several new exhibitors proved to be among the leaders for the elegant quality of the blooms shown, notably A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., who staged some of the best stock of the standard varieties, and was a leading prize winner, his vase of Gorgeous being the best of that variety.

John A. Nelson, Framingham, Mass., was another new exhibitor who carried away many of the honors. Strouts, Inc., Biddeford, Maine, also exhibited some magnificent blooms, their vases of Mrs. C. W. Ward, Benora and Beacon being particularly fine. The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., staged grand stock of Champion, Pocahontas, Yellow Prince and other standard varieties. F. Dorner & Sons Co. exhibited fine blooms of Pink Sensation and Good Cheer, two varieties that will be leaders another season, Good Cheer gaining lots of friends as a fine commercial rose pink, and Pink Sensation as a first class high grade variety. This firm had also a very pretty yellow seedling, No. 68-11, and a number of very promising looking seedlings in the other colors. The best Enchantress came from E. A. Richards, Greenfield, Mass. Gude Bros., Washington, D. C., also had a fine vase of Enchantress. S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mount Greenwood Cemetery Ass'n, Chicago; W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., and the United States Cut Flower Co., Elmira, N. Y., were also exhibitors who staged elegant stock.

Arawana from A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., looks to be a fine addition to the crimson class. Laura Weber from Chas. Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y., is a fine flesh pink variety. W. A. Dawson, Willimantic, Conn., has a fine red seedling, No. 565.

There were many fine table decorations of carnations by W. J. Palmer & Son, S. A. Anderson and other local florists, and miscellaneous exhibits included vases of Roses Rostand, Killarney Brilliant, Francis Scott Key, Ophelia and Prince E. C. de'Arenberg from F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., Roses Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia from the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Zvolanek sweet peas from Jerry Brookins & Son, Orchard Park, N. Y.; Spencer sweet peas from A. J. Stahelin, Redford, Mich.; white snapdragons from John Nelson, Framingham, Mass.; forget-me-nots from W. A. Hastings, Boston, Mass.; Buddleia Asiatica from S. J. The Business Meeting.

The large assembly room of the Iroquois hotel was crowded to excess when President Goddard called the members to order promptly at eight o'clock Wednesday evening, and keen interest in the proceedings was manifest at all times. The president's address and reports of officers being duly presented, invitations for the next meeting were read from St. Louis, Mo., Indianapolis, Ind., and Philadelphia, Pa. The officers nominated for the ensuing year were: Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind., for president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ills., for vice president; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind., for secretary; F. E. Dorner, LaFayette, Ind., for treasurer; Eugene Dailledouze and C. S. Strout for directors and R. Witterstaetter and W. J. Palmer for judges, making contest only in the case of directors, where there is but one vacancy. There was a brisk discussion of the best material for cuttings, in which Peter Fisher, Eugene Dailledouze, C. W. Johnson, F. E. Dorner, Joseph H. Hill, Wallace R. Pierson, C. S. Strout and R. S. Brown, participated, but the question seems to remain an open one.

At Thursday's session the officers and judges nominated the evening previous were duly elected and C. S. Strout was elected director in place of Eugene Dailledouze, retiring. St. Louis, Mo., was chosen for the next annual meeting and exhibition.

President Goddard's Address.

Gentlemen, fellow members of the American Carnation Society: As the twenty-fourth president of this society, it gives me pleasure to welcome you at this convention in the city of Buffalo. To Vice-president Anderson and the local florists' clubs are due the thanks of the society for their untiring efforts in working to make this convention the success I am sure it will prove to be. To Secretary Baur is also due the same appreciation and confidence of the society. No member except he be an officer of the society can form any idea of the amount of work the secretary has to perform. The carnation register that Mr. Baur and Mr. Dorner are compiling will be of inestimable value to the society in years to come, and I hope that some action will be taken at their completion looking toward the preservation of these records, to protect them from fire or other such destructive causes. Next year our society enters upon its quarter century of existence, a period showing achievements performed never dreamed of by its founders, and I would suggest that suitable recognition be taken to celebrate this event; something added to the premium list that would make it noteworthy could well be arranged.

Previous presidents have called attention to the small membership in our society, compared to the hosts engaged in growing carnations, but no specific way has ever been devised or recommended whereby we have increased our membership to any extent. Thousands are engaged in growing carnations commercially, either as a side line or specialty, and I am sure that we can get our due proportion if we have some influential members to personally present to these growers the benefits they and we jointly shall derive by their joining with the American Carnation Society. Why not have appointed one member in each state or section of the country, whose duty it shall be to induce all eligible to become members? Let us all endeavor to help increase the membership to at least 500 on our silver anniversary.

Vice-President American Carnation Society.

The American Carnation Society is recognized as the best managed special floricultural society in this country, its influence is far reaching and I am of the opinion that some pressure should be brought to bear on disseminators of carnations whereby they will be induced to use greater care in selection of stock. I know they are obliged to handle thousands of cuttings when sending out a novelty, as the demand for a winner is tremendous. Nowadays on nearly every new variety we invest in we get 25 per cent of unhealthy stock which either throw semi-double, curly or off-colored flowers. If they cannot meet the demand at present prices why not set a price whereby they can meet them and give us guaranteed stock? I believe we should demand guaranteed stock the same in carnations as on insecticides or fertilizers.

The carnation has been under a very severe test this season, much more so than during any previous year. Some growers claim that it is losing its popularity with the flower buying public. I cannot agree with this view. It is as popular as ever, if not more so. It is still "everybody's flower," and if it is put on the market, or into the buyer's home as fresh as possible, it will not be replaced by any other flower. It often happens that blooms are old when they are cut, and are ready for the ash barrel instead of the drawing room. It is in our own province to make or destroy the popularity of the carnation.

Some few years ago the society had an honorary membership. For some reason or other this has been dropped, and I would recommend that the names originally on the list be again added, or if this cannot be done under our present rules, that the by-laws be amended, incorporating honorary membership. Another recommendation I would like to make is that assistant judges be appointed to serve with our regular judges. Oftentimes some regular judge is absent and an outsider has to be called in to take his place. If assistants were in attendance they could take the place of the absent member, or in case of a deadlock, as often happens, they could be relied upon to give sound judgment based upon practical knowledge gained while serving with experts. We all can judge by comparison, but it takes the expert to score on points the new varieties that are entered for the American Carnation Society's and other medals.

You will be called upon at this meeting to consider at your deliberations the question of affiliation with the Society of American Florists, to accept or reject membership on the board of directors of that society, and I earnestly hope that every member who has views on this vital subject will express them at this time.

In closing I wish to express my thanks to the trade press for the many courtesies extended to the officers of the society during the past year. To the members of the society who have shown such enthusiasm in our exhibition by setting up such a magnificent display of carnations I extend my sincere thanks. Our society cannot help but prosper while the members continue to back up its officers the way they have done here at Buffalo.

Secretary Baur's Report.

Your secretary begs leave to report on the past year's work as follows:

We are pleased to report a substantial increase in the membership this year, there now being 318 annual members and 12 life members enrolled and in good standing. During the past year there have been added 38 new members, in addition to 13 delinquents, who have been reinstated under the plan adopted in 1912. After deducting those who are now delinquent for the year 1913, we have a net increase of 33 over last year.

We have collected money as follows:

Dues	$671.00
Advertising	145.44
Dorner memorial fund	5.00
Miscellaneous	44.23
Total	$865.67

All of this has been turned over to the treasurer and his receipt taken therefor, except $121.68, which came in while the audit was being taken. The $5 collected for the Dorner memorial fund was transferred to the general fund, to replace part of the amount taken out of that fund, to make the even $1,000 needed to draw $40 interest per annum. The books of the secretary and treasurer were audited by a professional accountant, as has been customary. The auditor's report will follow the reading of the treasurer's report, and we are pleased to note that he found the books in first-class order and the society's finances sound and in very good shape. All bills are being paid promptly and no accounts have been lost, except from delinquent members.

The annual report was issued on schedule time and distributed to the members. The same is true of the program and the schedule of premiums for this meeting. We secured 22 pages of advertising for this schedule, which we consider very good, considering that this advertising had to be solicited just when the worst of the present business depression was on.

Twelve seedling varieties and three sports have been registered with this society since the last annual report was issued. Besides these, the Perpetual Flowering Carnation Society of England reports sixteen registrations. A system of changing registrations at frequent intervals has been adopted by the secretaries of the two societies, with a view to prevent duplication of names, but there has as yet been no way found to prevent sports which are identical from being given different names in this country and Europe. In time, when the new varieties will be imported as well as exported, this problem will present itself for solution. At this time, what confusion there is, is all on the other side, as few European varieties have thus far found their way over here. Suggestions for handling this situation will be in order.

J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, Ill.
Vice-President Elect American Carnation Society.

We are still working on the carnation register. We are pleased to report that while our present plan for gathering data entails considerable labor, it is bringing results. It will be only a question of time, and we will have the register as complete as it is possible to make it at this time, and the data will be authentic. We wish here to thank the trade press for assistance in this work, especially in locating parties who have moved away from the addresses from which the registrations were made.

The arrangements for this meeting were planned along the same lines as those followed at Cleveland last year, and with the same degree of success. The local committee took hold with a will and has done its part splendidly. To our worthy vice-president, S. A. Anderson, is due especial credit. To the growers who supplied the blooms used in the table displays is due the society's thanks. The splendid success achieved, so far as we have gone with this department, should stimulate expansion and if the exhibits could be diversified in a practical manner, it would be well to do so. We would like our retail members to offer suggestions along this line.

The board of directors held its usual meeting immediately following the last convention, also the regular midsummer meeting at the S. A. F. & O. H. meeting place, which took place in Boston, Mass., August 22. At the Boston meeting, the secretary was instructed to purchase whatever blooms might be needed for the table displays, in addition to those secured from the disseminators of new varieties. Blooms of three varieties were purchased, with the idea of having the retail display cover about the same range of colors as is found in our section A.

As per arrangement made with the New York Florists' Club, we took charge of the entries and the staging of the carnation section of the International flower show, held in New York March 21-28, 1914. A splendid exhibit of carnation blooms was staged by both commercial growers and private gardeners, the large groups, covering 150 square feet of space being the finest arrangements of carnations ever seen in this country. A report of the awards will be read at this meeting.

PROMINENT MEN IDENTIFIED WITH THE AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY CONVENTION AT BUFFALO, N. Y.

Awards.

SECTION A.

Open to all varieties, seedling and standard sorts.

Vase 100 blooms, white—Cottage Gardens Co., Queens, N. Y., first, with Matchless; Strout's, Biddeford, Me., second, with Matchless.

Vase 100 blooms, flesh pink, being those shades of flesh or salmon color—A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., first with Pink Delight; Strout's, second with Pink Delight.

Vase 100 blooms, light pink, being those shades of pink verging on the true pink, and not lighter than Gloriosa nor darker than Winsor—A. Roper, Tewksbury, Mass., first with Miss Alice Coombs; S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass., second with Gloriosa.

Vase 100 blooms medium pink, including any variety darker than Winsor, but not darker than Mrs. C. W. Ward—Cottage Gardens Co., first with Mrs. C. W. Ward; A. A. Pembroke, second with Philadelphia.

Vase 100 blooms dark pink, being darker than Mrs. Ward and including all so-called cerise not dark enough to be classed as red—A. A. Pembroke, first with Rosette; Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Ass'n, Chicago, second with Rosette.

Vase 100 blooms red or scarlet, to include all shades generally included in those colors—The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., first with Champion; F. Dorner & Sons Co., LaFayette, Ind., second with Champion.

Vase 100 blooms crimson, to cover those shades known as crimson or maroon—The E. G. Hill Co. first, with Pocahontas; A. A. Pembroke, second with Princess Dagmar.

Vase 100 blooms yellow or yellow variegated—The E. G. Hill Co., first with Yellow Prince; F. Dorner & Sons Co., second with Seedling No. 68-11.

Vase 100 blooms, white variegated—Strout's, first with Benora; A. A. Pembroke, second with Benora.

SECTION B.

Open to all varieties disseminated prior to July, 1914, 50 blooms to each vase.

White Enchantress—John A. Nelson, Framingham, Mass., first; A. A. Pembroke, second.

White Wonder—John A. Nelson, first; A. A. Pembroke, second.

Any other white—A. A. Pembroke, first with Matchless; S. J. Goddard, second with White Perfection.

Enchantress Supreme — Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., first; Ernest Saunders, Lewiston, Me., second.

Pink Delight—A. A. Pembroke, first; John A. Nelson, second.

Any other flesh pink—E. A. Richards, Greenfield, Mass., first with Enchantress; Gude Bros., Washington, D. C., second with Enchantress.

Gloriosa—S. J. Goddard, first; A. A. Pembroke, second.

Any other light pink—Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., first with Winsor.

Mrs. C. W. Ward—Strout's, first; W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, N. Y., second.

Rosette—A. A. Pembroke, first; S. J. Goddard, second.

Any other dark pink—A. A. Pembroke, first with Gorgeous.

Beacon—Strout's, first; E. Saunders, second.

Any other scarlet—A. A. Pembroke, first with Champion; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., second with A. Comfort.

Pocahontas—Strout's, first; E. Saunders, second.

Any other crimson—A. A. Pembroke, first with Princess Dagmar.

Benora—J. A. Nelson, first; A. A. Pembroke, second.

Yellow Prince—A. A. Pembroke, first; S. J. Goddard, second.

Any other yellow or yellow variegated—S. J. Goddard, first.

SECTION C.

For varieties disseminated in the season of 1913-14, 50 blooms to each vase.

Matchless, premium offered by Cottage Gardens Co.—A. A. Pembroke, first; Strout's, second.

Gorgeous, premium offered by Peter Fisher—A. A. Pembroke, first; S. J. Goddard, second.

Champion, premium offered by F. Dorner & Sons Co.—Strout's, first; A. A. Pembroke, second.

Princess Dagmar, premium offered by Patten & Co.—A. A. Pembroke, first; S. J. Goddard, second.

Philadelphia Pink, premium offered by S. S. Skidelsky & Co.—A. A. Pembroke, first; Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., second.

SECTION D.

The American Carnation Society medals.

Second best vase, 100 blooms, any variety; must score not less than 88 points, silver medal—A. Roper, with Miss Alice Coombs.

SPECIAL S. A. F. MEDALS.

For undisseminated varieties of American origin.

Best vase of 50 blooms, any color; must score not less than 88 points, silver medal—Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, with Belle Washburn.

Second best vase in this class; must score not less than 86 points, bronze medal—A. Roper with Seedling 316.

FRED DORNER MEMORIAL MEDAL.

Vase 100 blooms of any undisseminated seedling carnation (sports not admissible). The variety must have been in cultivation not less than three years and must score not less than 85 points, gold medal—A. Roper with Miss Alice Coombs.

Preliminary competition for Dorner Memorial medal—Chas. Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y., with Laura Weber; F. Dorner & Sons Co., Seedling 53-11; John Steidle, Olivette, Mo., with Sunbeam; A. Roper, with Seedling 316.

SECTION E.

Certificates of merit, 85 points necessary—W. A. Dawson, Willimantic, Conn., for Seedling 565; Ed Winkler, Wakefield, Mass., for Morning Glow; Littlefield & Wyman, No. Abington, Mass., for Miss Theo and No. 44-11.

SECTION F—SPECIAL PREMIUMS.

Vase holding in best condition to the end of the exhibition, premium offered by Fred Burki—A. A. Pembroke, with Rosette.

Section A—Sweepstakes, Hitchings & Co.'s prize—Awarded to Cottage Gardens Co. with Matchless.

Convention Notes.

Fred Lautenschlager, of Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, found strong demand for his souvenir carnation measures.

B. Hammond Tracy and wife, of Wenham, Mass., are at the Iroquois during the meeting.

A large party visited the Palmer greenhouses at Lancaster, N. Y., Thursday afternoon.

J. A. Valentine, of Denver, Colo., went on to New York, from the convention city.

Prof. J. F. Cowell, of Buffalo, left for Porto Rico after the convention.

Carnations From Field to the Present Time

Paper by Charles B. Herr, Strasburg, Pa., read before the Lancaster County Florists' Association, December 17, 1914.

This to my mind is a wide subject and has been written on repeatedly. To some of you it is no doubt "threadbare." We plant out the young plants from pots to the field, as early in May as we can, in rows twenty inches apart and eleven inches in the row, cultivating them with a hand harrow after every rain, and in dry season keep the harrow moving. The topping in the field can not be done too carefully; not waiting until a great number are ready. There may be in the first topping only a few hundred. All season we are trying to keep the plants down, never allowing them to get too high, as we find the high, leggy plants (as we may term them) are more liable to be hardwooded and have more dead foliage. Of course those high topped plants look larger (when they really are not) because they have less side shoots. Again you all know different varieties must be topped accordingly, but never allowed to get too high.

In preparing the houses for planting in time, which with us is the last week of August, we clean out all the soil and give the houses a thoroughly cleaning, whitewashing the sides of benches, the bottom boards are taken out, swept clean, and then floated in lime water, then are carried by forks on tracks to dry in the sun. After they are dry, we place as many on a pile as a man can readily carry. Next they are again taken back to their places and put on piles of four each. In that way they do not warp as they would if spread over the benches. We leave them on piles until we are ready to fill in the soil. In placing the bottom boards we allow a small space between each board, using excelsior to cover over cracks to keep the manure from falling through. The benches are then ready for the soil. I can say here, that by treating the bench boards in this way, we have been using a great many of the same boards ever since I have been in business, which is fourteen years.

We do not sieve or screen the soil, as we once did, but by handling it over two or three times and watching the clods when loading the barrows, we get it into good shape. By screening your soil, if you are not very careful, you will find a great deal of your best soil and manure wasted. I know it was so in our case. After the benches are filled with soil, we water them just enough for nice planting. Before planting, we shade the houses, and after planting three or four hundred, we water them and keep watering over and over to be sure the soil is saturated through. After that only giving them a light spraying two or three times a day, depending very much on the kind of weather we are having at the time. Ever trying to get the soil back to its normal condition, yet never allowing the plants to get too dry until they are well established, being very careful not to let drafts of air blow over them, for if they are once wilted, it will take some time to get them back to their normal condition again.

We take all the buds off when planting them in, and in fact, for some time after they are housed. Beacon for one will start a great many buds very soon after housing, with very short stems. I must say right here Beacon truly is a grand carnation, a free bloomer, fine habit of growth, and carries out to the end of the season with me, which last season was to the end of July, and so long as it does that for us we surely will not drop it. My argument is you are only taxing your plants when you allow them to bloom right after housing, as you are only getting flowers on very short stems and receiving very little money for them. Get your plants in good healthy condition and well established, then they will be ready for work when the flowers bring you more money. Just as soon as the plants are established, we put on the first wire and tie. I really think the carnation loses time if not kept tied up properly, and the less you handle them the better they like it.

The new varieties we are growing this season are Gorgeous, Matchless and Philadelphia. Gorgeous with us surely is a wonderful stem maker, with fine habit of growth, and has every promise of being a fine carnation. Matchless up to the present time has done very well. It, too, is a vigorous grower. If there is anything we could criticise, it would be the shortness of its stem. Philadelphia is a wonderful plant maker and a very clean grower. With us so far it has been a bit slow, but at present is full of buds. My experience has been, that after growing the new varieties the second year they prove themselves so much better from the first, that I think we do them an injustice in being too severe in our criticisms. For instance, the first year we grew Mrs. C. W. Ward, it was very short in stems and very uneven on the benches. In fact, we were not very much pleased with it, excepting the form and color of the flowers. Today its habit of growth and length of stem class it among our best.

In addition to the older varieties we are growing Supreme, Pink Delight, Benora and White Perfection, which are all doing well. We will drop Perfection another season, because of its tendency to give so many split flowers, and grow Matchless instead. Up to this time we have not cut one split flower from Matchless, of which we have one thousand. Supreme we will retain, and drop the others by reason of having too many varieties in this color.

Wood Ashes Valuable Potash Source.

If the European war should cause our large annual imports of potash to dwindle, many growers will look to wood ashes among other substances to replenish the potash supply. While the amount of wood ashes that a grower could accumulate on his own land would hardly ever be sufficient to supply his need for potash, nevertheless if they are carefully stored and not permitted to leach, they may be of considerable value to him, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. Wood ashes are now a factor in Canada, being considered a regular commercial commodity, and the large lumber mills and other plants using wood or sawdust for fuel in this country which at present make no use of the ashes from their furnaces or waste piles may find it profitable to store and sell them if the demand warrants it.

Wood ashes may be profitably applied as a top dressing to grass land and to pastures where they will encourage the growth of clover and better kinds of grasses which will then crowd out inferior kinds and weeds. Wood ashes may be also used for corn and roots. Because of their lime content they are not so good for potatoes although sometimes used for this crop. In New England, where growers have to look more carefully to the renewing of old soils than in some of the newer sections of the country, wood ashes have long been appreciated. Ashes indirectly increase the available nitrogen of the organic matter in the soil, and have been known to do excellent service in Europe on drained moorland.

Besides the potash, ashes contain other ingredients which are of value to plants; namely, about one or two per cent of phosphoric acid, a little magnesia, and a great deal of lime. The importance of these last-named elements is made plain by the esteem in which leached ashes are held by some of our growers, although from leached ashes all but a very small portion of the potash has been washed out. The grower who wishes to restore potash to the soil by the use of ashes should take great care that they are kept dry, and are not allowed to leach at all.

Ashes from hardwoods (deciduous trees) are richer in both phosphorus and potash than those from pines and other softwoods (conifers). Ashes from oak, elm, maple and hickory have more potash than those from pine. The ashes of twigs (faggots for example) are worth more for agricultural purposes than the ashes of heart-wood taken from the middle of an old tree. In general, the smaller and younger the wood burned, the better ashes. The ashes of coal do not contain enough potash to make them valuable in this connection. Ordinary house ashes contain on the average about eight or nine per cent of potash and two per cent of phosphoric acid. Investigators have considered that there is enough potash and phosphoric acid in a bushel of ashes to make it worth 20 or 25 cents. Besides that, some 10 to 15 cents additional might be allowed for the "alkali power" of the ashes. This power is that which enables ashes to rot weeds and to ferment peat. Of course, prices vary with local conditions. If wood ashes are purchased, the farmer should assure himself that they have neither been contaminated with coal ashes, nor adulterated with leached ashes. These facts determined that the place of burning has no effect on the value of the ashes as fertilizer. They are equally satisfactory whether taken from a stove, a fireplace or a bonfire.

POTASH IN ASHES OF COTTONSEED HULLS.

The hulls of cotton seed, according to specialists, yield ashes which contain from 18 to 30 per cent of potash and from 5 to 10 per cent of phosphoric acid. Cotton-hull ashes, therefore, as a fertilizer are much more concentrated than ordinary wood ashes. As a matter of fact, in the opinion of some investigators, the ashes from cottonseed hulls contain such a large proportion of potash that they might do considerable harm to crops if they were used in large quantities. These ashes have been used with advantage for manuring tobacco. They have in times past brought as much as $35 or $40 a ton in New England. One objection to the use of these ashes is their liability to vary widely in composition. This lack of uniformity is due to the fact that they are burned as fuel at the oil-factories in conjunction with wood or coal. Those lightest in color have been considered the richest in potash by certain investigators.

Agricultural Extension Appropriations.

Of great importance to farmers is the Smith-Lever agricultural extension law. This grants federal appropriations for farm extension work, and it is believed will double the productiveness of American farms, according to the Chicago Herald. Each state is given an initial appropriation of $10,000, which is to be used by the state agricultural colleges, and the sum will be increased year by year. It will carry directly to the farm the scientific discoveries of the department of agriculture and the state agricultural colleges.

Among the important measures for the farmer put into effect during the year were the following:

To fight diseases of forest or ornamental trees—$40,000.

For farmers' co-operative demonstration work outside of the cotton belt—$400,000.

For co-operative demonstrations and to carry on the campaign against the ravages of the cotton boll weevil—$298,000.

To improve the method of collecting data relative to agricultural industries, including the acreage, yield and value of farm products—$32,000.

For co-operation with the states in the inspection of Irish potatoes where quarantine has been established by the secretary of agriculture—$50,000.

For the improvement of crop production under semi-arid and dry-land conditions—$30,000.

For experiments with new and rare seeds, looking to the improvement of grasses, alfalfa, clover and other forage crops—$166,500.

To complete the organization and expand the field work of the office of markets—$150,000.

Sowing Fern Spores.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Please advise what time fern spores should be sown to produce 2½-inch stock in November. I mean table ferns; also give a list of kinds most suitable for this work. E. E.

During the month of January is the best time to sow fern spores in preparation for good stock to be used next autumn, for some species are rather slow in the early stages of growth, the aspidiums requiring a longer time than the pteris in order to reach a useful size. Among the most satisfactory species and varieties for this purpose are the following: Aspidium tsussimense, Cyrtomium falcatum, Pteris cretica albo-lineata, P. Wilsonii, P. adiantoides, P. Mayii and P. Wimsetti. W. H. T.

JOHNSTOWN, PA.—Bruce Walker and his brother, George Walker, who recently purchased the greenhouses and flower store of William Schmidt, expect to open their place February 1, presenting to the public a model establishment.

MOBILE, ALA.—What is planned to be one of the greatest features of the Mardi Gras celebration this year is the agricultural, horticultural and fruit exhibition, preparations for which are now being made on an elaborate scale in the remodeling of the interior of the Alba building on North Royal street.

Asters in Design Work.

SEE SUPPLEMENT WITH THIS ISSUE.

The aster is one of the most popular of the summer flowers, it being so largely grown and in such a variety of colors, that it can be obtained in quantity at all times, in its season. The quality of the flowers has been much improved in recent years, until the select stock resembles the medium sized chrysanthemums. The rich purple, the lavender and the white, are colors much in demand, particularly for funerals, many beautiful effects being possible in design work and sprays. Nothing is more attractive for the wreath than the rich purple aster, arranged in combination with ivy leaves and sprays; it is especially appropriate for the funeral of an elderly person. The same on a foundation of prepared bronze magnolia or oak leaves is also very effective. Another made on a background of crested fern fronds, Smithii or elegantissima, is much admired.

It is always well to leave a portion of the ground or underwork to show as a part of the finished wreath. Many handsome wreaths are made of ivy, magnolia or other like foliage and a spray of asters laid on, or worked in, to have the same effect. In this case only half the form is covered with the spray, which is finished with a bow of ribbon, the ends woven in with the flowers. Crescent wreaths, all of asters one half lavender, the other purple, a full round wreath of all purple with a large spot of valley, or Sweetheart roses, or such a combination of other suitable flowers is sure to attract attention. Large crescent or round wreaths to be placed on easels can be made to look more important by the addition of two or three long sago leaves. These are placed as if pulled through from the top and fastened to the back of the bottom; they fill up the center space which can be further ornamented with asters of the same or another color, worked loosely on the front of the palms near the bottom. The pink, and pink and white in combination, also make up beautifully in wreaths for the funerals of younger persons. Gauze ribbon or chiffon bands add a finish to this lighter work.

St. Valentine's Day.

This busy, sentimental anniversary is fast becoming one of the important flower days of the year. St. Valentine in looking about for something to help him could find nothing more lovely than flowers, so that for this day at least, lovely flowers are almost exclusively used to carry the messages of love and affection.

While just the blossoms themselves are beautiful they can be made more symbolic of the day and their mission, by the skill of the artist in their arrangement into dainty bunches and clusters, which are then delivered in heart-shaped boxes, tied with ribbons and gilt arrows, which stamps them at once as a gift from St. Valentine. Corsages of violets, combined with lily of the valley or orchids or gardenias, or of lily of the valley and gardenias or orchids and lily of the valley or just gardenias, are all very choice and sure to be admired. All should be properly ribboned, with miniature gilt or red hearts attached. Roses, particularly Sweethearts, or the small Wards, make up into beautiful clusters for the corsage. The forget-me-nots are ideal with either Sweetheart or Ward roses. A useful and quickly arranged shield that should accompany every bouquet to be worn is made of a sheet of wax paper in a number of folds so as to lie flat and when tied to the back of the bunch is invisible from the front and protects the dress perfectly. All corsage bouquets should have in addition to the best quality ribbon ties or cords, one or two good quality pins. St. Valentine wants the best and should have it.

Very often the best flowers just as they are, is the order; these should be very nicely arranged in a proper box. Many very pretty boxes suitable for long-stemmed roses with decorations emblematic of the day are now offered to the trade and can be seen in all up-to-date stores. When arranged in such boxes, almost any kind of flowers are appropriate for the day. The addition of a flower or two with a sprig of pussy willow and a couple of gilt arrows on the outside gives the package a very attractive appearance.

The supply men are alive with ideas running mostly to heart-shaped baskets and hampers in various combinations; some with handles, made in various colors and of more or less expensive materials and finish. All of these admit of great latitude in filling, some being plain and simple, while others can be made quite elaborate to suit the purse of the purchaser. Plants, particularly those in flower, are suitable for such gifts. Azaleas, cyclamens, daffodils, bulb pans of tulips and hyacinths, in suitable basket covers or done up with mats, or paper and appropriate ribbon bows, with small gilt or embossed hearts pinned on, all possess the necessary St. Valentine quality.

Valentine Day dinners are getting to be quite the vogue and give the artist an opportunity to show his skill in arrangements appropriate for the occasion. Plateaus in the shape of hearts of red roses or red carnations make appropriate centers, with corsages for the ladies and gardenias for the gentlemen at the plates. Hollow or outline hearts of violets on the table, with the roses in vases rising from the center to above the line of vision, make a pretty and graceful decoration. Heart-shaped hampers filled to overflowing, the flowers trailing out on the cloth, can be arranged to make a beautiful table.

From this time on Valentine's Day should be kept constantly in mind, so that all should be in perfect readiness. The windows should tell of the approaching visit of St. Valentine; it should be prominently to the front, both in the window and in the store. The day before is no time, the week before is even too late, two weeks is better, every day of publicity bears its fruit. Newspaper space is expensive, but where there is the necessary courage to take the step, it is nearly always found to pay.

Flowers promise to be in good supply for the middle of February. Push their sale for this occasion; make it a real flower day and have something distinctive, a creation of your own that will not be seen elsewhere. It will add to your prestige as an artist, and will pay.

WREATH OF ASTERS AND MAGNOLIA LEAVES.

State Beautiful Campaign in Missouri.

An interesting campaign to beautify public roads, parks, church, school and cemetery grounds is being carried on by Frank W. Buffum, Missouri's highway commissioner, in connection with his activity for better highways. In Mr. Buffum's home town of Louisiana, Mo., the Stark Bros. Nurseries are located and he has observed that at the close of every shipping season the nursery people burned from 50,000 to 60,000 young fruit trees that had not been sold. He induced the nursery firm to give him those trees for distribution to towns and counties which would agree to plant and look after them. The freight is the sole expense to those applying for them.

As a result of this idea many miles of tree-bordered highways can be seen in the counties of northern-central Missouri. They are planted 70 to the mile on each side of the road. County courts or persons asking for the trees are notified that they will be expected to look after them carefully; this means that the weeds are to be kept down, the trees regularly sprayed and in dry weather the proper mulch created for the roots. Where no interest is shown in protecting the trees the commissioner does not repeat the gift.

The care of the trees by county courts will in time more than repay the early expenditure of labor, and the produce, Mr. Buffum figures, will yield a surplus to be devoted to road improvement. No complaint has been made that the fruit has been appropriated by the general public. The public is appreciative of an enterprise of that kind and will nearly always respect it. It is expected, of course, that the occasional tourist will help himself by the wayside to the fruit that he needs for the moment, and anyone who would steal the fruit to sell would steal as readily from a private orchard.

Cincinnati.

SUPPLY FINDS READY SALE.

The supply is still comparatively small and nearly all receipts find a ready sale. The demand for stock is active and steady, and is serving to keep the market cleaned up fairly well. Roses are the one best seller, the supply being limited, while the call for them is very good. More could have been used last week. American Beauties are doing well as far as sales are concerned. The carnation cut is a little larger than last week. However, all good receipts sell readily. The lily list includes Easter lilies, callas and rubrums and all are proving good property. Lily of the valley has a fair market. Double violets move slowly. Narcissi are selling better than they did for a while. Other offerings include single violets, orchids, sweet peas, jonquils, freesias and Roman hyacinths. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

Miss M. M. Carroll was the guest of honor at a recent surprise party at the Hotel Gibson, tendered by a few of her business associates in honor of her third year in "business harness" alone. Miss Carroll was presented with a beautiful token in silver and stated that her prospects in business are as bright as the silver.

C. E. Critchell and wife and R. Witterstaetter, left January 26 for the American Carnation Society meeting at Buffalo, N. Y.

Tom Joy, of Nashville, Tenn., was in the city last week.

C. E. Critchell has been getting some very fine rubrum lilies from Hoffmeister Floral Co. H.

Tarrytown Horticultural Society.

The monthly meeting of the Tarrytown Horticultural Society was held Wednesday evening, January 20, and a large attendance of the old members was on hand to welcome the new president, Wm. Jamison, who was in the chair. As the monthly prize was to be awarded for the best flowering plant, a good many well-grown plants were exhibited, A. Weeks capturing first prize with a fine specimen of Chorizema coradatum splendens. Some very good primulas and cyclamens were shown by T. Morris, W. Jamison, J. Elliott and G. McIntosh. H. Nicholls was awarded a certificate of merit for seedling Dracæna Glenview, a cross between amabilis and terminalis. A very lively discussion followed the examination of exhibits, by J. Bradley, J. Mooney, T. Morris, Wm. Scott and other members of the society. It was very gratifying to note the large attendance at this meeting.

BUSINESS CONTINUES GOOD.

There has been a heavy run on funeral work, and an abundance of social functions during the past two weeks has made business very good. The cold weather has checked the rose crop, and there is a scarcity in carnations just at present. Red roses are very scarce, and there are not enough Richmonds to supply the demand. Yellow roses are very popular, especially the Sunburst and Hillingdon varieties. There is the midwinter supply of flowers in variety, such as tulips, jonquils, daffodils, sweet peas and snapdragons. Easter lilies as well as callas are abundant, and find a big call in funeral work. There is a fine assortment of blooming plants on the market.

NOTES.

The Flick Floral Company had charge of the extensive decorations for the opening of the new Palace vaudeville theatre January 25. The decorations consisted principally of quantities of American Beauty roses and southern smilax. This firm had charge of the decorations for the Fee-Heit wedding, which was a society event January 5. Killarney roses, banks of ferns and southern smilax formed the house decorations. A novelty feature was the charming hats filled with Sunburst roses and tied with long Sunburst ribbons carried by the bridesmaids. The bride's bouquet was of lily of the valley and orchids made in colonial style.

The Vesey greenhouses are cutting some splendid Madame Shawyer roses. Their orchids have been producing some fine flowers this winter.

F. Johnson of the Johnson Floral Co. of Kendallville, Ind., was a recent visitor.

Lanternier Bros. have been extremely busy with funeral work.

Nebraska State Florists' Society.

The Nebraska State Florists' Society, in conjunction with the Nebraska State Horticultural Society held their annual meeting at Lincoln, Neb., January 19. Both societies made a very creditable display of flowers and fruits. C. H. Frey, especially, showed a fine lot of roses and carnations. His seedling Nebraska attracted the attention of the florists in general. E. C. Pruner representing Poehlman Bros. Co., Chicago, displayed a nice lot of new roses and carnations. Carnation Sensation was much admired. Good papers were delivered by J. R. Wilson, of Des Moines, Ia.; Irwin Frey, of Lincoln; C. H. Green, Fremont; Chas. Stewart, Omaha; L. Henderson, Omaha; Ed. Williams, Grand Island. The State Horticultural Society decided to let the florists "paddle their own canoe," giving them their share of money allowed by the state for premiums on plants and cut flowers exhibited at the state fairs, and let the florists make up their own premium list as they see fit. The florists gave a banquet, January 19, at the Lindell Hotel, separate from the horticulturists and being the first one, it certainly was a good one. J. J. Hess, of Omaha, suggested to form one florists' society of Iowa and Nebraska, to be able to get the 100 members or more which will enable the society to have a representative on the board of directors of the S. A. F. & O. H. J. J. Hess was elected first vice-president of the State Horticultural Society for the ensuing year. Ed. Williams, of Grand Island, was reelected president and L. Henderson, of Omaha, was reelected secretary of the Nebraska State Florists' Society. C. H. Frey invited the visiting florists to inspect his greenhouses and his hopitality was accepted. All the florists expressed themselves very flatteringly as to the quality of cut flowers and plants Mr. Frey is growing.

Montreal.

Trade since last week has been quiet at times, but with some very busy days interspersed. Funeral work when it comes seems to come in heavily. The number of prominent men, especially retired military men, dying, is remarkable, and reading the nerve-racking war news appears to be the cause. The supply of cut blooms is fully up to the demand, and if it were not for the periodical call for funeral work there would be an over supply. The quality, especially of roses, has greatly improved lately. There is little call for flowering plants, but considerable demand for ferns and fern dishes, the local fern growers being sold out again. This was reported last fall, later denied, but now admitted.

NOTES.

H. B. Cowan, of Peterborough, president of the Canadian Horticultural Association, has offered a trophy for competition among florists' and gardeners' clubs of Canada. The award will be based upon increasing public interest in horticulture, increasing the size and efficiency of the clubs, encouraging essays, holding exhibitions, etc.

The local seedsmen seem to be able to supply seed the same as usual. Their catalogues are out, promising all the latest novelties, and a full line, at the same prices as usual.

The war has caused one member of the Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club to fight for the king. It was decided to keep him in good standing until his return.

R. Scott for the second time has made off with the best euchre prize.

At the February meeting a paper on perennials will be read.

TEXAS has requested of its state legislature an appropriation of $10,000 to start a range of greenhouses for experiment work in floriculture and other lines. If the appropriation is made it is understood the greenhouses will be located at the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, College Station, under the special direction of Prof. E. J. Kyle.

ONE of our correspondents called attention to an item in an English publication to the effect that Dutch firms were shipping lilac and other cut flowers to the United States and that where nursery stock and other raw materials imported from Holland provide work for American labor, cut flowers are a finished product and pay nothing to American labor, not even a selling commission.

American Sweet Pea Society.

The following additional prizes have been received:

The Thorburn prize—Silver cup, for the best 12 vases sweet peas, 12 Spencer varieties, 25 blooms to a vase.

The Lord & Burnham Co. prize (florist growers only)—A gold watch; for the best display of sweet peas.

Watkins & Simpson prize—Ten dollars, first prize, for the best six vases Spencer sweet peas, six varieties, 25 flowers to a vase.

The preliminary schedule is now ready for distribution and can be had on application.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

The nomenclature committee of the American Gladiolus Society has approved the application of Herman H. Baer, New Hyde Park, N. Y., to register the variety, Hyde Park, and the application of Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Iowa, to register Jack Frost, Pocahontas and Zingari. The varieties are described as follows:

Hyde Park (Baer). Color rosy white, becoming Rose Neyron red at the outer edges of the petals. Throat lemon yellow, slightly shaded deep rose pink, petals feathered same color, which is especially noticeable when grown under glass. Stamen filaments white with pink tips. Anthers white with lilac sutures. Bloom medium size; tube curved, slender, long. Segments unequal, connivent, the upper horizontal and broad, the lower reflexed and narrower. Midseason. Spike tall, erect, branched, often two spikes per corm. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth vigorous and well furnished with medium broad leaves. Corms medium large. Cormels prolific. Originated with H. Baer, New Hyde Park, Long Island, N. Y., and introduced in 1914 by Vaughan's Seed Store.

Jack Frost (Hoeg's No. 175). Color pure white, penciled Tyrian rose upon an amber white throat. Bloom medium large; tube nearly straight, stout, short. Segments unequal, connivent, the upper horizontal and broad, the lower reflexed and narrower. Midseason. Spike medium tall and erect. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth vigorous and well furnished with very broad leaves. Corms medium large. An excellent compact, white, of good substance. Originated with Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Iowa.

Pocahontas (Hoeg). Color amaranth red with a lemon yellow throat, blotched plum violet. Stamen filaments creamy white. Anthers violet. Bloom large, tube curved moderately slender and of medium length. Segments unequal, connivent, the upper horizontal and very broad, the lower reflexed and narrower. Season early September. Spike medium tall, erect, not branched, frequently two spikes per corm. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth good, well furnished with medium broad leaves. Corms medium large. The color of this variety is excellent, deep and attractive. The bloom is compact and has excellent substance. Originated with Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Iowa.

Zingari (Hoeg's No. 96). Color Rose Neyron red with the edges of the petals lighter, blotch carmine purple, with a dash of lemon yellow at the tip of the blotch. Stamen filaments white. Anthers lilac. Bloom medium size, tube curved, slender, long. Segments unequal, connivent, the upper horizontal and broad, the lower reflexed and narrower. Mid to late season. Spike medium short, erect, not branched, often two spikes per corm. A fair number of flowers per spike. Growth vigorous and well furnished with broad leaves. Corms medium size. A compact bloom of good substance. An especially good pink variety at the trial grounds. Originated with Dr. C. Hoeg, Decorah, Iowa.

New York Flower Show.

Announcement of dates for the third International flower show under the auspices of the Horticultural Society of New York and the New York Florists' Club, was made last week. The exposition will open Wednesday, March 17, in Grand Central Palace, New York, continuing until March 23, inclusive. Among the features this season will be a number of unusually fine exhibits which will be sent directly after the show to the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco—either the original plants and blossoms or (in the case of perishable flowers) duplicates being shipped across the country in refrigerated cars. Indications are that the list of exhibitors will be considerably greater this year than heretofore, several hundred private and trade entries being already promised. There will be much shown that is new, a number of horticulturists having produced varieties of plants during the past season that are especially notable.

F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown, N. Y., is chairman of the show; T. A. Havemeyer, vice-chairman; Frederic R. Newbold, treasurer, and John Young, secretary. The committee of the Horticultural Society includes F. R. Pierson, F. R. Newbold, T. A. Havemeyer, George V. Nash, Professor N. L. Britton, James N. Stuart, Joseph A. Manda and M. C. Ebel. The committee of the New York Florists' Club includes William H. Duckham, C. H. Totty, Frank H. Traendly, Julius Roehrs, W. H. Siebrecht, Sr., W. R. Pierson, F. L. Atkins, John Young and Rich G. Hollaman. Entries should be made through Secretary John Young, 53 West 28th street, New York.

National Botanical Garden.

The removal of the United States botanic garden, at Washington, D. C., to an exquisite spot in Rock Creek park, has been provided for in a bill introduced by Representative James L. Slayden, of Texas, chairman of the house committee on library, which proposes also to transfer control of the garden to the department of agriculture. This bill has been passed by the house and is now pending before the senate library committee.

It is hoped the government will confine the new botanic garden to its proper scientific functions and not make it a common nursery to provide congressmen and their friends with plants which can be purchased through commercial nurserymen and florists.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

At the invitation of F. Dorner & Sons Co., the February meeting of this association will be held Tuesday, February 2, at LaFayette. There will be visiting all day. Indianapolis members will leave the Terminal traction station in that city at 8:15 a. m. Since you will be an honored guest of F. Dorner & Sons for that day, kindly mail to Theo. Dorner, a card to arrive a day or two before the meeting, and advise him if you intend to be present.

AMERICAN FLORIST CO.
440 S. Dearborn St., CHICAGO.

Pittsburgh.

TRADE PROSPECTS GOOD.

We feel safe in saying that the market has improved to a very noticeable extent since the last writing, as the dark weather and continued snowstorms we have experienced the past week have cut down the supply of staple stock greatly. Consequently, prices are better, and prospects are they will stay "good" for some time to come, as the cold weather is evidently here to stay. There are just enough carnations and roses to go around, it seems. Sweet peas, white lilac, violets and lily of the valley abound in great quantities. Tulips are a prominent factor, as are also Dutch daffodils. Lilies remain as scarce as ever. The supply of green goods is limited, and more could be used.

NOTES.

Harris Bros. and George A. Manos were the victims of a swindling fellow-countryman recently, who used as a ruse his supposed influence to obtain for them a large funeral order. His spoils for about two hours' work amounted to $35.00.

Gidas and Pyros, the Oakland florists, expect to move their cut-flower department to an adjacent storeroom in the near future. They are at present handicapped for space to handle flowers in the right way.

Wm. Loew had the misfortune to fall from a high ladder recently, but the best he could show in return was a sprained wrist. He says he never had a bit of good luck in his life.

The new building of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. is rapidly nearing completion, and the firm will probably be in their new quarters in the early spring.

There has not been much talk of the American Carnation Society convention in our city, and but few have signified their intention of attending.

Word comes from Harrisburg that the state flower may be again changed within the near future. At present it is the white daisy.

C. Phillips has opened a flower shop at Forbes street and Dallas avenue, adjoining the Homewood cemetery.

John Martin, formerly in the wholesale trade in Pittsburgh, called on his old friends January 23.

Visitors: J. S. Hennon, New Castle, Pa.; Oscar Leistner, Chicago; L. M. Reiter, president, A. Leipsig, Inc., New York; A. Ransfelder, Manhattan Ribbon Co., New York.

J.

Oklahoma City.

We are having a touch of winter weather again; no snow or blizzards, just low temperature and clear sunshine through the middle of the day. Business has picked up quite a little and a more optimistic tone is noticed among the store-keepers.

John Stuppy of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., was a caller this week on his way home from an extended southern trip. J. W. Furrow took him to Guthrie in his automobile, where he spent the day, and from there he proceeded home.

S. S. B.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—A meeting of creditors of the Stiles Co. has been called for February 5. It is said the liabilities will exceed $7,000.

CHARLESTON, S. C.—T. T. Bolger has purchased the entire interest of the Bolger & Ernest Co., successors to Connelley-McCarty Co., and has removed to 88 Society street. In his new location he has one of the most modern and up-to-date flower shops in the South. Associated with him as designer he has Alex. S. Sawyer, formerly with Gude Bros., Washington, D. C.

ROSES

There is a great scarcity of Roses generally all over the country. However, our plants are just coming in crop with a splendid quality in all lengths of stem. The advantages of buying direct from a large grower are an even run of quality and the flowers all cut at the same time, also all grown under the best methods of production.

BEAUTIES

Our flowers are the finest coming into this market. The short stem Beauties we do not advise handling at this time of year.

EASTER LILIES

Large flowers on fine, long stems.

FANCY CARNATIONS

Our Carnation houses are the wonder of the trade. The flowers are so large and strong. We solicit orders and ask for a comparison in quality with any flowers in this market. Growing all the flowers we sell, our customers are getting the benefit of the best methods and careful handling in a large modern range of glass.

STOCK IS STILL SCARCE.

Stock is still scarce at this writing and from present indications it is likely to be so for another week or two. Zero weather has prevailed in this vicinity for almost a week and still continues at this writing, but the weather bureau predicts a slowly rising temperature to take effect soon. Business has been quite good considering the high prices that are being asked, especially the out-of-town demand which is unusually brisk. The local buyers are not buying in any great quantities unless they have orders for the stock, but as it is, the market is cleaned up well each day long before the stores close at night. Carnations are selling better than they have for a long time and $2.00 and $3.00 per 100 and in some instances $4.00 are easily obtained for the extra select stock. Roses are scarce and like last week short and medium stemmed flowers are sold as soon as they reach the store and the fancy grades also continue to sell better. Red roses are very scarce, especially Richmond and Miladv, but there seems to be more White Killarney arriving now than there were a week ago. A few Mrs. Chas. Russell roses are arriving but these are quickly disposed of at good prices. American Beauty roses are selling well and what stock arrives finds ready buyers. Tulips are more plentiful but are cleaning up fairly well each day. Jonquils are selling as good as ever and Paper White narcissi are moving better. Violets have been selling none too well the past week and are not as plentiful as they have been. Sweet peas are seen in larger supply which probably accounts for the falling off in the demand for violets. Some ver choice freesias are seen but are in good demand and command high prices. Southern gladioli are seen in small quantities at a few of the stores, but are not cutting much figure in the receipts as yet. Gardenias are none too plentiful now but orchids are in large supply and some very fancy stock in cattleyas are obtainable at fair prices. Lily of the valley does not appear to be any too plentiful but quite a number of lilies are seen around. The shortage of stock appears to be general throughout the country, especially in regard to roses, for several of the leading out-of-town markets have been placing orders with the larger local growers for as much stock as they could get and naturally the prices on roses have been rather high. Fancy roses have easily brought from $8.00 to $12.00 per 100 and the shorter grades about $4.00 and $5.00 per 100 with very little stock obtainable at the latter figure. The retail florists have had quite a large amount of funeral work the past week but outside of this class of work there does not appear to be very much doing.

NOTES.

Arthur Clemensen, son of C. Clemensen, 7801 South Shore avenue, has been quite ill with pneumonia for several weeks, but is slowly improving and his many friends expect to see him about again soon.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is cutting a large quantity of orchids and some especially fine cattleyas are now attracting the attention of the city buyers at the store. At the greenhouses in Morton Grove the palm department is well stocked up with choice plants and H. M. Oeser takes great pleasure in escorting the visitors through the houses. In the plant department where C. G. Anderson is in charge everything is in lovely condition throughout and beautiful azealeas and cyclamens in bloom for immediate use are having a good call.

F. J. Benthey, of the Benthey Greenhouses, New Castle, Ind.. says that the new rose Ophelia is about as fine a variety as was ever placed on the market and that his firm will grow it on a larger scale than ever next season. His firm was among the first to grow this variety in any quantity after it was first offered, but not until it was given a thorough inspection at F. Dorner & Sons' greenhouses at LaFayette, E. G. Hill Co.'s plant at Richmond and the South Park Floral Co.'s range at New Castle, Ind.

A. Lange has rented another floor in the building he now occupies on Madison street, which will give him much more room to handle his ever-increasing business. An electric elevator has been installed and everything is in readiness for the late winter and early spring trade. This store has a large stock of silverine ribbon on hand, which is somewhat similar to the ribbon that he used on his work for the Adolphus Busch funeral in St. Louis, last fall.

W. N. Rudd, George Asmus, C. W. Johnson, M. Barker, Alex Henderson, Fred Lautenschlager and H. B. Howard of this city; J. A. Valentine, Denver, Colo.; Nic Zweifel and W. R. Schroeder, Milwaukee, Wis., and Wilbur Gullett and wife of Lincoln, are attending the carnation meeting at Buffalo this week. The party left for the east on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad, Tuesday evening, January 26.

Bassett & Washburn are coming in nice crop with roses and the supply at the store is large and is increasing each day. Killarney and White Killarney especially are arriving in fine condition and are in brisk demand. This firm's new seedling carnations, Belle Washburn, Helen Washburn and an unnamed light pink seedling are on exhibition at the American Carnation Society meeting at Buffalo, N. Y., this week.

Peter Reinberg gave a carnation ball in the Twenty-sixth ward at the Hunting house on Friday, January 22, when Mrs. Reinberg and Mayor Harrison led the grand march. All the Reinberg employes, including Miss McNulty, were present and everyone in the hall wore a carnation. This week a dance will be held in the Arcadia, Twenty-second ward, and another enjoyable time is expected.

Wietor Bros. are supplying their customers with choice stock these days, for they are just coming in good crop with Killarney, White Killarney and Richmond roses. Some fine carnations are seen at this house as usual, and it has been a long time since such a large supply of White Perfection have been seen at one time in one place as was the case this week at this establishment.

It is rumored that the engagement of Miss Dorothy Ashley to Walter Rupp of the John C. Moninger Co. will be announced in the near future and that the wedding will take place some time next summer. Mr. Rupp may deny the rumor but he had better not, for this information came direct from pretty good authority.

Curtis Kindler says that the demand for baskets for St. Valentine Day has already started in at the Raedlein Basket Co.'s store and that it is encouraging to note that the florists are buying in larger quantities for this occasion this year.

Percy Jones is disposing of a large supply of choice cut ferns each day and will have plenty of the same kind of stock to supply his trade with all through the season. Carnations are arriving in large numbers this week but are considered good property right now.

Zalinger & Hirsch are doing a splendid business at their store in the Insurance Exchange building and state that they have been unusually busy of late with funeral work.

George Weinhoeber's window display of orchids this week at his South Wabash avenue store was one of the prettiest ever seen in the loop.

Richard Rolston is now doing the buying on the local wholesale market for the Fleischmann Floral Co.

Kennicott Bros. Co. has started the remodeling of its store and as soon as the weather permits a new stairway will replace the old one. The ice-boxes will be moved to the north side of the building and all the other necessary changes will be made as rapidly as possible so everything will be in readiness before the spring rush sets in.

William Garland, of Des Plaines, has been calling on the trade in the vicinity the past month in the interest of the Garland Manufacturing Co. He reports that the inquiries from prospective customers for greenhouse materials are numerous and that it appears as if there will be as much new glass put up in 1915 as last year.

At Peter Reinberg's store American Beauty, Killarney and White Killarney roses are seen in large supply, especially the latter, which evidently are just in crop now. Felix Reichling says that business continues to be good and that prices are still up to what they were last week.

At A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s store the daily receipts of American Beauty roses are quite heavy and while the demand for them is brisk all the customers are being well taken care of. Cut blooms of Florida grown gladioli are now seen at this establishment and are in good demand.

John Sinner says that the demand for carnation cuttings at Sinner Bros.' is much better now than it has been for some time past, and that if the orders keep coming in as they have the past few days they will soon dispose of their 100,000 now in the sand.

George Reinberg is booking orders for rooted cuttings of Killarney, White Killarney, Richmond and Sunburst roses. Mr. Reinberg says that the demand so far has not been any too brisk but that the last few days orders have been more plentiful.

Roy Wilcox and wife, of Council Bluffs, Ia., were the guests of C. L. Washburn and wife at Hinsdale on January 25. They left the following day to inspect the new roses at F. Dorner & Sons Co.'s greenhouses at La-Fayette, Ind.

An eight and one-half pound baby girl arrived at the home of Adolph Malchow, 3745 North Clark street, Sunday, January 24. Mrs. Malchow and baby are doing very nicely and papa—well, he is happier than a lark.

The Chicago Florists' Club will meet at the Hotel Bismarck next Thursday, February 4, at 8 p. m. Michael Fink, chairman of the good-of-the-club committee, has a pleasant surprise in store for all those who attend.

A. C. Rott, of Joliet, was a visitor in the market, January 21, when he placed several large orders for cut flowers to be used in an elaborate wedding decoration that he has booked for February 2.

Phil. Brodbeck's entire crop of roses was destroyed by gas this week in his range of greenhouses at Evanston. Some 18,000 plants were affected, it is said, and the loss will be quite large.

The Willens Construction Co., 1527 South Spaulding avenue, has issued a new catalogue and have every reason to be proud of it, for it is cleverly gotten up and is well illustrated.

Frank Kral is chairman of the South Halsted Street Business Men's Association, which was organized Thursday, January 21.

Zech & Mann are still showing a nice supply of freesias in addition to their regular complete line of seasonable stock.

SOME STOCKS NOT EQUAL TO DEMAND.

With the advent of real winter weather, the supply of stock has lessened considerably. Rose orders have been a proposition to fill, so short in supply have they become. Carnations are still in supply equal to the demand, but are by no means plentiful, with prices holding firm. Sweet peas have been selling well, although stock has not been of the best of quality, white being rather scarce. Freesia Purity, of excellent quality, is in good demand and calendula meets with a good call. A few Golden Spur daffodils arrive and clean up daily. Violets, lily of the valley and orchids are in supply to meet all demands, while Easter lilies are off crop, and callas not over plentiful, with demand fair. Tulips are still too short to be used for anything but funeral work. A few daisies arrive, but they are small and short stemmed, and not much in demand. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are still short, and mostly dark in color, while adiantum is now in fair supply. American Beauty roses are good stock, the demand is good and prices remain firm. Red and yellow roses are far short of the demand.

NOTES.

The Eagle Wire Works have moved from their old location at 2338 Ontario street to a more spacious warehouse and factory at the corner of East Second street and Huron road. The entire third floor is used exclusively by this firm as a workroom and storage rooms for their stock.

Miss Rhoda Piggott, daughter of Frank Piggott, florist, at 2236 Meyers avenue, is organizer of Pansy Troop No. 1 of Girl Scouts of Cleveland. This is the first girl scout troop in Ohio, although there are several similar girl troops in the southern and eastern sections of the United States.

Inquiries for St. Vanentine's day flowers and supplies are already being heard. McKinley day, January 29, is not much of a flower day here.

The Women's Florist Club will hold a card party about February 18 at their club rooms in the Hollenden hotel. Particulars later. C. F. B.

St. Louis.

The past week was a very cold one. This caused quite a shortage in stock, carnations selling at three to four cents and roses from four cents upwards. Sweet peas and violets cleaned up fairly well. Jonquils were quoted at four and five cents. Harrissi lilies were plentiful but callas were scarce.

NOTES.

The Ayers Floral Co., Miss Newman's Floral Shop and George Waldbart had some very beautiful floral designs at the McMillan funeral.

The St. Louis Union of Florists and Nurserymen met January 21. Important business transacted which will be reported later.

N. Jablonsky is cutting some choice carnations which are sold at sight. H. G. Benning handles this stock.

Diemer Floral Co., is always busy and consumes large quantities of stock both in plants and cut flowers.

The Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., is showing some very nice white and pink Killarney roses.

Jules Bourdet Greenhouses are looking good and preparations for Easter stock are well advanced.

Young & Sons will have the decorations for the second annual Imperial ball, January 29.

The J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill., is shipping some nice stock to this market.

Some fancy butterfly sweet peas were seen at the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

Geo. H. Angermueller had some fancy cattleyas during the past week.

C. A. Kuehn is getting some good sweet peas, the best on the market.

Marion Ulschmidt, of Grimm & Gorly, will be married in the spring.

The St. Louis Seed Co., is now located in its new quarters.

Mullanphy Florists had several orders for funeral work.

Charles Ude has some fancy long-stem carnations. W. F.

STOCK SHORT AND TRADE IMPROVES.

There seems a better tone to business, owing more to the shortening up of some of the lines, than to any increase in the demand. Roses, particularly American Beauties, are very scarce. These have almost doubled in price the past ten days and orders for any quantity are only taken provisionally. The Killarney varieties appear to be cutting better; the Brilliant is popular on account of its bright color, and cleans up every day. Short and medium grades of all the roses are in better demand than the longer stock. Carnations appear to be ever blooming, the shipments being more than ample, the quality very fine and prices rule low. Easter and calla lilies are much in evidence. Bulbous stock is now about to get into the race. Golden Spur is being cut by a number of growers. Tulips are also coming in, while Paper Whites are a drug—one of the large commission houses gave them away with every purchase of other flowers January 23. Violets are above the demand and prices rule low. Cattleyas and gardenias hang fire; there is a trifle better supply than usual, while the economies of the present season cause these members of the aristocratic flower family to be tabooed. Spencer sweet peas are in good supply and have the call over almost everything else.

NOTES.

There is a rumor that cut flowers are being supplied to the Wanamaker store, as plants have been, on consignment, returns only being made on stock sold. This may be only rumor, but it has been repeated frequently of late, and is getting to be believed by some. The prices at which stock are offered in nearly all cases, are wholesale prices or even lower.

The first "Social Monday" night at the florists' club was a great success. Many of the members were present, taking a hand at the games, and all expressed themselves, that it was a move in the right direction. The lunch was a most agreeable feature.

The Robt. Craig Co. still offer splendid cyclamens. A stock in four inch pots are exceptionally well flowered. Several of these together, make very showy pans. A magnificent stock of Easter plants are coming on.

L. A. Geiger, late with Jacob Becker, has purchased the business of Ernst

The Leo Niessen Co. report flowers scarcer, with an increasing demand. Spencer sweet peas, high grade carnations and spring flowers, together with choice roses, are leaders.

Russell and Sunburst roses, together with high grade carnations, were the leaders with Edward Reid. A feature is a red sport of Shawyer, as yet under number.

SUPPLY SHORTENS AND PRICES ADVANCE.

Owing to the cloudy weather during the past week, the supply of flowers has perceptibly shortened, and consequently the prices have become somewhat better. Roses in particular have reached high figures. Killarney Brilliant and Killarney Queen were especially in heavy demand. Carnations sell fair, owing to a shortage of stock, but the trade on them is far from being as it should for this time of year. Pink Delight, Ward and Benora are selling well, but white seems to drag on its sales. Violets are plentiful and sell at low figures. Easter lilies, lily of the valley and freesias are selling very well. Bulbous stock such as jonquils and tulips is very plentiful. Mignonette and sweet peas are in good demand. The plant trade continues very brisk.

NOTES.

Houghton and Garney Co., at the Park street church, report a steadily increasing business. Their window is always a source of attraction on account of its rich and artistic appearance. This week some very fine camellias and prunus plants were noted in their display. On looking over the stock on hand, it is very noticable that nothing but the highest quality goods obtainable are used.

M. Penn, who for years has been located on Washington street next to the Park theater, will locate at No. 3 Bromfield street, February 1. He has half of the store there, and is confident of better business, as it is a better locality.

The Halifax Garden Co., of Halifax, Mass., is sending to A. Walsh at the Boston Flower Exchange a heavy cut of high grade carnations. Matchless, Ward, Beacon, White Wonder, Pink Delight and Enchantress are especially fine flowers.

CHAS. SCHWAKE & CO., Inc.. 90-92 West Broadway, NEW YORK

Boston Co-operative Flower Market, has resigned his position and entered the employ of J. Cohen, one of the market's leading commission salesmen.

In our issue of January 23, mention was made that N. Fishelson had opened a store at Allston. We are requested by N. Fishelson, The Copley Florist, to correct this report, as the new establishment will be under the management of J. Fishelson, and that N. Fishelson is not connected with it in any way.

Sam Wax and Alfred Walsh will leave January 30, for a fishing trip on Lake Winnipesaukee. Sam is an enthusiastic angler and always brings back photos proving that he "knows where they are."

Frank Dolansky is shipping to the Boston Flower Exchange a nice cut of gardenias and cattleyas from his range at Lynn, Mass. His entire cut is of the highest quality.

Wm. Sim, of Cliftondale, Mass., is shipping about 50,000 violets per week at present. His stock is of the highest quality, and despite the oversupply meets with fair sale.

Some very fine cineraria plants were noted at Thos F. Galvin's Tremont street store. The alterations to his new store on Park street are progressing rapidly.

Wm. Findlay has left the employ of Thos. Roland of Nahant, Mass. He had been Mr. Roland's rose salesman for some time past.

New York.

Business for the past week has been what might be considered only fair. Cloudy weather has been the rule for several days and in consequence stocks in some lines have been short. This is true of roses especially. Good stock has been scarce in these and prices have naturally advanced.

NOTES.

A. F. Faulkner, local representative of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, is on the sick list, having contracted a severe cold.

The New York Florists' Club will hold its annual dinner Saturday evening, March 20, at the Hotel Astor.

N.

The Horticultural Society of New York.

The January exhibition of the society was held January 20 at the American Museum of Natural History. The larger attendance of gardeners was very gratifying, this perhaps being due to holding the exhibition on Wednesday, instead of Saturday. There was a good display of flowers, especially of orchids. Two of the most attractive exhibits were made by Mrs. F. A. Constable, Jas. Stuart, gardener. One of these was a vase of cut blooms of Buddleia asiatica, tastefully arranged, and making a striking display; the other, near it, a vase of Plumbago coccinea. The pure white flowers of the buddleia made a striking contrast with the bright red blooms of the plumbago. The displays of cut orchids by Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J., and that of Clement Moore, were exceptionally fine. The next exhibition will be held at the same place Wednesday, February 17. Prizes are offered for cut orchid blooms, roses, sweet peas, schizanthus, antirrhinums, freesias, and narcissi. Prizes may also be awarded for other interesting and worthy exhibits not provided for in the schedule. Schedules will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx Park, New York.

A meeting of the society was held at 3:45, followed by a lecture by William N. Craig, on "A Year's Vegetable Supply from the Home Garden." This was listened to by over a hundred people, and proved one of the most successful lectures ever given by the society. Great interest was shown in the subject, which was presented by the lecturer in a simple, practical way which satisfied the desires of those present, judging from the gathering surrounding Mr. Craig at the close of his talk.

Prominent among the successful contestants in the competitive classes for awards were the following: Lager & Hurrell, Clement Moore, Adolph Lewisohn, G. D. Barron, R. & J. Farquhar & Co., Mrs. F. A. Constable, P. W. Popp, D. G. Reid, Scott Bros., John Canning, G. E. Baldwin & Co., J. P. Mossman and Thomas Bell.

TRADE FAIR BUT STOCK SHORT.

Since the holidays the weather has continued to be cold, cloudy and dark, and the blooming plants have suffered accordingly, making rather a scarcity of flowers, hardly enough to fill all orders. Trade has not been very brisk, only fair. The stock, however, that is coming in is very good, especially roses and carnations. Pot plants are good, and include cyclamens, primulas, azaleas, narcissi and obconicas. There has been the full quota of weddings and some lesser social functions and the usual amount of funerals.

NOTES.

Miss Marion Joy, daughter of Thomas M. Joy, has an article in the Southern Woman's Magazine with attractive illustrations, including a picture of herself, entitled, "What I Did In My Tomato Patch." She tells of her success with the tomatoes on one-tenth of an acre, which her father gave her when she joined the "Tomato Club," and she gives in detail the various stages of the growth. Her illustrations deal with spraying, disbudding, gathering, home-made rain, a box of the ripe vegetable and a very pretty one of herself. Her receipts for the season amounted to $108.40, clearing $84.60. Miss Joy says next year her father intends devoting five acres to the culture of the tomato.

McIntyre Bros. are showing some good orchids in their Church street store, which is doing a good business.

New Orleans.

The regular meeting of the New Orleans Horticultural Society was held January 21, P. A. Chopin, presiding, and secretary C. R. Panter at his station. The secretary reported that the state department of agriculture and the experiment station had replied promptly to his letters regarding plant quarantine, stating that some states had total quarantine, unless products were tagged with their state inspection tag, for which a charge of $5 or more was made. Louisiana, has certain quarantine laws in force at present, especially on citrus trees, on account of the canker disease, but they make no charge for inspection tags. The opinion of the members present was that the state should exact a similar tax on all states that compel the florists of this state to pay taxes for tag inspection certificates. It was decided that the society would take no part in the Panama-Pacific exposition, although some of the members may make individual exhibits.

The president called the attention of the members of the society to the fact that several meetings had been held at the Association of Commerce by the citizens of this city towards making New Orleans a "city beautiful" in regard to private gardens and playgrounds, and have requested the cooperation of this society in this undertaking. As this is one of the objects of the New Orleans Horticultural Society, it received the unanimous approval of the members present. A committee on revision of by-laws, consisting of Paul Abele, R. Eichling and C. R. Panter, submitted their report, and the laws as reported by them were unanimously adopted. The committee on spring show informed the members that they were working on a program, and at the next meeting would name time and location and premium list. Mr. Farley exhibited several bunches of well grown-violets of different varieties. The secretary-treasurer read his semi-annual report showing the society to be in a healthy condition, both as to members and finances, having some $200 in the treasury, $600 invested in state bonds, and $100 in Southern States' Fair stock.

Weather up to the present has been very mild, no killing frost, roses, geraniums, hibiscus, pansies, daisies, and a number of other perennials and annuals being in bloom in the open gardens. What with the late celebration of the centennial of the battle of New Orleans and other social functions, the trade has been fairly good.

Knoxville, Tenn.

UNFAVORABLE WEATHER SHORTENS STOCK.

The weather has again turned dark and cloudy, and we have only had a few bright days during the last two weeks, consequently stock has begun to shorten up, roses especially being rather scarce. Carnations are fine, and although not as plentiful as two weeks ago, there is still ample supply to take care of the local trade. The glut on narcissi is now over and the supply is again normal, hyacinths are rather scarce, orchids are plentiful, and there has been a surplus since the holidays. Funeral work has been heavy the last few days, a great deal of which has been sent out of town.

NOTES.

A delegation from the Knoxville Florists' Society will go to Nashville, Tenn., the coming week, where it is hoped to organize a state florists' club, to be affiliated with clubs of kindred lines. The Knoxville florists have been working for and advocating this movement for some time, a great deal of soliciting has been done recently, and no doubt a majority of the florists throughout the state will be present.

On account of the weather conditions there is not much doing with the Howell Nurseries. Bruce Howell will attend the convention of the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association at Nashville, where he is booked for a speech.

Business has been good with Mrs. Ryno, funeral work being rather heavy. She is cutting a sufficient supply of sweet peas, narcissi and hyacinths, but has been compelled to buy carnations and roses.

Chas. W. Crouch has been very busy with funeral work the last two weeks, and it has been necessary to buy stock in order to meet all demands.

C. L. Baum reports business good. He is cutting a good supply of stock and has a surplus in orchids.

Addison J. McNutt is cutting some choice sweet peas, which are selling well.

A. H. Dailey reports business fairly good, while stock is rather scarce.

K. F. S.

Columbus, O.

TRADE CONDITIONS SHOW IMPROVEMENT.

Aside from funeral trade, conditions are quiet, though somewhat of an improvement over the dullness immediately following the holidays. Leading florists report a glut of carnations and a slight scarcity of roses. With respect to the latter, Ophelias, Killarney and Wards are in most active demand. Roman Beauties are steady, but not strong. Bulbous stock is beginning to look up, the features most in evidence being tulips, daffodils, Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths.

NOTES.

A branch flower store has been opened by the Munk Floral Company at 145 North High street, in the Brunson building, located about three blocks north of their main store. The space, which is small, has heretofore been occupied by a cigar-stand and the flower store is continuing the sale of cigars as a side issue for the accommodation of the tenants. It is a twelve-story building, and has no other source of supply within its walls. Cigars as an annex to a flower business is new to Columbus, as is in fact the office building proposition, and the outcome is being watched with interest.

What is claimed by its owner to be one of the handsomest florist stores in the central west has been opened by T. J. Ludwig, at 82 North High street. Mr. Ludwig was for 25 years connected with the Livingston Seed Company, recently as manager of the cut flower and retail seed department. His new store occupies half of a room nearly 100 feet in depth. A striking feature of the fixtures is a cathedral effect of art glass worked into a wood column. The finish is of a peculiar bluish gray, through which the natural grain appears.

Several organizations devoted to horticulture in various forms held meetings here during the period of January 9-12, in connection with a midwinter fair, which was put on for the first time at the exhibition grounds of the Ohio State Agricultural Association.

Providence, R. I.

FUNERAL WORK MAINSTAY OF TRADE.

Funeral work has been the main issue in business the past week and has brought the amount of sales up to a fairly decent standard. The cut flower trade has been only fair, while the sale of pot plants has dropped off considerably.

NOTES.

One of the finest decorations seen in some time was made by T. O'Conner in the Churchill house last week.

There are several fine displays of orchids in the city stores that are very attractive.

Albert Holcher is bringing in extra fine sweet peas.

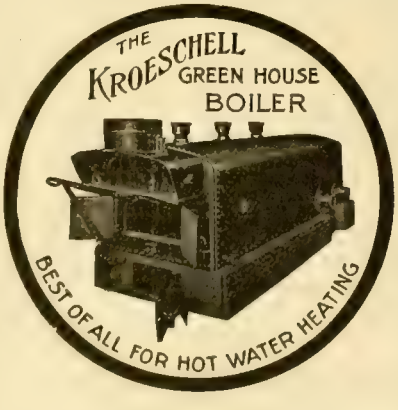
CHICAGO'S LEADING P

FRANK OECHSLIN'S PLANT RANGE—100,000 sq. ft. of glass—heated by KROESCHELL BOILERS.

Ten years have been sufficient to make the history of the plant trade in Chicago and Frank Oechslin is the man who has in a single decade established this business and built the only exclusive wholesale plant range in the big western city.

The first land (ten lots) was bought in 1902 and the first greenhouses (six small ones), were built the following year—there are now 31 large houses, 600 hot bed sash and ten acres of land in evidence of Mr. Oechslin's skill as a grower.



One of the principals upon which the Oechslin business has been built is to be satisfied with nothing short of the best a greenhouse can be made to produce. To produce the best, only the best in greenhouse material and construction has been employed.

Mr. Oechslin's greenhouses are now the show place of the city and visitors there are always welcome. Go and see them and when you admire the perfection of the plants and the cleanliness of the place, remember to visit the boiler rooms and note that the name KROESCHELL is found on every one of the boilers.

Mr. Oechslin has the largest and best exclusive plant range in Chicago and the quality of his stock is so fine and so favorably known throughout the country that he seldom has any trouble in marketing his plants. His entire range of 100,000 feet of glass is devoted mostly to Palms, Ferns and all Decorative and Blooming Plants. Dietsch material was used in almost all of the Oechslin range and everyone that visits his establishment cannot help but admire the construction and the general layout of the place. These houses have served Mr. Oechslin well and if you are going to build you would do well to get in touch with us for we are confident that we can give you the kind of house that you desire and save you money in the bargain. WE are Growers of this stock in quantity and the bulbs we ship for forcing under glass are especially selected for this purpose. We have a first extra grade for counter.

Besides the following standard kinds, most of which we can offer in two sizes (both flowering), we carry nearly all standard kinds and many fancy imported novelties secured by our Mr. Vaughan last year in Europe.

We Can Quote Special Prices on Quantities of Several Kinds.

We are in position to quote all Seedsmen and Florists who are interested in Gladiolus, either forcing, for counter trade, or for outdoor planting, all sizes from EXTRAS down to the smaller grades.

PLANTING STOCK. Of several leading kinds we can supply planting stock, white bulbs under one inch and small black bulblets by the bushel.

Ask for Vaughan's Spring 1915 Book for Florists. It is one of the Most Complete in the Trade.

I regard Mrs Francis King as the best florists' variety of its color. Its wonderful profusion of bloom and firmness of its petals makes it a great favorite all along the New Jersey Coast with the cottage people as a cut flower.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade January 27 were as follows: Timothy, $6.00 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.

WHITE edible beans at Chicago sold at $3.15 January 22. This is the high point touched in the fall before the new crop came in, after which prices dropped back around $2.50 or lower.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — The annual row over distribution of free seeds to congressmen came off in the house January 26, but failed to displace an item of $252,540 for that purpose from the agricultural bill.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—One hundred and fifteen thousand bags of beet sugar seed worth $635,000 in gold have been bought in Germany for American growers that the American crop may not suffer by the war.

THE much desired distinction of the iron cross has been awarded to the three sons of John Benary, of the seed firm of Ernst Benary, Erfurt, Germany. One of these young men, Dr. Friedrich Benary, has since died of wounds received in the Russian campaign.

A LILY bulb expert, long familiar with the handling and packing of Japan lily bulbs, now comes forward with the theory that these bulbs need not be packed in mud balls for export, but that if the roots are left on may be exported and travel without rotting in ordinary packing.

TOLEDO, O.—The entire business formerly conducted by The Henry Philipps Seed & Implement Co. of this city has been sold to E. L. Page, president of the Page Seed Co. of Greene, N. Y. A new company will at once be organized with a capital of $50,000 and the business continued under the name of the Page-Philipps Seed Co. The business of the Henry Philipps Seed & Implement Co. was established in 1852, and has been at its present location for the past thirty-five years.

VISITED Chicago: Chas. Schwake, of Chas. Schwake & Co., New York; W. H. DeGraaff, of DeGraaff Bros., Ltd., Leiden, Holland; C. M. Kimberlin, of J. M. Kimberlin & Co., Santa Clara, Calif., A. E. Kunderd, Goshen, Ind.; H. W. Koerner, Milwaukee, Wis.; I. S. Henrickson, of John Lewis Childs, Flowerfield, L. I., N. Y.; J. W. Edmundson, of the California Seed Growers Ass'n., San Jose, Calif., returning from an eastern contracting trip, reports trade considerably in excess of last year.

COLUMBUS, O.—The Livingston Seed Company, which, beginning with December 15, has sent out an edition of 100,000 catalogues in their mail order department, state that the volume of early orders in response to same are fully up to normal. They anticipate a prosperous season.

IT is understood that owing to the failure of the exporting jobbers to agree with the Japanese growers quite a large quantity of the larger sizes of planting stock of Lilium rubrum bulbs, which would ordinarily have gone to the market, have been put back into the ground to be grown on for next year. This would seem to favor a reasonable price next year.

Seed mportation Regulation.

At the request of the secretary of the United States department of agriculture, Andrew J. Peters, assistant secretary, has instructed collectors and other officers of the customs to sample, and detain pending an examination and report by the secretary of agriculture, all lots of seed offered for import mentioned in regulation 4 of the joint regulations for the enforcement of the seed importation act published in treasury department decision 34,393 of April 23, 1914. The seeds enumerated are as follows: Alfalfa, Canadian bluegrass, Kentucky bluegrass, millet, orchard grass, rape, redtop timothy, clover, meadow fescue and awnless brome grass.

Spiraea Importation Ruling.

Under date of December 29, 1914, in the matter of protest (No. 719,122) of Mattoon & Co., San Francisco, the board of general appraisers and the court of customs appeals of the treasury department decided that Mattoon & Co. have not supported their contention in the case of 1,200 spiræa plants recently imported which were assessed 25 per centum ad valorem, as provided in paragraph 264 of the tariff act of 1909, which reads as follows: All trees, shrubs, plants and vines commonly known as nursery vines or greenhouse stock, not specially provided for in this section, 25 per cent ad valorem.

The importers claimed that they were dutiable at 50 cents per 1,000 under the last clause in paragraph 263, which reads: All other bulbous roots, or corms, which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per 1,000. The text of the ruling is as follows:

This plant is cultivated for its flowers or foliage. The testimony of the importer is that it is known and traded in under the name of spiræa, but that it is not really spiræa. He says its correct name is aruncus, and that it is allied to the saxifraga genus, and that it is also called astilbe. Astilbe is classified under paragraph 263 with "hyacinth, astilbe, dielytra, and lily of the valley clumps, $2.50 per 1,000."

We learn from works on botany that spiræa is a genus which is divided into some 50 varieties, the most of them being deciduous shrubs. Some of the species, however, are perennials, and belong to what might be termed the "herbaceous group." This particular importation, according to the testimony of the importer, is the roots merely of a perennial, the growth of which above ground dies down in the fall.

While this is all interesting and might assist in determining the classification of these roots, the real question is as to whether they are "bulbs, bulbous roots, or corms." No authority has been presented which would warrant us in holding that they are either bulbs, bulbous roots, or corms. In supplying an illustrative sample, the importer stated that the one produced was exactly like the original sample which was taken from the importation. He was asked by his attorney the following question: "Are you prepared to state positively that the bulb which is here the subject of this protest was the same as the bulb from which that plant came?" His answer was, "Yes, sir; exactly; a different importation, that is all; the same class of goods." This is the only testimony in the case which sustains the contention that the importation is either a bulb, a bulbous root, or a corm. We think we are authorized in holding, from all the testimony and the facts and circumstances surrounding the case, that these goods are not bulbs. Is there anything, then, upon which we can base a finding that they are bulbous roots or corms? We think the testimony introduced on behalf of the importer does not go far enough to furnish the basis of an intelligent finding. We therefore hold he has not supported his contention. The protest is overruled.

What Burpee-Quality Seeds Mean to the Market Grower.

At the Seventh Annual Convention of the Vegetable Growers' Association of America, held in Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, October, 1914, we had the pleasure of talking with and listening to the many earnest men who are doing so much for the advancement of the market growing industry. We were impressed with the importance and scope of the work of this splendid organization, and realized even more than before the market grower's absolute dependence for success upon selected "Seeds of Quality." The position occupied by the seedsman who undertakes to supply seed to the market grower is one of great trust. Surely his service is one based on confidence.

CONFIDENCE makes possible the commerce of the world. It is the greatest factor that enters into a purchase of seeds, because you are not buying a finished product, but only the means by which your garden will be either a pronounced success or a partial failure. Seeds—good or bad—may look the same, but how different their resulting crops! You cannot afford to risk a season's work with seeds of unknown quality.

When you buy BURPEE'S SEEDS the element of doubt is removed so far as is possible by human care. The confidence of many thousands of pleased and permanent customers is maintained by the Burpee Idea of Quality First,—"to give rather than to get all that is possible." This confidence on the part of our customers, combined with the efficient Burpee-Service, has built the world's greatest mail-order seed business.

A careful examination of this "Blue List" should convince you of the excellence of our pedigree strains for market growers, and then a trial order—if you are not already a Burpee customer—will prove that your confidence has not been misplaced.

Burpee's Annual for 1915, our complete retail catalog of 182 pages, has already been mailed. If you have failed to receive it, kindly write at once and a duplicate copy will be forwarded.

For the utmost development of good seed service, we are,

Sincerely yours,

W. Atlee Burpee

Fortieth annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 23-25, 1915.

FT. WORTH, TEX.—The Texas State Horticultural Society held its regular midwinter meeting January 13-14.

WAPATO, WASH.—The Ornamental & Fruit Nursery Co. has been incorporated by John Ryken and Norbert Levovosseur; capital $50,000.

FT. WORTH, TEX.—Selection of the next mid-winter meeting place of the Texas State Horticultural Society has been left to the executive committee. The summer session will be held at College Station.

The land included in the holdings of the Phoenix Nursery Company, Bloomington, Ill., was sold January 18 at public sale at the court house. The purchaser was Benoni S. Green and the price paid was $28,000.

MADISON, WIS.—Special institutes in horticulture are being conducted through the state this year for the first time by the state board of horticulture, working in connection with the staff of the farmers' institutes.

GRASS VALLEY, CALIF.—Fruit trees for spring planting are beginning to move and nurseries and nursery agents predict a busy season. The aggregate of planting in Nevada county will be larger this season than ever before and the ground, soaked by rain and snow, is in fine condition to receive the trees.

WINTER HAVEN, FLA.—The shipment of citrus nursery stock is very heavy at present and it is nothing uncommon to see from 10,000 to 20,000 trees leaving on any train. The trees are exceptionally fine this year and are commanding a good price. It is estimated that there are over 400 acres of nursery here.

European Pines Menace to Nursery Stock.

Because of the danger to American nursery stock a public hearing will be held February 2, 1915, by the United States department of agriculture to discuss a proposed quarantine on the importation of all pines from Europe. During the past year imported pines have been found to be infested with the European pine shoot moth. In Europe this is one of the principal insect enemies of pines and is especially destructive in nurseries, young forests, and ornamental plantations. It kills or injures the young twig growth and deforms the tree to a serious extent. In this country the insect seems to be still confined to the European pines in Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and West Virginia. Strenuous efforts are already being made to stamp it out and it is believed that these will be successful if no further importations of infested stock are permitted. The white pine blister rust has already resulted in the exclusion of all five-leafed pines from Europe and Asia. The proposed quarantine will extend this prohibition to all classes of pines from Europe. No restriction is proposed on the importation of pine seed.

Market Gardeners

Vegetable Growers' Association of America.

M. L. Ruetenik, Cleveland, O., President; Daniel R. Comly Philadelphia, Pa., Vice-President; S. W. Severance, Louisville, Ky., Secretary; E. A. Dunbar, Ashtabula, O., Treasurer.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½-inch staves and 17⅛-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2-5 of an inch.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, January 26.—Mushrooms, 50 to 60 cents per pound; lettuce, 15 cents to 17½ cents per box; radishes, 20 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; asparagus, $2.00 per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 10 cents to 20 cents; cucumbers, $1.50 to $2.00.

New York, January 26.—Cucumbers, $1.00 to $1.50 per dozen; mushrooms, 40 cents to $1.25 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 15 cents to 20 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $3.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.00 to $1.50.

Vegetable Growing in Colorado.

Bulletin No. 199 issued by the agricultural experiment station of the Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo., under date of August, 1914, contains articles by R. A. McGinty, on "Vegetable Growing in Colorado," "Hot Beds and Cold Frames," and an article by C. P. Gillette entitled "Common Insects of the Garden," which cover the subjects in a comprehensive manner, and should be of interest to market gardeners, especially in Colorado. The experiment station is constantly receiving inquiries as to the method of culture of different vegetables, and it is with the idea of giving this information that the bulletin is published. Conditions and preparation of the soil and fertilizers best adapted to localities and crops, with information on plants and planting, etc., covering practically every variety of vegetable, are given.

Under the title of "Hot Beds and Cold Frames" the same author gives much valuable information as to the location and care of these, both temporary and permanent.

In his article on "Common Insects of the Garden," C. P. Gillette treats of the habit and control of such pests as the striped corn rootworm, corn earworm, green cabbage worm, cabbage louse, spotted bean beetle, squash bug, squash root maggot, onion thrips and cut worms.

Fumigating Lettuce.

As we approach spring, the green aphis will become more active, and will need close watching. The trouble generally begins in the plant beds—if plants are perfectly clean it will give the crop a long start. The methods of fighting the green aphis have undergone some changes. Spraying instead of smoking is finding favor among growers. There is enough reason for this. Large open ranges of glass are smoked with difficulty; windy weather makes smoking ineffective; peculiar air currents sometimes bunch the smoke, causing damage. This may also occur from careless operators.

The newer nicotine products make spraying very easy, as the method is practically odorless and colorless. One large grower told us recently that he sprays exclusively, and that it pays him to do so. In this, as in other lines, prevention is better than cure. By spraying regularly up to the point when the plants interlock, a crop can be matured fairly free from aphis. While the compressed air sprayers are largely used, we still favor the knapsack pumping type, as the pressure does not vary. Where lettuce is grown in frames in the early spring, spraying is about the only remedy. When nicotine extracts are not at hand, tobacco stems may be soaked in water for a few hours and this liquid used. If sprayed under high pressure it will scarcely discolor the lettuce. If fumigation is resorted to, the main point is to prevent the rising of a heavy column of smoke, which will surely damage the crop—what is wanted is a slow smudge—this can be obtained by partly covering the stems.

MARKETMAN.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

Gloomy, rainy, sloppy weather was the promise we had to contend with for our annual meeting, Thursday, January 21, but by noon the sun shone brightly on 24 good men, and we made the trip to Strasburg, stopping first at Amos Rohrer's, then an invigorating walk of about a mile to Chas. B. Herr's. Both these places are so near to perfection in style, cleanliness and quality of bloom produced, that one is compelled to believe that the professor from India (I forget his name) who is now demonstrating by a machine test, the fact that plants respond to their surroundings with feelings of joy or gloom, as the case may be, is correct. One can positively see the gladness of living expressed by the plants with these two growers; in fact, White Perfection is so filled with joy, that it burst its calyx in the attempt to express it. Matchless has a record of having produced more blooms per square foot up to the present date of any variety grown. Philadelphia has, as grown here, established a keeping record exactly the opposite of its general reputation, and it is just possible that those who are going to discard it on account of its keeping qualities may be making a mistake. Beacon—well, Chas. B. Herr's Beacon, are simply head and shoulders over any other red grown by anybody or anywhere. Getting back to Lancaster, a run was made to the houses of Enos Kohr. This is an ideal range of glass and a model heating plant. The carnations were not quite as good as the Strasburg ones, but were very good and Mr. Kohr says they are a lot better than the prices they are bringing.

The meeting was held in the Brenneman Building, at 6:30 p. m., with the usual full attendance. The annual election resulted as follows: B. F. Barr, president; Harry Weaver, vice-president; Lemon Landis, secretary, and Harry K. Rohrer, treasurer. The newly elected president appointed the following committees:

Visiting committee—Rudolph Nagle, Charles Weaver and E. S. Rutt.

Programme committee—Albert M. Herr, E. P. Hostetter and Maurice J. Brinton.

Glad hand and sunshine committee (to welcome and introduce visitors)—J. Ira Landis, Chas. B. Herr, Wade Galey and Rutter Hess.

Exhibition committee for monthly exhibits—Harry Rohrer, Elmer Weaver, J. L. Lockard and Amos Rohrer.

Membership committee — Harry A. Schroyer, J. H. Linkey, John Schriener and Frank Kohr.

Sports committee—George Goldbach, Willis Girvin and Rudolph Nagle.

An adjournment was then made to a very delightful dinner, where we had with us our two greenhouse builders, Dennis Connor of Lord & Burnham Co., and T. J. Nolan of The King Construction Co.; also our former townsman, Chas. Edgar, and the genial representative of The H. F. Michell Co., D. J. Keohne.

After the dinner President Barr made an address thanking the members for his re-election and asking their co-operation for the coming year. He spoke of the elimination of trade jealousies and rivalry that existed in Lancaster before the club was organized, and the fact that now we call each other by our first names. He made a strong plea for the elimination of the advance in prices on cut flowers for the holidays, remarking that he would like to see this club go on record recommending a uniform price. At the conclusion of the address the writer presented Mr. Barr with a box of cigars, complimenting him on his administration, and as an evidence of the club's good will toward him. Sports were then indulged in until all the sports went home,

New Crimson Forcing Rose

Hoosier Beauty

(DORNER)

To those who have made money on our introductions of Carnations and 'Mums, we need only say this Rose is as good as anything we have done. It's a winner.

Color a bright crimson with darker shadings. A long bud, opening to a large, full flower. A texture like velvet. Very fragrant. Keeping qualities are exceptionally good. A free, easy growing variety, throwing two to three-foot stems; requires no pinching. Perfectly healthy, is not susceptible to mildew or black spot. Equal to any forcing rose in productiveness. We invite inspection of our stock.

Price: Own Root, $30.00 per 100; $250.00 per 1000. Grafts, $35.00 per 100; $300.00 per 1000.

TWO NEW CARNATIONS

PINK SENSATION--An exceedingly large flower. A well defined pink in color. Size, 4 to 4½ inches. Keeping qualities unsurpassed. Has a stocky growth, a heavier foliage than ordinary and throws good long flower stems. A high grade commercial carnation.

GOOD CHEER--Color, pink, darker than Gloriosa. Size, 3 inches and over. Good keeping qualities. Extra long stems. Early and continuous flowering—a great producer.

Price.....$12.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

Mrs. C. W. Ward

As a Bread and Butter Variety

What Mr. Fritz Bahr, the famous writer of "The Weeks Work" in the Florist Exchange of January 9th, 1915, says about this variety:

> "With a good many of the retail growers, throughout the Middle West in particular, the great merits of Carnation Mrs. C. W. Ward have just been recognized and appreciated. It is one of the best of its color that we have today. Every retail grower should provide room for at least a few, and fairly well grown stock will sell at a higher price than any of the standard sorts on a glutted market."

We have 40,000 Cuttings of this variety ready.
$2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

The New French Hydrangeas

For Spring Sales and Memorial Day

Our stock is in prime condition, retarded dormant plants from 6-inch pots, in fine shape to flower for Spring Sales or for Memorial Day; any of the varieties described below at $30.00 per 100.

Avalanche. A splendid large white with a well established reputation; an easy variety to force.

Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of rosy amber turning to bright pink; a favorite with all growers.

Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color.

E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade, growth vigorous, foliage of a pea green color, large and attractive.

General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.

La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite.

Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous.

Mme. E. Mouillere. Probably the most popular white variety on the market today, an early easy variety to force.

Mme. Maurice Hamar. A delicate fresh-rose color, a vigorous grower, the individual flowers as well as the trusses being very large.

Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white; flowers large and very freely produced.

Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a fine acquisition.

Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear-flesh rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties.

Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose-tint.

Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best, of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads of bright rose-colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.

Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections; flowers produced in immense large heads; on the style of La Lorraine, but an earlier bloomer.

Vieux Chateau. Very large pure white becoming suffused with delicate rosy carmine as they mature.

Hydrangea Otaksa. Dormant plants, 6-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 10-inch tubs, $1.00 each; 12-inch tubs, $2.50 each.

We Offer For Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well-established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly

Valuable New Roses

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, and Prince E.C. D'Arenberg.

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly, and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA. No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer, and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively. Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY. This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red, and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer, and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG. This variety might well have been termed Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color, the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly, and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

We will be glad to quote on application prices on all the newer and standard varieties—strong grafted plants ready in March.

The annual meeting of the Massachusetts Fruit Growers' Association was held January 13-14, President Fred C. Sears in the chair. The meeting was well attended, and interesting addresses and lectures were a feature.

H. F. Littlefield has given up his branch store at 409 Main street, and is now conducting all his business at his main store, 554 Main street.

Henry F. Midgley is cutting some exceptionally good carnations from plants carried over two and three years.

A. A. Phelps has built a greenhouse 30x150 feet in Northboro, Mass., in which he intends to grow roses.

M. W. R.

OKLAHOMA CITY, OKLA.—Lon Foster, of Furrow & Co., in reporting on the 1914 holiday trade, states that while their new store was not opened until September 1, the trade was from 35 to 50 per cent better than was anticipated, and had it not been for the extremely cold weather of December 24-25, the grand total of the sales would have been increased at least $500. Prices were higher than for the 1913 corresponding period, but quality was better. There was an increased demand for flowering plants, and basket arrangements, ranging in price from $3.50 to $7.50, sold well. They are planning for a splendid Easter business.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Genistas.

The plants of genistas should now be making their blooming growth and no further pinching will be necessary except in the case of long, strong growths which sometimes break from the stem and thereby spoil the symmetry of the plant, and these should be cut back as soon as they grow beyond the other flowering shorts. They can now be bloomed in succession by moving some into a warmer house, but those that are wanted at Easter are still better left in a cool house, one with a temperature of 45 degrees being the one that will produce the best results. These plants are never partial to great heat, reveling in a cool atmosphere, and often when taken into the warm living rooms where the air is extremely dry will soon drop their leaves. Those that are being grown to certain shapes, such as the balls, pyramids or baskets, will doubtless require some pinching back yet, but this should be done with great care or the flowering buds will be removed. A close examination of the tip of the shoot will clearly show whether the buds are forming and when this occurs all pinching must be immediately stopped. Any blind wood or extra strong growths that are cut out may be made into cuttings and young stock obtained. These will root much better in a cool propagating bench than in one where the bottom heat is confined. When the plants are full of bloom they will require heavy watering, and do not place them in a dry warm location for any great length of time.

Pelargoniums.

While all the plants so well known as geraniums are pelargoniums, yet it is the show or fancy type called by many Lady Washington geraniums that are generally known under this name. The plants that are wanted in bloom in April and May will now be in their blooming pots and beginning to show their blooming growths, but for June and July flowering the plants should now be shifted to the blooming pots, five or six-inch as the plants may require, except with large specimens, of which few are now seen. They like a turfy, coarse loam, to which may be added one-fourth well rotted manure, and if the soil is heavy a liberal amount of sharp sand to keep it open, and the plants should be potted very firmly. A cool, well-ventilated house should be selected for growing them, and until the days grow warmer and brighter they should be watered sparingly. In early spring, when they are well covered with foliage and the blooming shoots begin to grow, more water will be needed. A little stopping may be necessary if the plants send forth strong, long growths, to make the plant shapely, but care and judgment should be used in this operation, which should cease upon the appearance of the bud shoots, which are easily distinguished by the different manner of growth. Do not attempt to take any cuttings at this time, for after the plants are through blooming is the best time for propagation, and any cuttings taken now are pretty sure to rob the plants of the bloom. These plants are very subject to attacks of both red spider and green fly, and should be fumigated or sprayed regularly. As the extremely hot, dry days of summer approach a slight shade will be found very beneficial to both the plant and flowers.

Antirrhinums.

The grower of antirrhinums has an opportunity now to select the best plants from which to propagate the stock for another year, as the plants are now producing fine spikes and it is possible to select the best types. Those that have fine large flowers set closely together on the stem, and yet not close enough to crowd, are to be preferred. The earliness of blooming is another matter to take into consideration. It will be found in raising these plants from seed that there is a great difference in their time of blooming, and for winter flowering the earliest that there are of good type should be chosen. There are plenty of good cuttings to be obtained now for the laterals which grow from the axil of each leaf make the best cuttings and the flower is enlarged by their removal. Plants that are in bloom will be benefited greatly from now on by feeding either with liquid manure or a strong mulch, and the next growth thinned to eight or ten shoots, which will insure a much better crop for spring cutting than to allow all the small shoots to grow. Keep the plants tied erect all the time, for it takes but a few hours' sun to draw the tip up from a stem that leans away from the center, with the result that a crooked stem is formed, which greatly impairs its appearance. These spikes of bloom should be handled very carefully, especially the long sprays, for they are very brittle and break easily. It is better not to cut too many at once. When cutting hold them with the heads hanging down, and when there are as many as can be easily held in the hand cut, take them at once to the flower room, trim off all surplus growth and tie the stems a dozen in a bunch, then loosely tie strings around the center and toward the top of the bunch, and place the stems in a deep jar of water. This prevents crooked stems, so often seen, for the plant continues its growth after being cut, and if allowed to hang away from the jar the blooms grow crooked.

Verbenas.

The verbena makes a very satisfactory bedding plant if properly grown, but the thin, spindly plants produced from late grown seed and planted in flats and baskets as closely together as is possible in order that they may be sold at a cheap price, seldom make any showing in the beds until very late in summer. The seeds should be sown early enough that the plants may be stopped and branched and grown in pots, and one plant so grown will make more showing during the season than half a dozen of the poor plants so freely offered at the spring sales. It is really better to buy the rooted cuttings of selected varieties that are advertised at this time than to sow seed after the middle of February. Seed sown up to this date, however, can be grown on to make fine plants. Care must be exercised in the germination of the seed, which is often blamed for the carelessness or lack of knowledge of the grower, for the seed damps off very easily when it germinates, being very sensitive to any change in temperature and moisture. Until they begin to make growth, the plants should be watched carefully, never allowed to become dry, or exposed to any draughts.

Aster Lice.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Nearly all my asters have been killed this year and they seem to have been destroyed by a sort of plant louse that covered the stem near the ground. Can you give me any idea as to how to combat this another year? Should the soil be treated with anything in the fall to prevent the reappearance of the lice another year? It may be that the eggs of the lice were brought in on the young plants that I brought from a garden near my house as that gardener had been having bad luck with his asters. J. E. B.

Illinois.

Root lice cause aster plants to have a sickly, wilted, stunted appearance. Upon pulling up the affected plants the roots will be found to be covered with bluish lice. A mulch of tobacco stems, or tobacco dust, applied early in the season will prevent the attacks. Saturating the soil about the roots of the affected plants with freshly made tobacco water will destroy the lice. As root lice live over the winter in the soil it is not safe to plant asters the following year on land where the lice have appeared.

Standing Cross With Wreath.

Here is quite an elaborate piece of work. As shown in the illustration the lower portion of the cross appears rather light to support such a heavy wreath, but this no doubt is due to a trick of the camera, as the cross arm and above seem ample and in proportion to the wreath, which against the bronze galax must have stood out in strong contrast. The base, or foot, is generous and filled in keeping to the size of the design. Taken altogether, it must have been an elegant piece of work, and a credit to John C. Gracey, of Philadelphia, Pa., by whom it was designed. K.

Opening a Store.

The question is often asked, How much capital will it take to start a cut flower store? Could I get along on $500? Would it be possible to present any kind of a front that might be called a bid for business on this investment, with no reserve to fall back upon?

While this amount is not large and would be totally inadequate to finance a new venture on pretentious lines, designed to do a large business at the start, it is much more than many beginners have had, who have hustled and made good almost from the first. It is very much better for a man with limited capital who desires to open up a shop, to begin in a small way. Before he commits himself to the venture, let him consider well and look at the subject from all sides. There are a number of flower stores in his city or neighborhood doing business with more or less success. Let him find out, if possible, why some forge ahead and others stand still or fall behind. Study well the locations, as much depends on the neighborhood from which the trade is to be drawn.

LOCATION.

There are many reasons why a business may not be successful and location is one of the most important; every other condition may be favorable, but it will take a long time to build up a trade in a poor location. If this is found to be all right, then perhaps the business is not properly managed. A full up-to-date stock is lacking, the outside appearance of the place looks unkempt, signs are not bright, windows need polishing, and but little appears to be displayed to make them attractive. This matter of window decoration is nearly always an index to the prosperity of the business. If windows are more or less filled with bright, fresh stock, plants, flowers, and examples of artistic arrangement, the public is attracted, they stop and admire, make purchases or remember at some future date to do so. Go inside and have a talk with the managers of the various places. You learn every minute of your inspection, you mentally note this or that point of failure or success, that is if you have had experience, and no man should risk his money in such a venture without it; better seek employment with a good house for two or three years, and learn the business from the bottom up. With such a foundation many an important business structure has been built up from a very limited capital. A great many flower shops in the large cities, which are known to be prosperous and successful, are owned by men who began with only a basket in some crowded corner and finally rent or own the store in front of which they used to stand.

THE KIND OF STORE.

In selecting a shop it is well to favor one with a yard in the rear for a greenhouse. A small store is best, for the expense is lighter, it does not cost as much to furnish and a comparatively small amount of stock makes the place appear full. It is changed so often that it is always fresh and salable, while in a large store the percentage of waste in the quantity necessary to fill it is much greater. A smaller ice box suffices, and this with its samples of staple flowers, is much more attractive than a large one half filled. After all, the secret of success lies in the personality of the proprietor. If in building up a trade he has enthusiasm, takes a pleasure in his work, is on the job all the time, studies his customers and their needs, is always ready cheerfully to correct mistakes, he is almost sure to succeed.

Business changes rapidly in these days of combination, and it is much easier to conduct a flower shop now than 15 or even 10 years ago. Flower growers used to carry around their stock and could not be found except at home or when they made their rounds early in the morning. Now with the large commission houses it is possible to get almost anything required, the telephone and the swift-moving auto making it ofttimes a matter of minutes in the delivery of the stock.

CREDITS.

A new establishment should, if possible, require cash or reference from its customers as a matter of course, or follow the custom of giving credits prevalent years ago. Book accounts with responsible people are a good asset to any business; they constitute a good will, it being the rule generally to buy where there is a charge. Accounts with good people are generally paid before the 10th of the month. A bill rendered them being very objectionable to prompt payers. Some things must be charged, but in many lines this promiscuous credit is being curtailed and cash or very short time is now extended except to persons of known financial responsibility. All public utilities now demand cash, or even that payments shall be made in advance. That this plan can be carried out in the cutflower business is seen in a number of instances where flowers, plants, decorations, in fact the entire products, are sold for cash only, and the business increases as the fame of the stores and their low prices become known. Ross, of Philadelphia, Pa., has three such stores in the heart of the business districts of residential sections, and in each the business is increasing rapidly.

There is no doubt that there are many openings in the large cities for these cash stores in which flowers bought in quantity lots are quickly sold at low prices, but which on account of the quantity handled show a very good return. K.

Abutilons for the Greenhouse.

Despite their many desirable qualities, abutilons, generally speaking, do not appear to be as popular now as they were a generation ago. The mood for change has undoubtedly had a good deal to do with this, while on the other hand, the fact that many new varieties were raised in the early '80's led to renewed attention being paid to them at that period. Apart from the vast number of garden forms there are several distinct species, some of which are of high ornamental value. Prominent among these species is Abutilon Darwini, a sturdy-growing plant, with orange-red flowers that are veined with a deeper tint. This species has played an important part in the production of new varieties, the various reds and crimsons having emanated from it. A. insigne, sometimes known as A. igneum, is of a rambling habit, the branches being clothed with large heart-shaped leaves of a peculiarly rugose character. The drooping, bell-shaped flowers are much more widely expanded than the ordinary garden varieties; the color is rosy-red with blackish veinings. This species flowers, as a rule, during the autumn and early winter months.

A. megapotamicum, also known as A. vexillarium, is an exceedingly rapid- you were when you moved out to your growing climber, possessing small, pointed leaves and a profusion of brightly-colored blossoms, that are borne throughout the greater part of the year. The petals are yellow, and the sepals dark red. There is also a variety of this with leaves finely marbled with golden-yellow. This is very popular, indeed it is more generally met with than the ordinary, green-leaved form. A. megapotamicum is valuable as a wall, pillar, or roof plant for the conservatory or greenhouse, while the variegated-leaved variety is often bedded out during the summer months, and under the influence of bright sunshine both the leaves and flowers acquire an unusual richness of coloring.

A. striatum is a very free-growing plant with large-lobed leaves and rich yellow flowers veined with bright red. It is well suited for growing as a pillar plant in a lofty structure. In A. vitifolium we have a grand outdoor shrub for the milder parts of the West of England and similarly favorable spots, but it is not so much at home as a greenhouse shrub. When in good condition it forms a large bush clothed with saucer-shaped flowers of a pleasing shade of porcelain-blue. The white variety of this species is also very desirable.

STANDING CROSS AND WREATH.

Among the many garden forms there is a wide range in color varying from pure white to deep crimson through various intermediate shades. A Boule de Niege, the oldest white-flowered variety, whose origin seems to be unknown, was sent out forty years ago, and although there have been many whites distributed since then, it still remains one of the best of that hue. Another good white variety is named Driven Snow, while other desirable kinds are Anna Crozy, purple; Eureka, pink; Future Fame, crimson; Golden Fleece, yellow, particularly fine; Jules Marty, orange; Rosæflorum, rose; Royal Scarlet, scarlet; Crepuscule, salmon-rose; Sanglant, bright crimson; and Gold Kaffir, deep orange.

These garden varieties of abutilon may be treated in various ways. In the first place, if stopped two or three times during their earlier stages, and shifted into larger pots when necessary, they quickly form bushy specimens that will maintain a display of blossoms for a very long time in the greenhouse or conservatory. An important point to bear in mind is that they are gross feeders, therefore occasional doses of some stimulant are very necessary, and greatly assist the plants in the production of good blooms. Another way of growing abutilons is in standard form, as in this way the pendulous nature of the blossoms is seen to advantage. This remark also applies with equal force when they are trained to a roof, for which purpose the looser-growing kinds are well suited. As an instance of their beauty when grown in this way, reference may be made to a specimen of Golden Fleece in the greenhouse at Kew, which has for years been greatly admired.

There is also quite a long list of abutilons with variegated foliage, among them being A. Darwini tessel-latum, with leaves that are tesselated with various shades of yellow and green; A. Savitzi, the foliage of which is closely variegated with white; A. Souvenir du Bon, a stronger grower and less variegated than the preceding; A. Thomsoni, green leaves mottle gold; and A. Thomsoni flore plena, a double-flowered variety of the latter; A. nævium marmoratum, leaves blotched with pale yellow; and for further varieties there are forms of A. megapotamicum and A. insigne having variegated foliage.—The Gardeners' Magazine.

FLORISTS' FERNS.

Fern Notes.

During midwinter there is comparatively little growth made by the majority of ferns, and consequently but little potting that may be done to advantage, for unless the roots of a plant are active it is not much use to repot. The holiday season uses up a great many ferns, either those in the larger sizes, or the small stock that is available for filling table ferneries and for baskets being among the plants that find a ready opening at this season.

In the more expensive arrangements Adiantum Farleyense takes a prominent part, in some cases the whole plant being turned out of the pot and placed among other plants in a fancy basket, while great quantities are cut off and used for a setting for some elaborate cut flower arrangement. Of course this means considerable outlay on the part of the retailer, for Farleyense in five or six-inch pots count up quite rapidly on the bill, but the results fully justify this form of extravagance. But these plants have to be prepared in advance of the season, for Farleyense cannot be pushed up in a few weeks, the plants in six-inch pots having been grown from small stock of the preceding spring. It is now quite generally understood that this adiantum rarely produces spores, and as a matter of fact, the writer has never seen seedling plants of this fern, though having seen the spores occasionally in an experience of forty years. On this account, the division of the crowns is the method of increase in general use, and this operation is performed early in the season.

There seems to be a dormant eye at the base of nearly every leaf stem, so quite small divisions of the crown will produce a young plant, provided, that proper care be given to the divisions after they are placed in the propagating frame.

A mixture of sand and sphagnum moss makes a good medium in which to start the young plants while they are in the frame, and a rather sandy loam to which has been added some chopped moss and a little broken charcoal, forms a good mixture in which to pot off the young stock from the propagating bed.

When the young plants have progressed sufficiently to require another shift, the compost may be of a stronger nature, some dry cow dung broken up and mixed with the soil being a very satisfactory fertilizer for the purpose. A temperature of 65 at night is a satisfactory condition for growth, this being combined with a moist atmosphere and light shading for the best results.

There is something peculiar and yet quite attractive in the bird's nest fern, Asplenium nidus, its broad and smooth fronds of glossy green forming such a decided contrast to the foliage of ferns in general that it is scarcely to be wondered at that the plant-buying public have taken to it, and that some growers are handling a house or two of this fern. Of course it cannot be used everywhere in place of a Boston fern, but it is a pleasure to see the trade lists of such plants gradually expanding, and the public taste being encouraged toward a greater variety, for the public, like the individual, is very largely a creature of habit.

W. H. TAPLIN.

A Curious Panama Fern.

W. R. Maxon has recently described, in the miscellaneous collections of the Smithsonian Institution, a polypodium from Panama in which the apex of the frond is capable of continuous growth like species of Nephrolepis, says the Fern Bulletin. The pinnules are many times forked, and the sori borne on club-shaped vein endings that project beyond the segments of the frond on which they are located. The fern is named Polypodium podocarpum and is not distantly related to P. curvatum and various other species of the tropics that make their habitat the trunks of trees in the rain forest.

Tennessee Florists.

The tenth annual convention of the Tennessee State Florists' Association, the Tennessee Horticultural Society, the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association and the Tennessee Beekeepers' Association was held in Nashville January 27-29, with headquarters at the Maxwell house, the meetings being held in the assembly room there. There was a large attendance from all over the state of those interested in any of these associations. The Nashville florists decorated the assembly room, and had exhibits of cut flowers and pot plants. The Stark Bros. Nurseries and Orchards Co., of Louisiana, Mo., exhibited Hood River grown apples. Washington apples and many varieties of Tennessee grown, all superb specimens of world-famed delicious apples, were also exhibited. English walnuts and pecans from Vincennes, Ind., were shown and their cultivation explained.

The horticulturists opened the meetings with a call to order January 27 by President Henry R. Howard of Chattanooga. The address of welcome was delivered by Will R. Manier, secretary of the Commercial Club of Nashville. The president's address and that of the secretary-treasurer were encouraging statements of the conditions of the society. The papers prepared were all instructive and entertaining. Dennis Corble, of Chattanooga, gave a fine paper on the "Motor Car as a Factor in Market Gardening." O. M. Watson, of the University of Tennessee, Knoxville, read an instructive paper on "Summer Pruning of the Peach;" R. S. Walker editor of the Southern Fruit Grower at Chattanooga gave an encouraging talk on "The Fruit Growers' Outlook" which was listened to with marked attention; "Growing and Storing Sweet Potatoes" was ably discussed by W. R. Hawk, of Jackson. "My Experience With Compressed Air Sprayers in Commercial Orchardizing" was discussed by J. D. Ellis, Dayton, and Joseph Phillips, of Davidson County; "The Relation of the Fruit Grower to the Beekeeper" was discussed by Ben G. Davis, of Spring Hill. There was a lively discussion on fertilization of orchards, and much valuable information interchanged. Other speakers added their helpful talks that were full of interest. The election of officers resulted as follows: Robert S. Walker, of Chattanooga, president; Neal Varnell, Cleveland, vice-president; Percy Brown of Spring Hill, vice-president for middle Tennessee; A. W. Held, Luttrell, vice-president for east Tennessee; W. Wade, Kenton, vice-president for west Tennessee; R. G. Briggs, Knoxville, secretary-treasurer.

An interesting afternoon session was held. E. A. Miller, of Etowah, horticulturist of the L. & N. railroad, spoke of "Methods Learned at the National Apple Show at Spokane, Wash., as Applicable to the Southern Fruit Grower." L. R. Neel, editor of the Southern Agriculturist, told of the "Importance of Sanitary Methods in Handling Fresh Fruits." "Rules Governing the Naming of Fruits" was ably treated by Prof. E. R. Lake, secretary of the American Pomological Society, Washington, D. C. "My Method of Growing Apples," by W. M. Landess, of Fayetteville; "Observations on Fruit Growing Conditions—Present and Future," by L. C. Stark; "Losses Experienced by Not Spraying in 1914;" "Tree Surgery," by L. G. Vair, Chattanooga; "Fertilization and Cultivation of Apple Orchards," by R. G. Briggs, Experimental Fruit Farm, Knoxville, were all fine and instructive papers and made a most interesting session. A night session closed the meeting.

On Thursday, January 28, the Tennessee State Nurserymen's Association opened their annual session. An invocation was delivered by Rev. James I. Vance. The president, Harvey M. Templeton, Winchester, was unavoidably absent and A. I. Smith of Knoxville presided. A feature of the morning session was an address by John Howe Peyton, president of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railway, who spoke on the "Railroad's Relation to the Horticultural Development of the State." Other subjects discussed were "Growing Apple Trees," by J. H. Blackburn, of Sante Fe; "Home Mixing of Fertilizers," by J. R. H. Hilton, of Knoxville; "Improved Varieties of the Northern Pecan Adapted to Tennessee," by W. C. Ree, of Vincennes, Ind.; "The Nurseryman's Co-operation with the Fruit Grower," by John L. Jones of Columbia. The afternoon session was taken up with interesting papers by Miss Virginia P. Moore, of Lebanon; Harry Nicholson, of Winchester; Bruce Howell, Knoxville; G. M. Bently, state entomologist, who spoke on "Present Status of the Uniform Inspection Law;" W. H. Clayton, Hebron; John Mir, Hendersonville; T. W. Sowell, Columbia; F. H. Hughes, Bowling Green, Ky.; J. W. Hill, Gallatin; A. M. Hill, Luttrell; A. I. Smith, Knoxville. These discussed various problems relating to their work and some very fine papers were given. In the evening another session was held, when Henry B. Chase, of Chase, Ala.; E. W. Chattin, Winchester, and Orlando Harrison, Berlin, Md. spoke. After the meeting a very enjoyable smoker was given to the visiting members. On Friday morning the beekeepers held the floor for two sessions and several good papers were read.

Friday evening the Tennessee State Florists' Society met and held an interesting meeting. The association was organized some months ago, with Charles Baum, of Knoxville, as president. From the meeting held, there will be a closer union between this organization than heretofore. The address of welcome was delivered by T. C. Joy, of Nashville, and response was made by Chas. Baum, of Knoxville. G. M. Bently, state entomologist, gave an interesting talk on "Tennessee's Floral Interests;" Louis Haury, of L. H. Haury & Sons, spoke on "Looking Toward Closer Co-operation;" Mrs. G. H. McNeil, of Jackson, had a paper on "Design Making;" Carl Baum had a talk on "What We Can Make of Our State Society;" A. J. McNutt gave an interesting paper on "History of the Knoxville Florists' Society;" "Who Will Be Benefited by the State Organization of Florists," was ably discussed by Alex Dailey, of Knoxville. Committees were appointed on constitution and by-laws, one on resolutions and one on publicity. There was a business session and from the proceedings this society will soon be one of great importance to the interests in the state.

An election of officers was held and resulted as follows: Thomas C. Joy, Nashville, president; John Haury, Nashville, vice-president; G. A. Kimball, Chattanooga, secretary; G. M. Bently, Knoxville, treasurer. Several very good pictures were taken of the florists and the flowers.

There were many visitors not participating in the programme, among them were A. McNutt, Knoxville; Carl Baum and wife, Knoxville; G. M. Bently, Knoxville; Mrs. Chas. Crouch, Knoxville; M. Kiemel, Chattanooga; A. Tielman, Johnson City; J. Rudolph, Clarksville. M. C. D.

New Carnation Belle Washburn.

The new red seedling carnation Belle Washburn, originated by Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, which was awarded the silver medal of the Society of American Florists, at the Buffalo exhibition of the American Carnation Society, January 27-28, appears to be a most promising variety and is attracting much favorable attention. The color is a brilliant red and the flowers which measure from three and one-half to four inches are carried on long stiff stems, measuring from 24 to 36 inches. Bassett & Washburn have grown this variety for five years and now have 20,000 plants benched, 12,000 of which are grown for cut flower purposes and 8,000 for propagating. This firm expects to have at least 100,000 cuttings by January 1, 1916, when this variety will be distributed for the first time. C. L. Washburn says this new variety is a constant bloomer, giving a steady crop of flowers equal in quantity to that produced by any member of the Enchantress group and can be grown a second year in the same bench by cutting the plants down to eight or ten inches above the ground and removing about one-third or one-half the soil. He says that 25 per cent more flowers of the same high quality can be cut the second year than the first and considers Belle Washburn the leader of an improved type of carnations. A cordial invitation is extended to visit the greenhouses at Greggs, Ill., where this variety can be inspected at any time. This carnation was named after Mr. Washburn's daughter-in-law, Mrs. E. B. Washburn, who now resides at Pasadena, Calif.

Hardy Roses.

Abstract of a paper presented by Alex. Cummins, Jr., before the Horticultural Society of New York, February 21. 1914.

Not many years ago, when the mere mention of the rose suggested June roses only, the rose was essentially a flower of June, and the hybrid, perpetual or remontant type then attained its zenith. The addition of the more recent hybrid tea class has given the rose a new standing as a garden subject. It is not only the flower of June, but we also regard it as a flower to enhance the garden, by its sweet presence, from early June until frost—an added quality that at once pronounces the hybrid tea as the type "par excellence" for general garden culture.

The genus "Rosa" embraces a great many distinct sections, or families, yet the true garden or bedding roses susceptible to successful culture in our climate are restricted to a few well-known types, namely: the tea-scented roses in a few of the more sturdy kinds, the hybrid tea, the hybrid perpetual or remontant, the dwarf polyantha, and the newer Pernetiana group. Some knowledge of the characteristics of these types is essential to the rosarian, particularly when pruning operations are in order, or in the arrrangement of the rose garden, the success of which depends so much on the proper disposal of the various classes.

If a June display, only, is desired, the hybrid remontant type should be drawn from largely, as it is their characteristic to make a prodigious showing at that season, and for this reason they are commended to the owner of the private estate, who is absent during the late summer and would therefore prefer the early display. A limited number of the varieties will flower more or less during the Autumn months, so that by confining the planting list to a careful selection, a creditable showing could be made at that time. In pink varieties, Mrs. John Laing, Paul Neyron, George Arends, Paul's Early Blush, Mrs. R. G. Sharman Crawford and Anna de Deisbach are about the best in this respect. The red roses of this type are sadly deficient in late flowering qualities, the best being Ulrich Brunner and Gloire de Chedame Guinoisseau, varieties distinct in form, although closely related. Good white roses are limited to a few varieties in any type, but particularly so in the hybrid remontant. Frau K. Druschki is easily the best in this section and is, in fact, generally considered the queen of all white roses, regardless of classification. For June flowering only, we can add a number of excellent kinds to the foregoing. In white and flesh shades, the varieties Clio, Margaret Dickson, Gloire Lyonnaise and Mabel Morrison are well worthy a place in the rose garden. In red roses, General Jacqueminot, known as the Jack rose for over half a century, is still one of our finest; Marie Buaman, Alfred Colomb, Marie Rady, Senateur Vaisse, Jules Margotten, and Hugh Dickson are each good garden varieties. Hugh Dickson stands out prominently among these and should not be omitted from the planting list. The pink remontant roses that flower only in June, also include our hardiest garden kinds—Madam G. Luizet, Oakmont, Baronne Prevost, Magna Charta and Baroness Rothschild are varieties that will resist our winter conditions without protection.

THE HYBRID TEA.

For general garden culture, however, the hybrid tea type has attained a degree of popularity that no other type can boast of, and this, we may assume, is the logical test of all-around superiority. Combining the good qualities of the parental types, the hybrid perpetual and the tea-scented principally, it embodies many desirable traits, and although still in its infancy, it has produced so many good varieties that it would be difficult to make a selection of the best without slighting some favorite variety. In this hybrid tea family, pink seems to be the prevailing color, as we find it in other types. The varieties Caroline Testout and Radiance are perhaps the best for all-around garden purposes, yet there are many varieties which have excellent qualities and are almost equally desirable. Cynthia Forde, Konigen Karola, Jonkheer J. L. Mock, Lady Alice Stanley, Earl of Warwick, My Maryland, Lady Ashton, Mrs. George Shawyer and Madam Jules Grolez, are good garden roses, each distinct in some respect. The red hybrid teas are more numerous than we find this color in the remontant type. The varieties Laurent Carle, General Superior Arnold Janssen, Edward Mawley, Gruss an Teplitz, Ecarlate, Cardinal, Leslie Holland, Rhea Reid, General MacArthur and Robin Hood, are all desirable. The white varieties Kaiserin Augusta Victoria, Augustin Guinoisseau, Bessie Brown and Double White Killarney are about the best in their color. Yellow hybrid teas, or varieties with yellow as the predominating color are all too scarce. Mrs. Aaron Ward, Madam Ravary, Madam Jennie Guillemot, Madame Charles Lutand, Mrs. A. R. Waddell and Madame Melanie Soupert, are quite desirable. The variety Sunburst, although somewhat shy in blooming, makes up for this in color and form. There are many excellent varieties of intermediate colors or blends ranging from pink to yellow and orange. The best of these perhaps would be Lady Pirrie, Dean Hole, Antoine Rivoire, Dorothy Page Roberts, Betty, Madame Leon Pain, and Theresa.

In the newer hybrid teas we have some varieties of more than usual merit. Nerissa, a cream-colored variety intermingled with white and peach shadings, is one that must prove popular when better known. Although it is not heavy wooded, it is extremely vigorous in growth, the flowers are large enough for exhibition purposes, and in regard to freedom it leaves little to be desired. British Queen, a fine new white variety, is, when once established a desirable addition to our roses of this color, but it is none too quick in getting under way. Ophelia is another new salmon-shaded rose in the way of Antoine Rivoire, but is more perfect in form and will prove an excellent variety for cutting purposes. Madame Edmund Rostand will also prove a most desirable garden variety. Its free branching growth and fine play of color, including reddish salmon and orange yellow, will especially appeal to the rose lover. General Superior Arnold Janssen is one of the most desirable new red roses, being vigorous in growth and unusually free in flowering. King George V. and George Dickson, two British introductions of last year, were sent out as hybrid tea roses, but under our conditions they partake more of the hybrid perpetual character and are not continuous in flowering. In point of color, however, they may be considered improvements on the majority of the deep crimson varieties and are, therefore to be commended. The comparatively new American rose, Robin Hood, approaches the ideal rose for garden culture in our climate. Its color, a bright rosy scarlet, really improves with its growth as the season advances, deepening into a scarlet crimson. So far it has proved immune from mildew or black spot and appears to flourish under the most adverse conditions, throwing out great heavy bottom growths continually during the hot summer months, each terminating in a massive but beautifully formed flower. Roses of this calibre are the typical roses for America.

TEA ROSES.

Tea roses are more delicate in nature, and while they are noted for their free flowering qualities, they lack constitution, and, with a few notable exceptions, are altogether too tender to survive our severe winters. The varieties Pink and White Mamman Cochet, Wm. R. Smith and Lady Hillingdon, are, however, sufficiently hardy, with a little additional winter protection, to thrive in our climate. The Cochet roses which have been famous for many years and Wm. R. Smith, a variety somewhat similar but more vigorous in growth, are at their best during the autumn. Lady Hillingdon, a remarkably free growing variety, is perhaps one of our best yellow roses and is well worthy of a place in any rose garden.

ROSE PERNETIANA.

An entirely new break in bedding roses was obtained with the introduction of the variety Soleil d'Or, the result of crossing the Austrian briars with hybrid teas and roses of similar types. In this section we find colors that are entirely new in the garden rose, ranging from yellow through orange, copper, apricot and nasturtium red. The type, as a whole, requires a different treatment, particularly in pruning, from that of the other bedding roses, to give the best results. The original variety, Soleil d'Or, is undoubtedly our most glorious garden rose when grown to perfection, but is lacking in continuous flowering qualities.

DWARF POLYANTHA OR BABY RAMBLERS

The last of the more important bedding types brings us to the baby rambler or dwarf polyantha roses. Previous to the introduction of the variety Madame Norbert Levavassem or baby rambler, this type was not considered important. Within the last few years, however, the type, on the whole, has greatly improved and we now have varieties that flower so continuously that they are most desirable for various purposes. Each year shows these roses used more extensively for edging and underplanting the larger types. Massed by themselves they will make a showing that is truly wonderful. Among the newer baby ramblers we find greatly improved varieties, especially in regard to freedom of flowering. Orleans Rose, Jessie and Erna Teschendorff are among the most effective of the red bedding varieties. Among the pink, perhaps the best are Aennchen Muller, Ellen Poulson and Mrs. Cutbush. Among the novelties of this class offered this year, we find varieties so improved as to indicate that this type is entering an era of greater usefulness. When we consider that in Europe some of the most famous rose breeders are devoting their entire time and energy to the production of new roses of this type, we may well look forward to even better things in the future.

In conclusion, it might be apropos to point out that the culture of the hardy rose, although apparently surrounded by detail and difficulties, is one that rapidly becomes a second nature to the enthusiast. Familiarity with the types and characteristics of the varieties removes all technical obstacles. We find with further pursuit none of the arduous, but a hobby that is always fascinating and delightful.

Calceolaria Veitchii.

Robert Veitch & Son, Exeter, Eng., are offering a very distinct new calceolaria. This, in many respects, is a remarkable plant, and an extraordinary departure from the conventional color of greenhouse calceolarias, being milk-white in color. It is a true perennial, has a strong habit of growth, with healthy, strong, lance-shaped, shining, serrated foliage. It bears an abundance of bloom on first-season plants, which grow to a height of about three feet and are quite bushy. The second season the plants may be grown to four and five feet, and then make grand specimens.

Commercial Fertilizer Elements.

U. S. CONTROLS IMPORTANT SOURCES.

Present agricultural practice prescribes the use of three chemical elements as a "soil amendment," a "stimulant for plant growth," or a "plant food," as it is variously put. These three elements, when applied to the soil in which a crop is growing, have been found by practice to afford an increased crop yield. They are phosphorous, potassium and nitrogen, spoken of by the respective trade terms of phosphoric acid, potash and "ammoniates." In the commercial fertilizers phosphoric acid is found in the form of calcium phosphate, which is bone phosphate or rock phosphate, usually treated with sulphuric acid to render it soluble. Potash is found as a salt or salts of potassium, either sulphate or chloride, and the "ammoniates," as the inorganic salt of ammonia, ammonium sulphate, the inorganic salts of nitric acid, sodium nitrate, and inorganic compounds of nitrogen, calcium cyanamid, or the organic compounds of nitrogen, contained in animal or vegetable refuse matter, cottonseed meal, abattoir tankage or fish scrap.

The usual commercial fertilizers contain these three elements and have the designation of "complete fertilizers." These are sold under various brand names, the various brands frequently being recommended for particular crops. The proportion of the three essential ingredients is varied; as a usual thing that of the phosphoric acid is considerably higher than the other two, which are present in about the same proportion. Thus, for example, a "6-2-2 mixture" contains six per cent phosphoric acid (P_2O_5), two per cent ammonia (NH_3), and two per cent potash (K_2O). Its selling price in the retail market is based on its analysis. Little attention is paid to the source of these ingredients so long as the essential compounds are "available," or readily may be decomposed or made soluble for the use of the plants.

The nation's supply of these three common ingredients of fertilizer may be summarized as follows: Of phosphoric acid there is an abundant supply in the large deposits of phosphate rock in Florida and Tennessee, and the enormous deposits of Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

Of potash, now obtained exclusively from the German mines, there is little known in this country outside of the dessicated residues in Searles Lake, Calif., and the giant kelps of the Pacific littoral. In the latter there is much more than enough to supply the present demands of the fertilizer trade of the United States, the present annual consumption of potash being about 1,250,000 tons, of varied composition. At present the kelps are not supplying any of this, since it has not been determined by actual experimentation on a commercial scale that they can be used economically as a source of potash. Estimates based on costs of similar operations indicate that they can be so used.

Of "ammoniates" there is a large source in the ammonia produced as a by-product in the distillation of coal for the production of gas or coke, or both. This source is but partially developed, as by the methods most commonly practiced in this country this possible by-product is not recovered. The amount of ammonia now going to waste is almost large enough to supply all of the "ammoniates" now demanded by the fertilizer trade. The abattoirs supply a large amount of tankage and dried blood of high fertilizer value; but of these possible by-products there is still an enormous loss through the lack of organization and co-operation in the small-scale slaughter of animals for food.

STOCK CLEANS UP WELL.

Business held up very well during the past week. There was a slight falling off on roses during the last few days. But all told, the stock cleaned up very well. Carnations are rather scarce and move none too fast, but the prices, ranging from $2 to $4 per 100, are considered fair for the season. Violets are still plentiful and consequently prices low. Bulbous stock is dropping off in price, and larger shipments are being made every day. Marguerites are scarce for the season and many find it impossible to buy them at any price. The plant trade is normal. Pans of hyacinths and tulips met with a fair demand.

CLUB MEETING.

The Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club held their annual "ladies' night" and installation of officers on January 28. President Herman Bartsch gave a very fine speech in which he pointed out the growing strength and influence of the club. Secretary Wm. Craig reported a membership of 465. Treasurer Peter Fisher was attending the American Carnation Society's convention at Buffalo. The directors were appointed as follows: Andrew Rogers, Geo. Anderson, Peter Miller and Wm. J. Patterson.

The executive committee for 1915 is as follows: J. Wheeler, chairman; R. Cameron, Wm. Sim, Thos. Westwood, F. E. Palmer, John McKenzie, Chas. Sanders, S. J. Goddard, H. Holmes, Julius Huerlin, Wm. Elliot, A. Montgomery, Henry Penn, K. Findlayson, A. A. Pembroke and D. Findlayson. The committee on entertainment is G. W. Hamer, W. J. Collins, J. McIntyre, Henry M. Robinson, Joshua Lawson, W. R. Thornhill, Geo. Noyse, J. McCarthy, Harold Edgar and W. H. Judd. An entertainment followed the business meeting and was a great success. Refreshments were served and were followed by dancing. The whole meeting was a very enjoyable affair, about 400 being present.

New England carnation growers certainly deserve credit for the showing made at the convention at Buffalo, Fifty-two first prizes came to New England. A. A. Pembroke, of Beverly, Mass., exhibited 22 vases and won 22 prizes. This in itself speaks well for the quality of his carnations as it took 1,500 blooms to complete his exhibits. A. Roper, Tewksbury, Mass., had four exhibits and won three medals and a first prize. His new seedling, Alice Coombs, according to reports, seemed to be the "hit" of the show. E. Winkler. I. Strout, S. J. Goddard and J. A. Nelson also deserve credit for their high class blooms.

NOTES.

F. W. Fletcher of Auburndale, Mass., sent out invitations to come and see his strain of Freesia Purity, Saturday and Sunday, January 30-31. His houses are a solid mass of blooms of the finest freesias one could wish to see. He figures that there are 300,000 blooms showing color, so some idea can be formed of the appearance of his houses. It has long been his ambition to own land in Florida where he can grow his bulbs, and now he is considering a place there where he will spend the winters hereafter. During the two days he had about 200 visitors.

J. Peterson, of Saxonville, Mass., is shipping a heavy crop of myosotis to the Boston Flower Exchange. He also has a good cut of the standard varieties of carnations.

Wm. T. Walke, of Salem, Mass., is strong on Freesia Purity in 4-inch pots at present. They are very well flowered and thrifty looking stock.

J. A. Budlong & Son Co., of Auburn, R. I., is shipping to the co-operative market some very fine American Beauty roses at present. All their stock looking particularly fine just now.

M. Leibman at the flower exchange is receiving very good carnations from C. B. Johnson of Woburn, Mass. He is also receiving good jonquils from Peter Hylen of Randolph, Mass.

Burgess & Cooney, of Malden, Mass., are sending to the co-operative market some very fine double tulips and jonquils. Their carnations are doing very well this year.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. G. A. Heyne.

Mrs. G. A. Heyne, wife of Superintendent of City Parks Heyne, of Dubuque, Ia., died at the family residence in that city January 27. For nearly a year her health had been failing and for a month previous to her death her condition had been serious. She was born sixty-two years ago and had made Dubuque county her home all her life. Her husband and two brothers, Henry L. Wilke and Frederic Wilke, are left to mourn her death.

She was greatly devoted to her husband and his work, a great lover of flowers, a friend to all park visitors, a loving and generous friend to all. Her broad charity was not confined to her home, and many needy ones found in her a true friend. The funeral was held Saturday, January 30, with burial at Linwood Cemetery. The many beautiful floral offerings showed the high esteem in which the deceased was held by her friends.

SHREVEPORT, LA.—C. E. Rush, of Richmond, Ind., florist and greenhouse proprietor, is spending some time in this city, visiting his sister, Miss D. E. Rush.

Society of American Florists.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS' MEETING.

President Patrick Welch has issued a call for the meeting of the board of directors at the La Salle hotel, Chicago, Monday, March 1, at 10 a. m.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Sprays That Stick.

Referring to the article in your issue of January 16, page 1343, on "Cactus Solution in Arsenical Sprays," in spraying with Bordeaux, especially carnations, we always use brown sugar or molasses, just a small amount. This causes cohesiveness and results are far better. Probably a little coal oil emulsion added would be still better. This has cleared up red spider effectively. The spray should be made very fine, preferably on a dark day. We use about a quarter or a third pint sugar or molasses to two gallons of spray.

C. BETCHER.

Gas Kills Plants.

Charles C. Ball, florist of Wakefield, Mass., has placed a statement before the municipal lighting department, in which he claims that escaping gas has destroyed growing plants valued into the thousands of dollars, during the past two years. The damage has occurred, he says, only during cold weather and those who have made tests for him state that when the ground has frozen, the leaking gas, alleged to come from a city main, has found a passage in the unfrozen ground into the greenhouses.

American Gladiolus Society.

The American Gladiolus Society will hold two shows next August, one at Atlantic City, N. J., which will be a mammoth trade exhibition, not for competition, the idea being to create a greater interest in the gladiolus. Maurice Fuld, 1 Madison avenue, New York, has the matter in charge and will be glad to correspond with any wishing to take part.

The annual meeting and show will be held at Newport, R. I. The preliminary schedule of prizes will be issued shortly. Secretary Henry Youell, who has charge of the show, predicts it will be a record breaker, as the premium list is the largest and best the society has ever had. The dates for holding the shows will be announced shortly.

Agricultural Appropriation Bill.

The Agricultural Appropriation Bill, which is now under discussion by the house of representatives at Washington, contains the following clauses of interest to seedsmen and florists:

For studying and testing commercial seeds, including the testing of samples of seeds of grasses, clover, or alfalfa, and lawn-grass seeds secured in the open market, and where such samples are found to be adulterated or misbranded the results of the tests shall be published, together with the names of persons by whom the seeds were offered for sale, $28,700.

For horticultural investigations, including the study of producing, handling and shipping truck and related crops, including potatoes, and the study of landscape and vegetable gardening, floriculture and related subjects, $56,080.

For continuing the necessary improvements to establish and maintain a general experiment farm and agricultural station on the Arlington estate, in the state of Virginia, in accordance with the provisions of the act of congress, approved April 18, 1900, $15,000.

For investigation in foreign seed and plant introduction, including the study, collection, purchase, testing, propagation, and distribution of rare and valuable seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants from foreign countries and from our possessions, and for experiments with reference to their introduction and cultivation in this country. $75,400.

For the purchase, propagation, testing and distribution of new and rare seeds; for the investigation and improvement of grasses, alfalfa, clover, and other forage crops, including the investigation of the utilization of cacti and other dry land plants; and to conduct investigation to determine the most effective methods of eradicating weeds; $119,920, and for the purchase and distribution of drought-resistant field seeds throughout the Great Plains area and other dry-land sections of the United States, $39,000 of this amount.

For chemical investigation of soil types, soil composition and soil minerals, the soil solution, solubility of soil and all chemical properties of soils in their relation to soil formation, soil texture and soil productivity, including chemical work in connection with the soil survey, $22,350.

For physical investigation of the important properties of soils which determine productivity, such as moisture relations, aeration, heat conductivity, texture and other physical investigations, $15,000.

For exploration and investigation within the United States to determine possible sources of supply of potash, nitrates and other natural fertilizers, $35,500.

For investigation of soils, in cooperation with other branches of the department of agriculture and other departments of the government, state agricultural experiment stations, and other state institutions, and for indicating upon maps and plats, by coloring or otherwise, the results of such investigation, $168,200.

For enforcement of the Plant Quarantine act, to enable the secretary of agriculture to carry into effect the provisions of the act of August 12, 1912, as amended March 4, 1913, entitled "An Act to Regulate the Importation of Nursery Stock and Other Plants and Plant Products, to enable the secretary of agriculture to establish and maintain quarantine districts for plant diseases and insect pests; to permit and regulate the movement of fruits, plants, and vegetables therefrom and for other purposes," $50,000.

Carnation Convention Echoes.

The banquet at the Iroquois hotel, Thursday evening, January 28, was a splendid affair, the large dining room being handsomely decorated by the local florists. Wm. F. Kasting officiated admirably as toastmaster, having the support of a fine array of speakers including W. H. Eiss, Buffalo Florists' Club; J. A. Valentine, Society of American Florists; S. J. Goddard, American Carnation Society; W. R. Pierson, American Rose Society; Geo. Asmus, National Flower Show; F. R. Pierson, New York spring show; C. S. Strout, Jos. H. Hill, F. Brown, John A. Dunlop, F. E. Dorner, A. F. J. Baur, W. A. Manda, J. F. Ammann and M. J. Stewart.

Much sympathy was expressed with Edwin Lonsdale, way off in Lompoc, Calif., when his illness was announced at the meeting. The Brave Old Duke of York still occupies a large place in the hearts of his many friends throughout the land.

Chas. Loechner of Loechner & Co., New York, still found many friends to welcome him on his arrival late the last day of the meeting. Both St. Louis and Philadelphia will have national carnation exhibitions next year.

Horticultural Society of New York.

FALL EXHIBITION.

The fall exhibition of this society will be held November 4-7, inclusive, at the American Museum of Natural History. The schedule of premiums is now being prepared, and as soon as ready, announcement will be made in these columns. This is the big autumn show of New York and vicinity, and it is hoped that other societies in this vicinity in fixing the dates of their shows will avoid this period in so far as possible. Such action will accrue to the best interests of all.

WHOLESALE COMMISSION FLORISTS

163 North Wabash Avenue, CHICAGO, ILL.

The House of Kennicott long known as "Carnation Headquarters" has now arranged to handle the entire stock of some of the best known rose growers in the country.

Kennicott's new rose department has one of the most complete assortment of fancy grades on the Chicago market.

The addition of a Rose department means an increase in the stock handled by this House, but in no way detracts from the established reliable lines of Carnations, Seasonable Bulb Stock, etc.

We have Fancy Valley at all times, and of course are headquarters for Greens.

San Francisco.

STOCK PLENTIFUL WITH LIGHT DEMAND.

As is usual at this season of the year, trade in the cut flower line is very quiet. There are plenty of flowers to go around of nearly everything with the exception of carnations, but this flower too, is meeting with scant demand. There are great quantities of roses arriving daily and of splendid quality, and were it not for the fact that great numbers find their way to the northwest, there would be very poor prices prevailing. The only rose that is in short supply at present is Cecile Brunner. In carnations, Gorgeous is still the favorite and is bringing $4 per 100. The prices of the other varieties range from $2 to $3 for select. The market is full of cattleyas. Every store in town is showing them in great profusion and they are moving fairly well at that. Freesias are now in and meet with ready sale, the price varying from $2 to $3 per 100 according to grade. There are also a few chrysanthemums hanging on. Lily of the valley is plentiful and is quoted from $3 to $4. There seems to be a great abundance of pot plants, such as cyclamens, azaleas, etc. There was a much larger stock of these plants grown this season than the market could absorb and we may expect to find good stock in evidence for some time to come. The market for greens is quiet. There are plenty of ferns, asparagus and smilax, but in common with other stock, are not subject to any unusual demand. With the opening of the exposition only a few weeks away, and all the social functions it is likely to bring about, the majority of the trade are taking a fairly optimistic view of the situation, and are in the hopes that the next fortnight will bring about a much desired improvement.

The executive committee of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen and the California association have jointly fixed the meeting date for 1915, August 12-14, at this city, in the new auditorium, close to the Exposition. August 16 is "nurseryman's day" at the Exposition, and James A. Barr, director of congresses, will give personal attention to make that day one of great interest and much pleasure to nurserymen from all parts of the world. President John Vallance states that when the gavel strikes at the opening session, 500 members are to be in attendance, so that it will be necessary to plan early for the trip and make the coming event known to fellow nurserymen. Never before in the history of the world will horticulturists have had such opportunity to see and inspect trees, plants and flowers from all climes. The Society of American Florists will meet at the same place August 17-18, and the American Pomological Society on a date closely following. The National Association of Gardeners will also be there at the same time, and taken all together it will be the greatest gathering of the craft at one place at one time that we will witness for a long time to come.

The California State Floral Society, one of the oldest organizations of its kind on the coast, is writing to the different horticultural societies throughout the state soliciting their co-operation for the holding of a spring flower show in this city, the location of which is to be determined later. They are requesting the different societies to appoint committees to meet in conjunction with that of the society. The address of the society's secretary is J. G. Weintzen, 240 Golden Gate avenue. It has been some years since we have had a spring show in this city, and it is to be hoped that the appeal of this society will be considered seriously.

Frank G. Cuthbertson, of C. C. Morse & Co., who is also assistant secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society, is a very busy man these days, perfecting plans and arrangements for the show to be held in the Palace of Horticulture, June 4. Through his untiring efforts most of the leading professional and amateur growers on the coast have signified their intention of exhibiting. A large number of the eastern seed houses, specializing in sweet peas, will also show. From present indications the show will be perhaps the most elaborate ever held in this country, which is saying a good deal.

One of the interesting displays that is being made ready at present, at the exposition grounds, is that of the Yokohama Nursery Company. This firm has a magnificent stock of plants which is being very carefully arranged and will no doubt be one of the interesting features of the horticultural section. The exhibit consists of several thousand plants and many bulbs also.

Andrew McDonald, chief of floriculture, for San Mateo County, has a remarkable showing at the county greenhouses at San Carlos. His cyclamens, nephrolepis and adiantums are in grand shape and Mr. McDonald is to be congratulated upon the showing he has made in so short a time.

It is with much regret that I have to report that Mrs. E. Servean, wife of one of our leading florists, is making slow progress on the road to recovery from the effects of a recent accident. She is still confined to the French hospital in this city.

Hector MacLean, of Vancouver, B. C., and well known to the trade in this city, is in town. He has decided to locate in this vicinity permanently.

Belle Washburn

THE BEST RED CARNATION.

Winner of the Silver Medal at the last Exhibition of the American Carnation Society, Buffalo, N. Y., January 27 and 28.

THIS new red Seedling Carnation is the leader of what we consider an improved type of carnation. The color is a most brilliant red. The size of the flower 3½ to 4 inches. Stems 24 to 36 inches long, stiff and strong as iron. We have never had a burst calyx. all flowers grading firsts and best of all it is a constant bloomer giving a steady run of flowers equal in number to the Enchantress family and should be grown a second year right in the same bench by cutting down to 8 to 10 inches above ground and removing about one-third or one-half the soil. The second year at least twenty-five per cent more flowers of the same high quality can be cut than the first year. For above reasons we consider the Belle Washburn the leader of an improved type of carnations.

The present sharp competition in business requires the grower to plant a variety that always produces high grade flowers, never bursts the calyx, has strong, long stems, is a steady and continuous bloomer, no cropper and does away with the replanting every year, saving one-half the heavy expense of your young stock each year. The color is the most brilliant red of any carnation now grown. We have grown this variety for five years, it being one of our own seedlings and we now have 20,000 plants benched in our greenhouses at Greggs of which 12,000 are for the cut flowers and 8,000 devoted to rooted cuttings. We will have 100,000 strong, well rooted cuttings guaranteed, not a single top cutting in the lot, ready for delivery by January 1, 1916.

To those who wish to improve the earning capacity of their greenhouses we invite a visit to our greenhouses at Greggs, Ill., and an investigation of our statements, which we back up with our 22 years of business reputation in the cut flower trade. The flowers of the Belle Washburn are being sold in Chicago at retail by the following well known houses:

E. Wienhoeber Co.	W. J. Smythe	John Mangel
Geo. Wittbold Co.	Johnson & Chronis	August Lange
C. A. Samuelson	O. J. Friedman	The Alpha Floral Co.

and many others. The flowers are for sale wholesale only by ourselves. The price of the rooted cuttings for Jan. 1, delivery in 1916 will be $12 per 100 or $100 per 1000.

DISAGREEABLE WEATHER.

The disagreeable weather of the past week has affected trade somewhat with the result that stock is a trifle more plentiful and the market is not as firm as it was last week. The weather at this writing has turned colder again, however, and a gradual improvement in business will likely result. Short and medium stemmed roses are still scarce, but there are plenty of the fancy grades obtainable. Richmond roses are more plentiful than they have been and the same holds good for American Beauties, but at that both are cleaning up well each day at good prices. Killarney roses are more plentiful as are White Killarney and the supply of Prince de Bulgaria and Mrs. Geo. Shawyer seems to be steadily increasing. Killarney Brilliant roses are arriving in fine condition now and some choice Sunburst and Mrs. Aaron Ward are also seen. Carnations are seen in large supply everywhere, but are moving fairly well. Some choice stock is obtainable in this line at present and the better grades especially seem to be moving as well as can be expected, all things considered. Orchids are in large supply, but the supply of gardenias is very small and it is almost impossible to supply the demand at times. Sweet peas have improved greatly in quality and the supply is much larger. Violets have not been moving any too well the past week and have been sold in large quantities at very low prices. Lilies are plentiful and so is lily of the valley, but the latter is cleaning up pretty well each day. Jonquils, tulips, Paper White narcissi, freesias and Romans are arriving in larger quantities and some very choice stock is obtainable in all these lines. Greens of all kinds are plentiful and from present indications it appears as if there will be a large supply of choice stock in all lines for St. Valentine day to select from at reasonable prices. This is getting to be quite a big flower day and the retailers everywhere should bear in mind that February 14 is rapidly approaching and make up their orders and place them as early as possible.

NOTES.

The programme of the next florists' club meeting will include an old-fashioned smoker for which Chairman Fink, of the good-of-the-club committee, says all arrangements have been completed. The transportation committee will make a preliminary report on the San Francisco convention trip. The meeting will be held at the Hotel Bismarck, Thursday evening, February 4, at 8 o'clock.

John Kruchten says his shipments of gardenias are very small now, and that it is impossible for him to supply anywhere near the demand.

Beauties-Roses

Bassett & Washburn are more than pleased with the splendid record that their new red seedling carnation Belle Washburn made last week when it won the silver medal at the Buffalo exhibition of the American Carnation Society on January 27-28. This splendid variety has attracted much attention on the local market the past year and will be distributed on January 1, 1916. A cordial invitation is extended to all local and visiting florists to inspect this variety at the firm's greenhouses at any time that they desire, for it has been given a most thorough test and found to be such an unusually fine variety that this firm does not hesitate a moment to back it up with their business reputation of 22 years as growers for the cut flower trade.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are handling a large variety of seasonable cut flowers now, including everything in bulbous stock and a fancy grade of American Beauty roses. Florida grown gladioli are still seen in large supply daily at this store and are meeting with good demand. Business has been good right along, A. L. Vaughan reports, and while conditions have not been what they should be the opening of this week, they could hardly expect to be otherwise with a heavy storm raging throughout the country as was the case the last few days.

Peter Reinberg will grow as many Ophelia roses as possible this year, and at the very least 20,000, according to Emil Reichling, superintendent of the Reinberg greenhouses, who paid the store force a visit on February 1. He is firmly convinced that this is the best variety in its class that is now being grown at the Reinberg establishment, and adds that the E. G. Hill Co. certainly picked a winner when it placed this rose on the market. Mr. Reinberg was confined to his home several days this week with a severe cold, but is up and around again.

N. J. Wietor says that business continues to be very good at Wietor Bros.' store and that while the disagreeable weather of the past few days has affected trade somewhat stock in all lines is cleaned up well at their establishment each day at satisfactory prices. Killarney and Richmond roses are in good crop with them now and a large supply is to be seen at the store now.

Phil Brodbeck says that the damage to his roses by gas last week was so severe that he does not expect to cut any more flowers for at least three or four months. The plants are completely stripped of their foliage and one cannot realize how much the damage really is unless a visit is made to the place.

H. B. Kennicott is well pleased with the way business has been at Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store since he became president and says that January 30 was the best day that the firm has had for some time. Roses and bulbous flowers are now featured in good supply at this store.

The Retail Florists' Association met at the Hotel Bismarck last Monday, February 1, when several important papers were read and thoroughly discussed. A Dutch luncheon was served and the 30 members present had a most enjoyable time. Another meeting will be held in about two weeks.

Phil Schupp reports that the demand for lily of the valley has been brisk all week at the J. A. Budlong store and that the cuts are cleaned up nicely each day. His firm will have a large cut of this stock as well as roses for St. Valentine Day.

It is rumored that one of the employes of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association will be married in the near future. Paul Klingsporn, Michael Fink and Mr. Niessen are already benedicts, so only one guess is necessary.

Otto W. Frese, with Poehlmann Bros. Co., received a folder this week from the Duluth Floral Co., Duluth, Minn., which contained an interior view of its very pretty store.

THE ALWAYS RELIABLE WHOLESALE FLORISTS

ROSES AND CARNATIONS

Our supply of roses is steadily increasing now that our Growers are coming in crop again and this is especially true in regard to Prince de Bulgarie and Richmond of unusually fine quality, so if you can use any stock in either of these two varieties you would do well to place your order with us, because our stock is perfect in every respect and our supply is large enough so that we can fill all orders at prices that will meet with your approval. In addition to Richmond and Bulgarie we have all the other new and standard roses as well as American Beauties and are always ready to serve you. In Carnations we have every variety that is worth handling and can take as good care of you in this line as we can in Roses.

For St. Valentine Day

Large supply of the finest Freesias that you ever had an opportunity to buy. Also Tulips, Romans, Narcissus, Violets, Sweet Peas, Valley, etc. Bear in mind that you can obtain whatever you need in seasonable Cut Flowers and Greens from us, for our line is so complete that if any particular item is desired and is to be had, it is usually at our establishment.

We Are Wholesalers Doing a Strictly Wholesale Business.

30 E. Randolph St., L. D. Phone Central 3284. Chicago

At Zech & Mann's store Prince de Bulgaria roses are arriving in splendid condition as well as in large quantities and the same holds good for fancy freesia, which is in good demand now. Miss Carrie Zech, a daughter of the senior member of this firm, is still confined to the Presbyterian hospital, where she is receiving treatment for neuritis.

S. Freund of the A. A. Arnold Paper Box Co. has returned from an out-of-town trip, which covered a period of several weeks and is now calling on his local customers. His firm had a good call for its special folding Valentine boxes and late orders for same are being filled as quickly as they arrive.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are now manufacturing wire lamp shades in addition to its regular line of wire floral designs. Business at this house is reported to be very good and John and Joseph Ziska manage to fill enough orders to keep Raymond and his delivery truck going all day.

M. C. Gunterberg is booking orders for violets for St. Valentine's Day at prices which would lead one to believe that they will be plentiful then.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. has its supply department well stocked up with goods for the coming season and according to T. E. Waters, who is in charge, business is showing much improvement. At the greenhouses in Morton Grove a nice lot of lily of the valley in six-inch pots, in bloom, is ready for immediate use and is meeting with good demand among the retailers who feature it in their window displays.

J. Mergen, the well known West Twelfth street florist, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his son, Henry J. Mergen, whose death occurred January 30. He was 26 years of age and was well known in the local market for he was formerly identified with his father in business. The funeral was held from the family residence at 2526 Avers avenue and interment was at Oak Ridge cemetery.

The civil service board of the West Chicago park commissioners will hold an examination for florists February 24, at 9 a. m., at the Garfield Park pavilion. Applications must be filed in the office of the board in Union park before 5 p. m., February 23, 1915. Application blanks may be obtained at the office of the board in Union park or at the West park playgrounds.

Frank F. Benthey is now making his headquarters at Kennicott Bros'. store at 163 North Wabash avenue and will hereafter sell the output of the Benthey greenhouses at New Castle, Ind., through this store. Mr. Benthey, as usual, will have personal supervision over the Benthey roses and will give his customers the same attention as in the past.

Philip L. McKee of the John C. Moninger Co., is back from a pleasant business trip to Milwaukee, Wis., where he called on quite a number of the growers. He reports that he found them all in good spirits and pretty well satisfied with business conditions so far this year.

Sidney Buchbinder is doing double duty at Buchbinder Bros. store, 518 Milwaukee avenue, where the Buchbinder refrigerators are sold, since his father, Henry Buchbinder, has been confined to the hospital, where he recently underwent an operation for appendicitis.

John Risch, of Weiland & Risch, expects to see a shortage in Mrs. Chas. Russell rose plants before the planting season is over if one-third of the inquiries that are now being received turn out to be orders.

Percy Jones is strong on fancy carnations this week and is supplying his trade with some very choice Enchantress and other leading varieties. He reports a brisk demand for chiffon and other supplies.

A. T. Pyfer says that the demand for carnation cuttings at the Chicago Carnation Co.'s store is much better than it has been and several large orders have been booked the past few days.

A little baby girl gladdened the household of George Propps and wife last week. The happy father is employed as salesman at George Perdika's South Dearborn street store.

St. Louis.

MARKET CLEANS UP WELL.

The cold, cloudy weather which prevailed last week caused stock in general to be quite scarce. Roses were very scarce and carnations cleaned up at good prices. A good demand in funeral work cleaned up narcissi, lilies and greens of all kinds, and at this writing a thaw has taken place, with propects of cooler weather.

NOTES.

J. J. Beneke received a telegram from Fred Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., that St. Louis had been selected as the next meeting place of the American Carnation Society and that he had been elected vice-president.

The florists' club dance took place January 27, but owing to the very severe weather the attendance was cut down, but the crowd that was there had a splendid time.

Young & Sons had the decorations for the second annual Imperial ball, January 25, over 5,000 carnations being used.

Alphonse Artman, of Mullanphy Florists, will be married in the spring. Congratulations are in order.

Ed. Kalisch, of Kalisch Bros., has been on the sick list, but is now out again attending the store.

Frank Vennemann was in town recently. He is cutting some nice carnations.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. has a fine stock in double violets.

The annual report of the trustees of Shaw's Garden is out.

Arthur Waldman reports the cut flower trade good.

Robert J. Windler had a very prettily decorated window.

O'Leary Floral Co. says trade is improving.

Moss Floral Co. reports business good.

W. F.

Wichita, Kan.

TRADE HOLDING UP TO AVERAGE.

The past month will show about the usual volume of business for January, with funeral work furnishing a good part of the demand. There seems to be a conservative tendency abroad, even in the land of the big wheat crop, and while the volume of business is fair, there prevails a feeling that it ought to be better. Growing conditions have been fair during the month, and the local supply has improved both in quality and quantity.

NOTES.

Fire destroyed the boiler room and packing shed of the J. R. Sites lettuce houses January 26. The ends of two greenhouses were destroyed with considerable damage to the glass and almost a total loss of crops therein. A third house was slightly damaged. Fortunately the weather was mild, and with hard work repairs were made to it and the heating plant in time to save it, with but partial loss of crop.

F. Kuechenmeister handled the decoration for the banquet of the state cattlemen's convention last week; about one thousand were served.

W. H. Culp & Co. are showing fine azaleas and Begonia Lorraine, and are just right with a crop of violets for the Valentine trade.

Valentine Day Baskets

Pretty heart shaped styles, made especially for this occasion. Order as early as possible, for the the day is rapidly approaching.

SHORT SUPPLY ADVANCES PRICES.

Stock in many lines still continues scarce, roses particularly selling up very close, and one has to make a round of the commission houses to get together a dozen special American Beauties, a few at each place making up the total. Prices have advanced very materially, being higher now than they were at the holidays. Growers hope before long, with the crops coming on, to be able to relieve the situation. If in turn, the retailers could only do something to create an increasing demand, and keep it more in unison with the supply, everybody would be happy. Carnations continue in abundance, with the quality fine Something has been said about Enchantress running out; the stock here is fine and it is one of the leading sorts in this market. Sweet peas sell well, the orchids having the call and easily hold their own in the race with all other flowers Bulbous stock is now plentiful; tulips are seen in all colors; Golden Spur daffodils are large stocks in all the commission houses; Paper White narcissi are easing up, $5 to $7.50 per 1,000 being the price last week. Cattleyas are seen much above the demand, still really select flowers command a good price. Callas and Easter lilies are abundant, as is lily of the valley. Violets are offered at a discount, owing not so much to a large supply, as a poor demand, the business in the stores being light. Gardenias have sold well the past week, although there appears to be enough to supply special sales in some of the stores at 10 cents each, for very good, fresh stock, but a trifle short in the stems. Good asparagus and maidenhair are in demand; there scarcely ever seems a surplus of this necessary stock and yet the retailer gets no profit out of handling it, unless it is purchased outright, as it goes a little at a time without charge with almost all purchases. Mme. Van der Cruyssen azaleas are now offered, some very well flowered plants being seen. Primula malacoides, with its wealth of dainty blossoms, is also a welcome addition to the pot plants. Bulb pans, hyacinths, tulips and daffodils, are also offered and they are very good for the season.

CLUB MEETING.

The February meeting was rather slimly attended. Matters connected with the S. A. F. were the feature. Adolph Farenwald reported that the national committee has definitely decided to rent convention hall for the international exhibition to be held next year. President Burton was directed to urge the executive committee of the S. A. F., at its coming meeting, that the society take up the work of nation-wide publicity to the end that the general public will take a greater interest in horticultural matters, plants, flowers, etc.. for the adornment of the exterior and interior of the house. Such work will, they feel, be sure to redound to the benefit of the trade generally. A recital on the Edison diamond disc phonograph, with the compliments of the company, was given after the meeting adjourned.

NOTES.

The Habermehl Bellevue-Stratford store used imported heather and broom in their window decoration. Several nicely flowered specimens of ericas were also a feature, as were baskets of cyclamens. Their Ritz-Carleton store window was done in yellow, well flowered acacias and forced Forsythia sprays, with choice cattleyas, making a fine display. Very unique store fittings of special patterns will make this shop very beautiful. The large flower case is a model of efficiency in arrangement and lighting. A large, high-ceilinged basement with an auxiliary flower case gives them a commodious work room where orders may be assembled without confusion in the store.

Stewardson Brown, botanist of the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, has gone to Porto Rico with Nathaniel Britton, director of the New York Botanical garden. The flora of this tropical clime will interest them for the next two months.

Choice white and pink Killarney, splendid flowers, together with Lady Hillingdon and a few Hadley roses, are the varieties in the Jos. Heacock Co.'s stock. There is a magnificent stock of kentias at its Wyncote place.

Spring flowers continue a feature with the Leo Niessen Co. There is a large assortment of choice stock in variety. Rooted carnation cuttings of the leading varieties are handled in large quantities.

The Century Shop ran a special sale of imported Scotch heather last week in honor of Burns' birthday. Special plaid covered boxes tied with plaid ribbon, were a feature.

Easter and calla lilies, together with a large assortment of orchid sweet peas, were the leaders with the Berger Brothers. Select lily of the valley was also a feature.

Pennock Bros'. window was very attractive last week, arranged with fancy boxes and baskets of heather and other choice flowers.

The M. Rice Co.'s handy desk calendar has made quite a hit; it is something better than most things in this line.

A cattleya with 27 blooms was one of the features in H. H. Battle's window last week.

New York.

During the past week there was a scarcity of stock and prices advanced. That was due, rather to the falling off in supply than to any increase in the demand, because there was no increase in demand. Necessarily, in a great city like this there will always be some business, but at the present time the flower business is far below what it should be, and far below what it has been in previous years at this season. Various publications may hand out inflated reports, but a trade paper is of no value unless it gets somewhere near the truth. While roses are yet off crop, there is an increase in the supply of carnations and a leading dealer, on January 30, advised us that he received more on that day than he could sell. Paper White narcissi are getting pretty well cut out and the price has somewhat advanced. The yellow stock remains about the same as our quotations of last week. Orchids and gardenias remain cheap.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW

NOTES.

For a comparatively small sized flower stand in City Hall park, near the Brooklyn bridge, Anna Papadametri bid $12,120 per year, rent, on January 30, and held it against other bidders. The stand formerly rented for $50 per month. Miss Papadametri, who is well known in the trade, as soon as she was declared the successful bidder, counted out $2,020 as two months' rent in advance.

Dorothy Caroline Gunther, aged 12 years, daughter of John Gunther, of Gunther Bros., the well known wholesalers of West 28th street, died on January 28. She had been ill for over a year with heart trouble. Interment was on January 30. Mr. and Mrs. Gunther have the sympathy of many friends.

George Vocke, who, for 14 years, has been with Joseph Millang in the rooms of the New York Cut Flower Co., is now selling the carnation stock of F. B. Abrams and Julius Chevally, Blue Point, N. Y. In his section we have just noted a handsome floral horse-shoe inscribed: "From your employers."

M. Barker, of THE AMERICAN FLORIST, Chicago, after attending the American Carnation Society's meeting, came on from Buffalo and spent several days in this city.

L. B. Coddington, the well known rose grower of Murray Hill, N. J., who is a heavy shipper to H. E. Froment, is reported to be seriously ill with pneumonia.

Roman J. Irwin, well known in the seed and plant trade, has taken rooms at 108 W. 28th street.

The scores of the New York Florists' Bowling Club, January 28, were as follows:

J. Miesem	169	214	167
A. Donaldson	170	163	156

STOCK AND DEMAND BALANCE.

Weather conditions in Buffalo the past week have been as varied as the population. Stock the past week has been equal to all demands and of good quality. Roses, such as Maryland, Killarney and Ward, are in good condition. Daffodils are improving daily, while tulips are as usual, short stem for the first crop. Carnations are getting better each day, as are also sweet peas.

NOTES.

The American Carnation Society, which met here the past week, we trust had a pleasant time. The local florists tried to make their visit a memorable one; if they failed it was not their fault. The different committees, headed by S. A. Anderson, W. J. Palmer and Wm. F. Kasting, with their assistants, tried to have everything in readiness. The A. C. S., like all well organized associations, got right down to business. Their exhibition was a grand one from every point of view. The tables of the local florists in the exhibition hall were excellent, as were also the decorations in the banquet room, showing plainly that carnations can be used very effectively in decorating. Many of the visitors made visits to Palmer's, Scott's and Anderson's green houses.

S. A. Anderson is sending in some fine lilac plants which are selling well. Other plants, such as daffodils, cyclamens, azaleas and hyacinths, are on sale in all stores. The different stores have had very attractive windows the past week which is in keeping with the Buffalo idea, "make an attractive window and you sell your goods."

BANQUET NOTES.

The match game between Rochester and Buffalo for the Lord & Burnham trophy and won by Rochester will put Buffalo on their mettle. They thought they had a cinch, but Allie Salter and the Glenn team were very much alive, and consequently Buffalo will have to go to Rochester if they want that cup in Buffalo permanently—and they will have to practice before they go. If the young shoots don't improve, the "has beens," Kasting, McClure, Adams and some others, will have to bowl at least one game to get a score for the regulars.

Toastmaster Kasting made good use of his time, not missing many, working the seven minute order only one way. The speakers were Messrs. Valentine, Strout, F. R. and Wallace Pierson, Urban, Asmus, Neubeck, Goddard and Brown of the sixth city, and W. J. Stewart, who so ably responded to the toast of the ladies who were well represented and were an inspiration to the banquet. John H. Dunlop was an able representative for Canada.

The young men visitors have got to take their hats off to the other youngsters, Messrs. Evans, Nicholson and Burki. Will they look as hale and hearty after 30 years of conventions as the three boys mentioned? Some one else will have to answer.

BISON.

Albany, N. Y.

Among those who left last week to attend the exhibition and convention of the American Carnation Society at Buffalo were, Fred Henkes, formerly president of the Albany Florists' Club, Thomas F. Tracey, manager of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, and Roman J. Irwin of New York. On their return from Buffalo the three stopped off at Rochester to visit some of the growers' and retailers and returned home January 30. On the afternoon of January 26 an extra coach attached to one of the New York Central trains conveyed the New York delegates to the convention west through Albany.

At the funeral of R. W. Allen, held at Hudson on January 13, the Albany Florists' Club was represented by Fred A. Danker, formerly president, Louis Menand, and William Hannell. The club sent a fine floral piece, the work of the Rosery.

TRADE CONDITIONS IMPROVE.

Business is keeping up very nicely and storekeepers are more optimistic in their expressions regarding trade conditions than they were two or three weeks ago. The flower store windows are kept in excellent condition with plenty of flowering plants and cut flowers; no town can boast of more artistic window displays than are shown here.

NOTES.

Thomas Howard, who drives the delivery automobile for Furrow & Company, met with a serious accident one day this week. A large auto-truck belonging to an ice company collided with Howard's machine, with the result that Howard was severely cut about the head. So severe was the cut that many stitches had to be taken. He is still confined to his bed.

TRADE GENERALLY GOOD.

The market conditions are practically the same as last week, a shortage in nearly all lines except bulbous stock. There is an abundance of Paper White narcissi, Lorraine tulips, and daffodils on the market. Roses of all kinds are still short of the demand and clean up early in the day, as do carnations. Good Freesias Purity have a good call, with an adequate supply. A good grade of snapdragons arrives, but only in very limited quantities; also a few mignonette, daisies, a few real good sweet peas, single and double violets, orchids (cattleyas and cypripediums), calandulas, etc. Easter lilies have been short of the demand for some time, as are also calla lilies. Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are a little more plentiful now. Smilax is in good supply, as is adiantum fern. Lily of the valley can be had at all times, and is of excellent quality. There is still considerable boxwood being used. Funeral work is plentiful and helps to move considerable stock.

NOTES.

A good show is assured for this fall when the Chrysanthemum Society of America holds its annual meeting at the Coliseum here. The Ohio Horticultural Society and Cleveland Florists' Club have combined forces and the show promises to far outdo our last one. Come to the florists' club meetings and hear the reports of the different committees on "what's doing."

F. C. Bartels, L. L. Lanborn, of Alliance, O.; Fred Brown, of the Gasser Co., and Charlie Gibson, all report the "carnation show" was a grand show, and a good, enjoyable time was shown them by our brother florists of Buffalo.

About fifty couple enjoyed the music and dancing at the Hollenden hotel at the dance given by the Ladies' Florists' Club. Don't forget their card party, February 18.

The Cleveland Florists' Club had a stand at the pure food show exhibit this week, advertising for St. Valentine's day.

Owing to the death of one of the firm of the Eagle Wire Works, that firm was closed Monday and Tuesday, February 1-2.

THE GENUS IRIS

By WILLIAM RICKATSON DYKES.

With Forty-eight Colored Plates and Thirty Line Drawings in the Text

This magnificent work brings together the available information on all the known species of Iris. The account of each includes references to it in botanical literature and a full description of the plant, together with observations on its pecularities, its position in the genus, its value as a garden plant, and its cultivation.

The most striking feature of the book is the forty-eight life-sized colored plates, reproduced from originals drawn from living plants—making it a volume of remarkable beauty as well as of great scientific importance.

246 pages, demi-folio, half morocco, $37.50, postage extra (weight 11 lbs. 9 oz.)

The American Florist. Lovers of Irises owe a huge debt of gratitude to William Rickatson Dykes, who after years of labor has produced a magnificent work on these plants. Mr. Dykes combines the scientist's analytical skill with all the grower's enthusiasm.

Book For Florists, Spring 1915, Now Ready.

Chicago Vaughan's Seed Store New York

Greenhouses: Western Springs, Illinois.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif., President; J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., First Vice-President; E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer; S. F. Willard, Jr., Cleveland, O., Assistant Secretary.

Thirty-Third annual meeting, San Francisco, Calif., June 1915.

ROCKFORD, ILL.—R. H. Shumway reports his largest mail order business comes from the state of Pennsylvania.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., have issued an exhaustive circular on the history and culture of the red sunflower.

HOLLANDERS who force bulbs for cut flowers are reported to have made splendid prices this year on shipments to Russian cities.

THE annual convention of the National Canners' Association will be held at the Hotel Astor, New York, next week, February 8-12.

REPORTS from Holland indicate that any Dutch workman who is out of employment can find it readily and at good pay in Germany.

JUNE 4 has been officially designated as American Sweet Pea Society Day at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Calif.

BIRMINGHAM, ALA.—The Alabama Seed Co. has changed its name to Amzi Godden Seed & Grain Co., and the capital stock has been increased from $2,000 to $20,000.

LOMPOC, CALIF.—Geo. W. Kerr, of the Fordhook farms, has come on to assist with the work on Burpee's Floradale seed farms during Superintendent Lonsdale's illness.

MOORHEAD, N. D.—The D. D. Simmons Company, seedsmen, have commenced business in this city, and have issued their 1915 catalogue. The company also has a branch at Fairmount, N. D.

GREEN BAY, WIS.—The Everett B. Clark Seed Company, of Milford, Conn., has received a license permitting them to do business in this state. This city will be the company's state headquarters.

VISITED CHICAGO: A. J. Brown, of the A. J. Brown Seed Co., Grand Rapids, Mich.; C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., New York; Walter Helms, of Helms Seed Store, Janesville, Wis.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade February 3 were as follows: Timothy, $6.00 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.—Arnold Ringier of the W. W. Barnard Co., expects to attend the canners' convention at New York, next week.

NEW YORK.—Advice has been received here to the effect that the German government has proclaimed prohibition against the exportation of bags and bagging, including bags used as containers for other merchandise, to take effect February 1. In consequence of this it will be impossible to ship from Germany seeds which are generally packed in bags.

CALLA, O.—M. B. Templin, of the Templin Seed Co., reports: Trade is responding to the catalogues with the usual promptness. While we are considerably later with our issue than formerly, trade appears to be starting out all right. We have hopes for increased business over last year, having increased our catalogue issue one third.

Onion Bushel.

The Leonard Seed Co., Chicago, is sending out a circular letter to the trade reading as follows:

"We understand that Representative Dillon of the house of representatives, Washington, has introduced a bill to establish a standard of weights for various commodities, and among other articles mentioned are onion sets, 28 pounds to the bushel.

"We suggest it might be well for you to write Representative Dillon, care of the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C., calling his attention to the fact that top onion sets are sold 28 pounds to the bushel, but that there should be a distinction and that bottom onion sets should be classed in this bill 32 pounds to the bushel, as it is customary among the seed trade."

Those interested would do well to follow the Leonard Seed Co.'s suggestions.

Government Seed Contracts.

The department of agriculture at noon, February 3, announced the list of successful bidders for government seed contracts for 1915-16 and the kinds of seed in each case. The contract prices and the amounts of seed were not made public. No growing contracts were placed with foreign firms. The awards are:

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Harry S. Betz Nursery Co. has been incorporated for $25,000.

ALTON, ILL.—E. H. Riehl was re-elected president of the Alton Horticultural Society at the January meeting.

DELAVAN, WIS.—F. B. Stowe, former owner of the Phoenix Nursery, died suddenly January 25, at Eureka Springs, Ark.

EL PASO, TEX.—The Wright Nursery & Floral Co., recently organized, has opened a downtown shop at 305 North Stanton street.

READING, PA.—Members of the Berks County Agricultural and Horticultural Association have decided that the 1915 fair will be held September 14-17.

WE are in receipt of the proceedings of the fourth annual meeting of the California Association of Nurserymen, held at San Diego, October 15-17, 1914.

DALLAS, TEX.—In lieu of tree-planting day in Dallas, the Waxahachie Nursery Company has made an offer to give to the school children of this city 1,000 shade trees of a number of different varieties.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—At the fourth annual convention of the New England Nurserymen's Association, held January 26, C. H. Greaton, of this city, formerly vice-president of the association, was elected president.

BOISE, IDAHO.—The Idaho State Horticultural Association, at its annual convention, elected the following officers: J. H. Lowell, president; W. S. Starr, vice-president; W. E. Wood, secretary; A. E. Gipson, treasurer.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—The Utah State Horticultural Society has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: J. C. Knudson, Brigham City, president; Geo. W. Palmer, vice-president; W. H. Homer, Salt Lake City, secretary-treasurer.

Seth, Easton, Md., president; J. L. Soper, Magnolia, Del., first vice-president; Wesley Webb, Dover, Del., secretary-treasurer.

SALEM, ORE.—Representative Olds introduced a bill providing for the creation of a board of horticulture, January 21, to consist of five members, to be appointed by the governor, secretary of state and state treasurer. The state is divided into districts by the bill, and the commissioner appointed must be a resident of the district for which he is appointed. Provision is made for a secretary at a salary of $100 per month.

American Association of Nurserymen.

FORTIETH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

Seven years ago this association held its annual meeting in Detroit, Michigan. At the Cleveland convention of 1914, Detroit was again practically unanimously chosen for the meeting of 1915. So much enthusiasm was evinced in the discussion as to the city in which this anniversary should be celebrated that we consider ourselves warranted in boosting "the city beautiful" in anticipation of June 23-25, 1915. It is such fun to be a "booster," because, after your energy has been spent, such a delightful satisfaction gets up under a man's vest as he congratulates himself on his success, always, of course, presuming that he has boosted in a good cause. So let us all assume the role of the booster in one united effort to make this fortieth anniversary the most notable in the association's history—notable in size of membership, notable in attendance and notable in all other ways that shall build up the business of the legitimate nurseryman. To this end let every man look after the fellow who is "not on the list." President Chase is on the war path. He has appointed a committee of seven live men to boost the membership, with Will Munson, of Texas, as chairman. Somethin' doin'.

As already announced Hotel Cadillac will be headquarters. T. I. Ilgenfritz is chairman of the committee on arrangements and entertainment. He has made the personal acquaintance of the manager of the hotel, who has promised not only to do his best to give satisfaction equal to that felt seven years ago, but to surpass it as far as his capabilities will permit.

The entertainment mill is working and we will shortly be able to take members more fully into the committee's confidence. The program mill is also grinding, and we suggest that members write to C. R. Burr, Manchester, Conn., any thought they may have that will be helpful to him. I shall be glad to give prompt attention to all enquiries regarding membership, etc.

JOHN HALL, Sec'y.

Tree Planting Planned for Dallas, Texas.

At a meeting of the leaders of the Oak Cliff North Loop Improvement League, January 11, a systematic plan was outlined for conducting the campaign of tree planting in that section of the city. The North Loop territory was divided into districts and a captain appointed for each district. These captains will line up the citizens in their respective districts and get them pledged to plant trees. It is expected that 1,500 trees will be planted this spring in that section. The general committee has also drawn up a set of specifications upon which nurserymen can bid for the tree planting.

These specifications cover the size of the tree, the method of planting, the pruning and care for two years. The nurseryman will be forced to give a heavy bond before he is allowed to receive a contract. The trees will not be considered paid for until they have grown for two years. The officers of the North Loop Association include Dr. W. T. Christman, president; Charles A. Mangold, vice-president, and A. G. McGee, secretary.

Hotbed Sash.

There is probably no part of a gardener's outfit that gets poorer attention, considering importance of service and money invested, than hot-bed sash. This of course is not true of all places, but there are too many where sash are roughly handled and sorely neglected. Only too often we can find sash exposed to all the weather, overgrown by weeds, subject to strains and warping, left just where they were last used. This is not good management, and every gardener should take some pride in his outfit and not only prolong the life of the sash, but receive better results besides. Light is the life of plants and at the time of the year when sash are most needed, light is often at a premium. Therefore everything should be done to keep the sash clean, straight and well painted. Too often we run across instructions to paint sash frequently with the glass in. At best this is a bad job and does not strike the needed spots—the grooves where the water lies.

Beginning with new sash, we are careful to give them two good coats of paint. Be sure the paint is dry and hard before glazing. We bed the glass in putty by applying the putty to the grooves by hand, not with a bulb or machine, as semi-liquid putty does not give enough body to support the glass. The glass is carefully examined and laid with the curve up, lapping the joints only ¼ inch or less. More is a damage, as the joints soon collect dirt and reduce light. We still prefer the double points, such as the Perfection, to any of the newer schemes, as these points are the strongest to resist strains in handling. We have never used the practice of collecting odds and ends of glass to patch up our sash. We use 10-inch glass exclusively, and nothing less than a half pane is ever used. The halves are placed at the lowest end, as there breakage is more likely to occur, reducing damage. All our sash are three feet by six feet for three lights of 10-inch glass and we use only 10x14 A dbl. glass. Single glass is a poor investment. We instruct all our help along a definite course of handling sash to avoid breakage.

At the close of the season the sash are stored in a dry building, being careful to stand them on a level foundation. We make a practice of overhauling a portion of our sash each season either in the summer or in the winter. If in winter we move that lot into the boiler room to dry them thoroughly. The glass is then all removed and washed, the sash cleaned and brushed, removing all putty, then two coats of paint applied and reglazed. We find this necessary once in five or six years, and it not only improves the light transmitted, but it prolongs the life of the sash. We have our first lot of sash in practically sound condition after many years of service. Part of our sash are in use on sash houses, part on hot-beds and part on cold frames for wintering plants; however, we arrange each season for a certain lot to go into "dry dock" for overhauling.

MARKETMAN.

Providence, R. I.

BUSINESS NOT UP TO STANDARD.

Business the past week has been very quiet, with very little doing in any line. The cut flower trade has fallen away to some extent, and floral work is not much in demand. Daffodils are starting to come in more plentifully, and the market is filled with Paper Whites. Carnations are beginning to shorten up again, and roses are commencing to come better every day. Violets are still very good, but with little demand as yet. Sweet peas are having very little call. Tulips are just starting to arrive in quantities now, but are mostly short stems.

CLUB MEETING.

The Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island adopted a resolution of condolence, and paid a silent tribute of respect to the memory of the late Michael Sweeney, a member of the club, and one of the leading florists of the state, at its meeting held January 25. It was the regular meeting of the club and the installation of officers and a banquet were to be held. The committee on arrangements reported that owing to the bad weather and other conditions that required the close attention of some of the members of the club to their business, it was impossible to carry out the plans for the banquet. It was decided to defer the affair for one month, and at the February meeting of the club the committee said the dinner and entertainment would be provided for. W. E. Chappell read a historical sketch of the association, which was organized January 2, 1896, and related some of the more important events since the start of the club, which was very interesting to everyone present.

NOTES.

The New England Nurserymen's Association began its fourth annual convention in Providence, January 26. C. H. Greaton, of Providence, was elected president of the association; he was formerly the vice-president of this society.

Lawrence Hay, East Providence, is cutting good daffodils and also has plenty of them.

Fred Hoffman, of Pawtucket, is still bringing in good cyclamens in 8-inch pots.

Matchless Is Still Unbeaten

At the Buffalo Show, Matchless came through in the usual manner and swept the boards. In the Sweepstakes in Class A, it defeated thirty-eight vases of all varieties. In the white, the only two vases of Matchless were placed first and second. Thus it is again conclusively proved that in quality, size and fragrance, Matchless tops them all.

Matchless will produce more than any carnation of its color, will bloom more continuously and keep better. It is absolutely non-bursting and the easiest carnation to grow in existence.

CLUB MEETING.

Fifteen members of the florists' club faced the inclement weather Monday evening, February 1, to attend the regular meeting and exhibition of carnation novelties scheduled for that date. The growers of the new carnations shown were: Avid Anderson, Moline, Ill., seedling No. 100, a white of immense size; Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Ass'n, Chicago, seedling No. 3112A, a deep crimson, very double and large; No. 212E, scarlet; No. 2612D, a crimson of medium size and rather weak stems; No. 14009A, splendid pure white, quite full, fragrant and having long stiff stems; No. 112B, Lawson color, pink, deeply fringed and very fragrant; No. 3112B, crimson; No. 3912D, white; No. 2612D, crimson, shown in rather soft condition. C. Akehurst & Son, Whitemarsh, Md., showed a vase of their new pink seedling, Mrs. C. Edward Akehurst. It is very double, deeply fringed on long stiff stems. F. Dorner & Sons Co., LaFayette, Ind., showed Pink Sensation, a salmon pink of immense size, with stiff stems and very fragrant; also Good Cheer, a dark pink, which having been shipped the Saturday previous, showed good keeping qualities. E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., showed two vases of Alice Coombs, a beautiful pink, irregular in form, deeply fringed, on long, stiff stems; also a salmon pink which elicited much praise. The above exhibitors were given a vote of thanks by the club for the blooms staged. A belated shipment of red carnations "Belle Washburn" from Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, intended for our exhibition of carnation novelties, arrived one day late in good condition.

A. J. Stahelin, who attended the carnation meeting at Buffalo, gave a report of his observations there. He stated that the vase of Gorgeous shown by A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass., was, he thought, the finest single exhibit he had ever seen of any variety. The eastern growers, he said, were the largest, as well as the most successful exhibitors, the west and middle states being poorly represented. E. G. Hill & Co.'s Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia were shown to great advantage. A certificate of merit was awarded by the club to Mr. Stahelin for the exhibit of sweet peas he made at the previous meeting, January 18.

The problem of advertising St. Valentine's day in a co-operative way was discussed and the publicity committee instructed to prepare copy for a full page advertisement in one of the local papers and E. A. Scribner was assigned the duty of collecting the amounts assessed against each florist represented in the page advertisement.

NOTES.

A continued scarcity of roses afflicts the local market while the supply of carnations, sweet peas, violets and bulbous stock continues to increase, but a spirited demand felt by all florists does not allow a surplus to accumulate.

Wm. Dilger is preparing plans for an amusement park for Morris Wolfe. The enterprise will be located on the St. Clair river near West Grand boulevard and will be most elaborate in all respects.

Mrs. C. W. Ward

As a Bread and Butter Variety

What Mr. Fritz Bahr, the famous writer of "The Weeks Work" in the Florist Exchange of January 9th, 1915, says about this variety:

"With a good many of the retail growers, throughout the Middle West in particular, the great merits of Carnation Mrs. C. W. Ward have just been recognized and appreciated. It is one of the best of its color that we have today. Every retail grower should provide room for at least a few, and fairly well grown stock will sell at a higher price than any of the standard sorts on a glutted market."

We have 40,000 Cuttings of this variety ready. $2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

For other varieties see classified list in this paper. All stock guaranteed.

Cincinnati.

TRADE IS SATISFACTORY.

During the past fortnight we have had everything in the weather line from cold winter days to balmy spring weather; from snow to rain and from sunshine to cloudy and foggy weather. Just what effect these changes will have on flowers depends largely upon the weather we have for the next fortnight. As it is the supply at the time of this writing is heavier than a week ago. Most all receipts continue to clean up well and in some lines more might be used. Roses are now in somewhat stronger supply than for a while, but with the present call for them all clean up readily. American Beauties are not very plentiful, but there seems to be no especial demand for them. The carnation cut, too, is a little heavier than it was, and the average quality better. They meet with a pretty fair market. Lilies continue plentiful and prove good property. Narcissi, too, sell fairly well. Other bulbous offerings include callas, rubrums, jonquils, tulips, freesias and Roman hyacinths. Double and single violets, orchids and sweet peas are having only or hardly a fair market at the present time. This is especially true of the double violets. They are, however, having a strong call for Valentine's day. Other offerings include wallflowers, primroses and forget-me-nots. Greens are plentiful.

NOTES.

The list of Cincinnatians who were at the American Carnation Society's convention at Buffalo last week include Roger Peterson, R. Witterstaetter, and C. E. Critchell and wife.

Chas. F. Hoffmeister has been cutting some very fine sweet peas at his greenhouse in Ft. Thomas, Ky.

The florists' society will hold its next regular meeting at the Hotel Gibson on Monday, February 8.

C. E. Critchell reports a very strong call for violets for Valentine's day.

For Spring Sales and Memorial Day

Our stock is in prime condition, retarded dormant plants from 6-inch pots, in fine shape to flower for Spring Sales or for Memorial Day; any of the varieties described below at $30.00 per 100.

Avalanche. A splendid large white with a well established reputation; an easy variety to force.
Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of rosy amber turning to bright pink; a favorite with all growers.
Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade, growth vigorous, foliage of a pea green color, large and attractive.
General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.
La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite.
Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Probably the most popular white variety on the market today, an early easy variety to force.
Mme. Maurice Hamar. A delicate fresh-rose color, a vigorous grower, the individual flowers as well as the trusses being very large.
Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white; flowers large and very freely produced.
Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a fine acquisition.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear-flesh rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties.
Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose-tint.
Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best, of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads of bright rose colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.
Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections; flowers produced in immense large heads; on the style of La Lorraine, but an earlier bloomer.
Vieux Chateau. Very large pure white becoming suffused with delicate rosy carmine as they mature.
Hydrangea Otaksa. Dormant plants, 6-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 10-inch tubs, $1.00 each; 12-inch tubs, $2.50 each.

We Offer For Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well-established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly

Valuable New Roses

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, and Prince E. C. D'Arenberg.

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly, and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA. No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer, and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively. Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY. This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red, and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer, and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.
Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG. This variety might well have been termed Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color, the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly, and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.
Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

We will be glad to quote on application prices on all the newer and standard varieties—strong grafted plants ready in March.

F. R. PIERSON, Tarrytown, New York

OPHELIA, ONE OF THE FEW THAT HAS PROVEN ITS WORTH

We have grown this magnificent rose the past season, with most gratifying results. As a free and vigorous grower and great producer it has no equal. It sets bud freely in the short days of winter, and is now coming in with a heavy midwinter crop, doing equally well on grafts or own roots.

MRS. GEORGE SHAWYER is at present more favorably thought of than ever, and we intend to again plant it heavily this season. As a money getter, our experience has proven its superiority over all sorts, and having grown extensively on own roots and grafts, we have no hesitancy in stating that like Sunburst, it does better on own roots.

We will have a splendid lot of both varieties, (grafts and own root), ready for shipment about the middle of March, together with a choice lot of Sunburst, Ward, Prince d' Arenberg, White and Pink Killarney, cutting taken from sand the latter part of December. Newport, R. I.

Under the joint auspices of the Newport Horticultural Society and the Garden Society, H. L. Frost, of Boston, Mass., gave a lecture January 26, on injurious insects. The stereopticon showed the pests in their various stages of growth and localities they have ravaged. Among the varieties treated upon by the lecturer were the gypsy moth, tent caterpillar, brown tail moth and boxwood minor. In regard to the latter, he said it was found mostly in Newport, and the large audience present gave the lecturer rapt attention throughout his discourse. At the close, warm applause showed the appreciation of his hearers. At the next meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society the matter of swelling the building fund will be discussed and from all accounts the discussion is liable to bear fruit, as many members seem to think that the time is ripe to build. The society has completed arrangements for the coming to Newport of the American Sweet Pea Society. This show will take place at the Casino July 8-9. Alexander McLellan has been appointed exhibition manager, and the schedules are now being distributed.

NOTES.

The Garden Association will hold an exhibition February 9-10, and is arranging to have a lecture each evening of the meeting.

Menlo Park, Calif.

The annual election of officers of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society was held Thursday evening, January 21, and the following officers were elected to serve during the ensuing year: Henry Goertzhain, president; David W. Slade, vice-president; Percy Ellings, secretary; Arthur Bearsby, financial secretary; George Nunn, treasurer. Thomas Templeton was elected trustee, succeeding James T. Lynch, whose term expired. An exhibition committee to serve for one year was appointed as follows: John M. Daly, Percy Ellings, David Bassett, George Nunn and David W. Slade. Percy Coff and John Aitken were selected for ushers. Several new members were admitted and a few applications for membership were received. The society decided to hold a smoker at the next regular meeting and President Goertzhain appointed a committee to make the necessary arrangements. The exhibits made were varied and excellent. As John M. Daly and Chas. Ehrich tied for the most points for the best display during the past year it was decided to award a gold medal to each.

Toledo.

INCLEMENT WEATHER HURTS TRADE.

Last week saw a period of very cold and stormy weather which was followed by a thaw and a terrific rain storm. This put a damper on business and resulted also in a deterioration of stock. The quality of most flowers and plants that are marketable at this time of the year is gradually improving, while the demand on the other hand is very light. Numerous funerals are helping out wonderfully. With the approach of St. Valentine's day, it is gratifying to local retail florists to note that the supply of sweat peas and violets will be good for that day. Carnations on the whole are of better grade and find a ready sale. Roses are still scarce in the short stemmed variety. There is now a brisk demand for Easter lilies, of which there are not enough on the market to go around.

NOTES.

The case of George Poulin, delivery man for Harry Heinl, wholesale florist, versus the Toledo Railways and Light Co., being tried at the present time in the common pleas court, is giving all the florists of this city something to talk about. The plaintiff is suing the transportation company for injuries sustained four years ago in a collision with a street car. One verdict was given him for $12,000, but the case was remanded by the supreme court for another trial. Moving pictures taken by the company showing Mr. Poulin delivering heavy plants play an important and unique part in the case. The newspapers are playing the case up big, and it is called the "moving-picture case."

At the meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club, which was held at Schramm Bros., the growers present decided to take active steps to remedy defects in the state law regarding the firing of boilers and to counteract the evils of its administration, which in certain cases has worked a hardship on greenhouse men here. The secretary was instructed to get into communication with other florists throughout the state and a united effort will be made to get satisfactory conditions.

The presentation of "Town Topics" by Toledo's society for the benefit of the Belgians, was marked by a wealth of floral offerings. Metz and Bateman, Mrs. J. B. Freeman and the Scottwood did a good business as a result.

CARNATIONS

F. DORNER & SONS CO.,

LaFayette, - - Indiana

Ft. Wayne, Ind.

TRADE IS SATISFACTORY.

The month of January closed with one of the best weeks of the season from the florists' standpoint. A snappy, cold atmosphere, which produced brisk business, brought color and sturdiness to the growth of the flowers. Roses are of the best quality this season, and while not overabundant, yet are sufficiently plentiful to take care of all orders. Carnations are of splendid quality, are increasing in quantity, and find a ready market. Easter lilies and callas continue to find a ready call for funeral work, which has been good during the past week. Home-grown violets are very scarce, and are quickly sold. Cattleyas are bringing fifty and seventy-five cents. American Beauty roses are in good supply, with long stems and fine color. Sweet peas are abundant and of exceptionally fine quality. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils, narcissi and hyacinths meet with a good sale, although cyclamens retain much public favor on account of their lengthy blooming possibilities.

NOTES.

A golden wedding celebration of unusual interest, because of the social prominence of the parties as well as the elaborate floral decorations, was that of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Battes, February 1. The cathedral was handsomely decorated with banks of ferns and palms with an artistic draping of southern smilax for a background. On the marble altars, Harrisi lilies and Hillingdon roses were used. At the anniversary dinner the table was decorated with Sunburst roses in gold basket-hats, with a background of Adiantum Farleyense ferns.

Miss Rhoda Doswell entertained the members of the Birthday Anniversary club at dinner January 27. English nosegays in quaint baskets formed a very pleasing table-decoration.

Mrs. Cecil Max left last week for her home in Mobile, Ala., after a visit of several months with her father, Judge W. J. Vesey.

Visitors: Geo. Mauny, representing Reed and Kellar, New York; Sidney Bayersdorfer, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and John D. Arentshorst, representative of Boartman & Konig, bulb growers, Sassenheim, Holland. H. K.

"We Understand Our Business Thoroughly"

What They Say:

Jan. 20, 1915
Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,
L. Buckendorf,
Norfolk, Neb.

MASTICA

Mastica is elastic and tenacious, admits of expansion and contraction. Putty becomes hard and brittle. Broken glass easily removed without breaking of other glass, as occurs with hard putty. Lasts longer than putty. Easy to apply.

Dreer's Peerless Glazing Points
For Greenhouses

Drive easy and true, because both bevels are on the same side. Can't twist and break the glass in driving. Galvanized and will not rust. No rights or lefts.

The Peerless Glazing Point is patented. No others like it. Order from your dealer or direct from us.

RECENT IMPORT DECISIONS.

United States Treasury Department.

Gladiolus Mother Bulbs.

Gladiolus bulbs, which are shown by the evidence to be mature mother flowering bulbs, that is, flowering bulbs that, planted in the ground, will produce other small bulbs, and which were imported solely for propagating purposes, are entitled to free entry under the provision in paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, that "all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty."

The department's regulation, promulgated as T. D. 34206, instructing that free entry under paragraph 210 to bulbs claimed to be mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes should be denied by the collector unless the invoice indicates which of the bulbs in an importation are mature mother flowering bulbs, and unless an affidavit from the ultimate consignee is submitted stating that the bulbs are imported exclusively for propagating purposes, does not preclude the importer from proving such facts before the board by other evidence.

U. S. GEN. APP'RS, NEW YORK, JAN. 29, '15.

In the matter of protests 746276, etc., of Hubert Bulb Co. et al. against the assessment of duty by the collectors of customs at the ports of Norfolk and Boston.

Before Board 3 (Waite, Somerville, and Hay, General Appraisers).

Waite, general appraiser: The importations in these cases consist of gladiolus bulbs. They were assessed for duty under the provision in paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, for "all other bulbs, roots, root stocks, corms, and tubers, which are cultivated for their flowers or foliage, 50 cents per thousand," the gladiolus not being enumerated or otherwise described in the preceding part of the paragraph. There is a proviso, however, to this paragraph which was added to the law of 1913, changing somewhat the law of previous years. This proviso reads:

Provided, That all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty.

The importers claim these importations should be admitted free under this proviso. Testimony was given in each case which shows that the goods are bulbs within the meaning of the statute, that they are ready to flower, and that they are "mother bulbs," that term meaning bulbs which reproduce or produce other bulbs. It appears these produce others both at the upper part of the bulb itself and from the lower part, where the root of the bulb is joined to the bulb proper. The testimony clearly shows, we think, that the importations were made exclusively for propagating purposes, and there is no question but that this species of plant is a flowering plant. It appears these particular importations are ready to flower, or will flower the first year on being set out in the ground. We conclude they should be free of duty, as claimed.

In T. D. 34206 the department, in a letter addressed to the collector of customs at New York, issued instructions that free entry under paragraph 210 to bulbs claimed to be mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes should be denied unless the invoice specifically indicates which of the bulbs comprised in any importation are mature mother flowering bulbs, and unless an affidavit from the ultimate consignee is submitted stating that the bulbs are imported for propagating purposes and are intended exclusively for such purposes. In these cases such regulation was not complied with, inasmuch as in protest 746276 the affidavit required was not furnished, and in protest 760202 the invoice did not show specifically that the bulbs were mature mother flowering bulbs.

This regulation is not provided for in the statute itself, and we think must be considered a regulation governing the action of the collector with reference to free entry of the goods. It does not, we think, preclude the importer from submitting his case to the board on proof other than that mentioned in the regulation.

The protests are sustained and free entry under paragraph 210 instructed.

Orchid Plants not Mother Bulbs.

Orchid plants, which are imported exclusively for propagating purposes, and which consist of roots surmounted by root stalks, from which grow spikes which bear flowers, these spikes being enlarged, thickened portions known as "pseudo bulbs," are not free of duty under paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913, as "mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes," but are dutiable under the same paragraph as "orchids."

U. S. GEN. APP'RS, NEW YORK, JAN. 29, '15.

In the matter of protest 744907 of Maltus & Ware, against the assessment of duty by the collector of customs at the port of New York.

Before Board 3 (Waite, Somerville, and Hay, General Appraisers).

Waite, general appraiser: A motion made at the hearing by government counsel to dismiss the protest on the ground that the collector reported the fee was not paid on this protest, but paid on another protest on the same entry, was denied by the board in G. A. 7641 (T. D. 34927).

The commodity in question is invoiced as "30 cases living plants, each case containing 40 plants; valued per plant, 25 cents." The appraiser reports they are orchid plants and returned them for duty as orchids at 25 per cent ad valorem under the first part of paragraph 210, tariff act of 1913. Protestants claim free entry under the proviso to paragraph 210. These provisions read:

210. Orchids, palms, azalea indica, and cut flowers, preserved or fresh, 25 per centum ad valorem; * * *: Provided, That all mature mother flowering bulbs imported exclusively for propagating purposes shall be admitted free of duty.

Considerable testimony was taken, wherein the orchids are described, and from which testimony it appears that these plants are imported for propagating purposes exclusively. Samples of the imported plants were produced in evidence. They are plants consisting of the roots surmounted by root stalks from which spring the spikes which bear the flowers. The stalk from the extremity of which the flower appears is somewhat thickened and enlarged, grooved or corrugated on the outside, and is sometimes designated among botanists as a "pseudo bulb." These plants do not reproduce by means of true bulb, but are increased by a separation of the root and stalk, and reproductions of flowers are secured from sprouts or growths from the root stalk immediately surmounting the roots proper. The spike or stalk, sometimes called the pseudo bulb, and rising from the top of the plant or root stalk, never reproduces; its use, as we learn, is to store food for the plant until the spike finally dries up and disappears. The so-called pseudo bulb is in no sense a mother bulb, as we understand a mother bulb to be a bulb from which young bulbs spring, thus reproducing the mother plant.

The importations in question here are sold as plants. We learn also that they are described in commerce as plants containing so many bulbs, having reference to the pseudo bulbs. These pseudo bulbs or stalks may be entirely severed and many of them are when the plant is set out for propagation. It seems they are called bulbs and so referred to in the commercial world for the purpose of describing the size of the plant, as we learn that the plants are sold by the hundred, each plant containing two, four, or more of these stalks, spikes, or pseudo bulbs, thus describing more definitely the size of the plants in question. We are satisfied that the orchid is not a bulb botanically. Some of the witnesses were men of eminence in the botanical world, and their testimony is to that effect. Neither have these plants the appearance of a bulb or bulbous root.

The importers claim that even though these importations are not found to be bulbs they are still bulbs by reason of their commercial designation. Two witnesses swore that the trade so understood them and treated them as such in buying and selling and describing them. We are satisfied, however, that this was simply a matter of description; that these orchid roots are plants; and if the part spoken of as a pseudo bulb, the only thing that characterizes them as bulbs, had been entirely severed from the plant there is nothing to show that they would be treated in the commercial world as bulbs. Much less are we inclined to hold that they are shown to be mature mother flowering bulbs. It is true they belong to a species of flowering plants, plants which as imported are in a condition to send forth shoots which will produce flowers, but they send forth nothing which in its inception or beginning can be termed a bulb; and from our understanding of the testimony, what subsequently appears and may be termed a false or pseudo bulb can not be so designated, as it springs from the root of the plant.

We are therefore of the opinion that the testimony has not shown that these plants, either commercially or actually, should be classified as bulbs. We do not think Congress intended to include this class of roots or plants when it used the language, "mature mother flowering bulbs." We therefore overrule the protest, sustaining the classification made by the collector.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Palm Leaves and Roses.

Here is one of the everyday pieces of the shop. Just a plain arrangement of three palm leaves with spray of white roses and narcissi. Most clusters of this kind are made with two palms, but here are three, a trifle shorter perhaps, but by spreading into a sort of fan shape they admit of a quite wide cluster and support it nicely.

K.

Wreath On Easel.

Here is an example of good workmanship, a crescent form of wreath which has been well carried out in every detail, nothing elaborate, but as seen in the illustration it can be said to be complete in every respect. It is made of pink roses, white asters and valley. The solid, narrow portion of white carries out the form and gives contrast to the artistically arranged pink roses in the full part of the form below. The broad green ferns in the center conceal the easel and by their rich green add to the finish of the design as a whole.

K.

Spring Flowers.

Only a short time until spring—lovers of flowers all anticipate the season, so that "I want a box of spring flowers" is a frequent order in the stores. Nicely arranged, there is nothing prettier than a box of so-called spring blossoms, such as daffodils, tulips, sweet peas, pansies, primulas, daisies, yellow and white snapdragons, pussy willows, together with a few rose buds, pink or yellow as the case may demand. It is well to have a few of these boxes on hand, made up, as when nicely arranged they are very salable. Popular sizes run from one to two dollars. Often persons just wanting a few flowers will take one of these boxes; they look so attractive. While there is not much profit in a one dollar box of flowers, it is about what many a person who is going to see a sick friend or take something in recognition of a favor, or have it sent as a bearer of congratulations or regrets, etc., would select.

Baskets of the same flowers, small tumbler baskets that sell from one to two dollars, are popular in the shopping district; a window full works off in no time. Flowering plants for gifts are also more in demand as the season advances. When the customer's mind is not fully made up, it is well to suggest this or that spring flower, which being in season are fairly plentiful, and will be pretty sure to show a good profit.

Spring flowers for table decorations are now the thing. Orchid flowered sweat peas are magnificently arranged with maidenhair ferns in vases, or handle baskets with ribbons, they make a most attractive table, as also do Golden Spur daffodils. Nothing is more beautiful than a table decorated with snapdragons. A pansy luncheon, with these tri-colored blossoms made up into baskets and also strewn on the cloth is very effective.

This is the time for week-end sales in which the spring flowers figure largely. The stores who do not feel it is beneath their dignity to sell a customer a dollar's worth of flowers can now give good value and have at the same time a fair profit. Small gift boxes of spring blossoms sent out to good or prospective customers are sure business bringers; $25 spent in this way is likely to bring more and quicker results than the same amount spent in newspaper space.

Good Service.

One of the essentials in the retail florist business, a feature that adds prestige and contributes much to its success, is good service. All the other perfect qualities will not be able to overcome failure in this respect. In good service are included many things, the selecting of the flowers ordered, as well as their proper arrangement in the box, which of itself must be of a quality worthy of the flowers; it must be spotlessly clean and then filled and tied and sealed in a faultless manner. It must go out on time and reach its destination in as perfect condition as when it left the store. The address tag should be of the latest up-to-date pattern. The conveyance, be it wagon or auto, should be bright and up to date in its appointments; as such it is a constant advertisement. An attractively designed or painted vehicle is sure to command attention, and is a great factor in keeping the name of the firm before the public.

WREATH ON EASEL.

DELIVERY.

The best delivery service demands that all the boys and drivers or chauffeurs shall be in uniform. The uniformed messenger is freely admitted to the dwelling, as he is so manifestly connected with the firm, and is therefore to be trusted. The delivery boys with their uniform and the name of the firm on their caps or their coat collars, when on the trolley or railroad train, are always quite conspicuous and help to keep, in this way, the name of the firm to the front. The uniform is also a great advantage when a customer is to be met, with a package, in a railroad station, at a hotel or other public place, the name on the cap identifying the house at once.

Quick service is greatly appreciated as it often happens that at the last moment, something is required; an urgent request is sent in and if delivery is made in time, there is great relief, and the house scores a point in its favor. On the other hand, if orders are in any way overlooked, or not fully completed, or are late in delivery, an anxious or angry voice is heard over the 'phone complaining of the poor service, which omission will not soon be forgotten.

EXPRESS AND TRAIN TIME.

A point in good service is to have the time of railroad trains and steamboats at hand for immediate reference; also all the necessary data about express deliveries, as much loss and annoyance to customers is likely to occur from late deliveries, which could be avoided by accurate knowledge in this respect. Notice by mail that flowers are on the way should always be forwarded to the address so that the parties will be on the lookout for them. Many a mistake in name and street number has been corrected in time by this advance knowledge.

Good service demands that every little detail should be looked after, good enough is far from being good service. Some florists enclose a printed slip in the box of flowers saying that "If for any reason these flowers should not be entirely satisfactory, we would consider it a great favor to be immediately notified when every effort will at once be made to correct the mistake." A slip, with printed directions for the care of cutflowers, is also another feature of good service; this should be placed in every box, and is sure to be appreciated.

DELIVERY PRECAUTIONS.

The safe delivery of foliage and flowering plants is often not given the care necessary for satisfactory service. Nearly all stock will be the better for being fully or partially wrapped. In cold weather this is necessary to protect from frost and also at all times to protect the foliage or the flowers. It also presents a much neater appearance when properly wrapped, and is better handled by inexperienced help, either at the store or on delivery. All pots should carefully be cleaned, as to leave an ugly smudge of mud on the bottom is sure to be a cause of annoyance. In short, good service means good business, and keeping business good is that for which every live house is constantly striving.

THE CARNATION.

Carnation Scoring at Buffalo.

New carnations at the Buffalo exhibition of the American Carnation Society, January 27-28 were scored as follows: Belle Washburn, shown by Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, 88 points; No. 316, shown by A. Roper, Tewksbury, Mass., 87 points. The first named was awarded the S. A. F. silver medal and the second the S. A. F. bronze medal.

The following qualified for the Dorner memorial medal competition next year: No. 53 (11) shown by F. Dorner & Sons Co., LaFayette, Ind., 84 points; Sunbeam, shown by John Steidle, Olivette, Mo., 82 points; Laura Weber, shown by Chas. Weber, Lynbrook, N. Y., 81 points; No. 316, shown by A. Roper, 87 points.

Certificates of merit were awarded to Miss Theo, shown by Littlefield & Wyman, North Abington, Mass., 85 points; No. 44 (11), shown by Littlefield & Wyman, 87 points; No. 565, shown by Wm. A. Dawson, Willimantic, Conn., 85 points; Morning Glow, shown by Edward Winkler, Wakefield, Mass., 85 points.

Culture of Exhibition Blooms.

As noted in the reports of the exhibition of the American Carnation Society, the keeping qualities of most of the flowers exhibited was a noticeable feature, taking into consideration the fact that those who had the Buffalo exhibition in charge put forth every effort to have the temperature in the rooms kept at a cool, even degree, yet it must be admitted that careful culture was the principal reason why the flowers kept so well. It could easily be seen when the flowers were first staged that they had not been subjected to any great variations of temperature or extreme feeding; the texture and substance of the petalage was very high in most of the exhibits. The flowers in some of the winning vases were not as large as some of the others, but the color and substance of flowers, and the length and strength of the stems scored nearly perfect. Rosette, Mrs. C. W. Ward, Pink Delight, Miss Alice Coombes, Gorgeous and Benora were considered in the final judging for the best keeping vase in the show. This judging took place just after noon of the last day of the show, and it took some very close scrutiny to select one vase as being better than another, or I should say worse than another, because in judging with this point in view, the object is to pick out the sleepy flowers, and the vase that has suffered the least is the winner.

The vase of 100 Rosette which won the prize came through in as near perfect condition as 100 flowers could possibly do; the judges after going over them in the most thorough manner could not find a flower that showed the least sign of being sleepy, or even a petal that was the least bruised or marred. Very few of the flowers had the appearance of being water-soaked or of having been left on the plants to develop to their fullest extent, but looked to be fresh cut stock that had not been held in water any longer than was necessary for it to stand the travel.

Even temperatures and careful watering are the two fundamental points in caring for the plants to be sure of good keeping qualities in the flowers. When the temperature is allowed to rise several degrees above the mark before reducing the steam heat or putting on the air, there is sure to be trouble from the flowers going to sleep quickly. Overfeeding with nitrogenous manure, such as bone, tankage or sheep manure, will quickly soften up the flowers. In the days of feeding the plants with liquid manure made from fresh horse or cow manure and applied with a watering pot there was very little complaint of sleepy flowers, not that we are craving for a return to those troublesome methods, but the grower who uses the highly concentrated pulverized manures of the present day, is very often not careful enough with the material he is using. This applies particularly to the dark winter months; after the days begin to get longer, with the sun in greater power, the plants will assimilate more manure without the flowers or plants suffering, the cuttings may be too succulent to root easily, but this part of the work should have been taken care of before this time arrives.

We are now approaching the middle of February, when all the propagating should be well in hand. If cuttings enough to meet the requirements are not already in the sand, then this work should be attended to without delay, as there are only three or four weeks left of this season that the cuttings will root easily; after that time considerable more care will be necessary to get a successful stand. Do not leave the cuttings in the sand after they have made sufficient roots, but pot them up without delay. The roots grow very rapidly while in the propagating bed, and if allowed to remain longer than is necessary, they very soon become wirey. Another important thing that needs the grower's closest attention is to keep the plants free of insects, which increase very rapidly at this season of the year. Watch also the young plants of the previous potting; if they need shifting up, attend to it before they become root-bound.

C. W. JOHNSON.

PLANT NOTES.

Early Annuals.

During the warm days of June the carnations deteriorate very rapidly and there is often a great need for some flower to take their place, and an early bench of asters is a great boon at such a time, especially for those who have a good call for funeral work. Seed planted during February and grown in pots or flats until after Easter can be then transplanted to the benches in which the Easter crops are grown and they will be in bloom at the time when most desired. A good strain of early flowering varieties, either Comet or Victoria, should be selected and with good care a paying crop is assured. A sowing of candytuft by March 1 will also produce plants that can be benched after Easter in the same manner and a good cut for Memorial day be had. The strains of White Giant candytuft now offered make splendid spikes for the filling in of sprays at that great flower day. There are many annuals that can be grown for early spring blooming that are greatly appreciated by the trade, among which might be mentioned calendulas, nasturtiums, scabiosa, sweet sultans and bachelor's buttons.

Dahlias.

The forcing of early dahlias has been practiced successfully by growers the last few years, and roots started at this time will produce flowers for Decoration day and during June. A good deep bench, in a house not too warm, should be selected, and while the plants are great feeders in the open ground, it is better not to have the soil too rich in the houses, for the plants grow very tall inside, and with a rich soil make a strong, rampant growth, which will not bloom as early. They can be fed when the buds begin to form by giving them a mulch of half-decayed manure, which will materially assist the flowering and also provide a covering that will prevent evaporation. They will require but little attention except that long, strong stakes will be necessary to keep the plants growing erect, to which they should be firmly tied, and then disbudding to produce the better blooms. Any varieties of which it is desired to increase the stock can be planted in the house and the young growths made into cuttings, which root easily at this time.

CARNATION KEOKUK.

At the Iowa Agricultural College, Ames, Iowa.

MORRIS & SNOW SEED CO.'S STORE, LOS ANGELES, CALIF.

Marguerites.

As the warm days of spring approach the marguerite plants will bloom profusely and those in pots will have, to a great extent, exhausted the plant food in the soil, so to keep up the size of the flower and length of stem watering with liquid manure will be necessary. Liquid cow manure can be safely used in frequent waterings with no danger of any injury if the plants are in a healthy condition. The flowers should be cut daily and placed in water; they will keep much longer than if allowed to remain on the plants, where they quickly fade if not picked when the warm spring days come on. This should be prevented, for it not only gives the plant an untidy appearance but takes the strength of the plant and the following flowers are often much shorter in stem. A few well bloomed plants are very decorative at Easter, especially in churches where they make a splendid showing. Propagation for next year's stock should now be carried on; the cuttings root easily and there are plenty to be obtained at this time. As soon as rooted they should be grown on in good soil, and to secure the best results another year given the best of culture.

Azaleas.

The azaleas for spring flowering and Easter will soon need attention. If they have been in cold pits they should be brought into cool houses, and those that have been kept in cool houses will need spacing out and a careful going over. March and April being nearer their natural time of blooming than those brought into flower early in the winter, the plants will not have to be forced as hard and are much better brought along in a cooler temperature. The plants, however, that bloom later will require more attention, especially in regard to pinching out the soft growths that start around the cluster of buds. This should be done as early as possible and with great care, so as not to injure or break the buds. These soft growths grow very rapidly at this time and if they attain any length, quickly draw the nourishment from the stem and blast the buds, so it will require constant attention to keep them pinched off. They should be looked over at least once a week and all young shoots removed. Give the plants plenty of room so as to allow a good circulation of air, that the plants can dry off after syringing. These plants are often crowded together as closely as possible, but this invariably results in the loss of much foliage and the plant grows out of shape.

What to do with the plants that have flowered is often a question. Many growers assert that a better and earlier plant can be produced the second year than can be bought abroad and imported, but to do this the plant must be given good culture and not placed in some out-of-the-way corner where it suffers for lack of air, light and water. Whatever trimming into shape the plant requires should be done now, and the plant given an opportunity to start a new growth. As early as it is safe from all frosts the plants can be plunged outside in a frame and during the summer a mulch should be spread over the soil to prevent too much evaporation. Frequent syringings may be required during hot weather to keep down red spider, these plants being quickly infested with these insects in certain locations and they quickly ruin the foliage. Like all hard-wooded stock, be sure they do not get dry. They do not show it as quickly as the soft-wooded plants and often when it is seen it is too late to remedy the injury done.

Cannas.

One of the most decorative beds for summer, especially if it is of large size, is a bed of blooming cannas, for they are very showy and will bloom throughout the summer until frost cuts them down, and the varieties have been greatly improved during the last decade. To make the best showing the plants should be started early enough to have good strong stock at bedding-out time in May and June. The plants should be started by March 1 and now is the time to procure stock of varieties of which the grower is short or which he has not on hand. The clumps when removed from the winter storage should have all the old soil shaken off, the dried up stalk and roots cut away. They are then cut up into small pieces and if the stock is plentiful two or three eyes can be left to each piece, but where stock is short they are cut up to single eyes although with single eyes many weak plants will be produced. Often the clumps have started into growth and where this has happened the eyes should be sorted, those already started being planted together and the dormant eyes by themselves. Have boxes all ready and place an inch of soil on the bottom and then place the divisions on this closely together and cover with light, sifted soil and then water thoroughly. Keep the varieties separate and properly labeled, each box to contain but one variety and the name plainly marked on the box, for labels are often lost or misplaced. Place the boxes in a warm location—where hot water heating is used they can be placed on the return pipes. In two or three weeks the plants will have made sufficient roots to be placed in 3½ or 4-inch pots, when they can be grown on in a house with a temperature of 50° to 60°. In planting cannas outside it should always be remembered that they are very tender and should not be set out until all danger of late frost is past.

WITH THE GROWERS

The E. G. Hill Company, Richmond, Ind.

Visitors are always welcome at this famous establishment, and a visit at this season of the year will well repay the outlay. Roses form an important part of the stock grown, and at the present time are in healthy, vigorous growth. Naturally the novelties are always the the chief attraction, the varieties Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia now claiming much attention. We found Hoosier Beauty occupying the best part of two long benches, looking in fine shape from every point of view—clean, healthy plants, throwing up long, stout, flowering stems and carrying buds and flowers of fine form and beautiful color. This variety has every appearance of being a good addition to our list of standard forcing roses, taking the flowers as seen growing on the plants at Hill's for an example. They are sure to be popular with the flower buyers, and it is our candid opinion that Hoosier Beauty will prove to be one of the best roses for the benefit of the grower that has been sent out for a long time.

Ophelia, the handsome salmon flesh-pink rose, has already won its way into the favor of both the retail florist and the grower, and will be planted in large quantities the coming season. As seen here the stock is in excellent condition, large numbers of young plants being worked up to meet the heavy demand. Be sure and do not overlook Ophelia when figuring up your rose plantings. Everything known to the experienced propagator is provided for at this establishment to turn out the young stock in the best possible condition. A number of men were busy grafting roses; a large stock are already in boxes, and the earlier grafts were being transferred from the boxes to the bench, having taken hold in excellent shape.

Passing from the rose houses, we enter a section devoted to stock chrysanthemums for propagating purposes. As good a space as is to be found on the place is given over to these plants, and the endless number of strong, healthy cuttings coming along is positive proof of the wisdom of this method. To look over the immense quantity of cuttings already in sight on these benches, one is very apt to wonder where the demand is coming from for all of this stock; big sections of White and Yellow Eaton, White and Golden Chadwick, Chieftain, Wm. Turner, White Chieftain, Dorner's Early Frost, Alice Salomon, Salomon's Gold, and all the up-to-date commercial and exhibition varieties, together with the singles and pompons.

The houses of carnations in full bloom were the next to attract our attention, and they were in fine condition all the way through. White Wonder and White Enchantress are the leaders in quantity in the whites, and several benches of White Wonder were looking extremely well—strong, stiff stems and fine, large, well formed flowers. A bench of the new white, Matchless, also was in fine shape; not a bursted calyx could be seen, and the flowers are of the largest size. It is not so quick to come into bloom as White Wonder or White Enchantress, but the flowers are of a higher grade and will be grown in increased quantities another season. Pink Delight is here, represented by as fine a lot of plants as is to be seen in the west, the western growers not having mastered its requirements as have the eastern growers, but Mr. Hill says that it always has done well with them, and these plants certainly bear him out. Benora is another variety that seems at home here, a big lot of high-grade flowers being in sight. Gorgeous is the tall growing variety on the place, and an extra tier of supports has already been put on to carry its long stems. Champion has done well, and in another season will, to a great extent, displace Beacon and be the leading red. Pocahontas is grown as the leading crimson, and Yellow Prince for yellow, both being in first class condition. Mrs. C. W. Ward is grown quite largely, but we noticed the same trouble here as at many other places in the central west: many of the flowers are streaked and quite a lot have bursted calyces. Enchantress Supreme is rapidly pushing aside the old favorite Enchantress, and as seen here is much more desirable. Several seedlings are on trial in different stages of development, some in their first year, others in their second and some in larger quantities.

The E. G. Hill Company have another greenhouse establishment away from their main place, which is given over to carnation plants for cuttings only; these plants are not allowed to flower, all their energy being devoted to producing cuttings. To look over these benches is like looking over a good size field of plants. They are cared for regularly, the same as the plants producing the cut flowers, and when a batch of shoots are fit they are taken off and sent to the propagators. The plants are in the best of health, and many thousands of cuttings are now ready to be taken off.

Fred H. Lemon & Co., Richmond, Ind.

We could not leave Richmond without looking up our old friend Fred Lemon. We found the force at the flower shop in the midst of making up a casket blanket and other floral pieces for a funeral, having had a very busy day with this kind of work. Out at the greenhouses, Fred was getting next to the trouble with the steam pump, and at the time of our call was just finishing up.

A general line of stock is grown here to supply the store, and what surplus is left beyond this requirement is consigned to the market. We noticed some very well grown plants of Primula obconica and P. malacoides, and some well-flowered cyclamens. The roses here were in first-class condition, some benches of White Killarney and Pink Killarney being especially fine. A bench of Ophelia, with the flowers left on to ripen up the wood for propagating, was a particularly fine show and gave us a chance to see the flowers of this new rose in the different stages of development. Most of the roses at this establishment were heavier in crop at the time of our visit than the others seen in our travels. The heavy demand now on for carnation blooms is keeping the crop cut up close, every available flower being called for the day we were there. Sweet peas and bulbous plants are also grown for the store trade, and considerable space is given over to growing green for floral work.

Fred Dorner & Sons Co., La Fayette, Ind.

The firm of F. Dorner & Sons Co., so long noted as the raisers and introducers of some of our best American carnations and chrysanthemums, are now branching out by entering the field of raising new roses, and as a starter are introducing to the trade their well named seedling, Hoosier Beauty, the plants of which at the time of our visit were in excellent growth. They have attained somewhat a taller growth than the E. G. Hill Co.'s plants, due to their not having been cut back as hard, but lots of flowers on long stems were in sight. The freedom of flowering appears to be one of the principal qualities of this new rose. A house of late planted stock on their own roots was a good demonstration of what can be done with this rose. Planted in September, the plants have made wonderful growth, and at the time of our visit were in fine growth and crop. A large stock is being worked up to meet the call for young plants, and every care is being taken to produce first-class young stock, both on their own roots and grafted, so that the grower who purchases this stock will not have any reason for complaint. Those that are already worked up into pots are in a healthy growing condition and the other roses on the place are all doing well, several seedlings being under trial to determine their qualities.

Carnations more than any other flower have made the name of Dorner so well known throughout the trade, and it is always interesting to visit this establishment and get a first hand look over the novelties and note their habit of growth. The two novelties being sent out this season are being grown in large numbers. Pink Sensation will be a fine addition to our list of varieties for high grade blooms, for size, color and form. It is a queen among carnations and has a strong stiff stem to carry the flower erect; it may not bloom as free as some of the varieties with smaller flowers, but sizing up the plants as they look on the bench, Pink Sensation appears to be remarkably free for so large a flower. Good Cheer might well be termed Pink Wonder; it has every indication of being one of the best varieties that the Dorners have sent out. As seen growing on the benches, among the standard varieties, receiving the same treatment, it looms up in grand shape, a fine rose pink with long stiff stems, very free in blooming and an excellent grower. Champion as seen here showed the signs of having produced a heavy crop, but there were quite a number still in sight. A salmon sport of Gloriosa showed a remarkable difference in the foliage of the plant, something unusual in a sport. A very large number of seedlings in their second and third year trials were being tested out to see if they would come up to the standard for distribution. A few of them by their present appearance will evidently pass the critical test, while a greater number will be discarded, the standard of today being so high it takes a mighty good one to pass muster.

Besides the roses and carnations, quite a large list of miscellaneous plants are grown to take care of the retail trade. The geraniums and other bedding stock for spring trade were Statistics and Facts.

Look on this picture painted by the department of agriculture as a result of investigation into farm incomes:

The average farmer receives little more money for his year's work than he would be paid if he hired himself out as a farmhand. In other words, though he is in business for himself he gets little or no money reward for his labors and the risk and responsibility he has assumed.

Now look on this picture drawn by an exhibitor at the automobile show:

There are approximately 1,500,000 cars in use in the country, representing a cost of about $1,500,000,000. The average value of a new automobile is $980. One-half of all the automobiles in this country are owned by farmers.

So much for the agricultural department's average farmer in the abstract. The real farmer is "something else again," and the motor car salesman knows his own. For the purposes of income taxation the farmer is hard up, but the dealers in devil wagons are the best detectives of solvency that the world has ever seen.—New York Sun.

San Francisco.

TRADE IS VERY SATISFACTORY.

There has been no very noticeable increase in business since last week. Stock of nearly all sorts is being absorbed readily owing to the short supply. There is a scarcity of the Mrs. Russell rose, which has become one of the most popular and best sellers among the rose family. A great many more of this variety could be used, but they are not to be had. The long, continuous dark spell has taken the color out of the Pink Killarney and its sports. However, owing to the short supply they move readily. Cecile Brunners are very hard to get and are bringing 25 cents per dozen. Violets are in over supply, no reasonable offer being refused. The street vendors use enormous quantities daily. Freesias are in good demand, the best bringing $3 per 100, which is considered a very good figure. There are plenty of Romans to be had, the price being from $2 to $3 per 100. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful and whatever stock arrives is snapped up without delay. Carnations are still holding up in good shape at from $2 for medium to $3 for the best. Very few of the winter flowering sweet peas are in evidence as yet, owing to the absence of sunshine. Good ferns are not as plentiful as heretofore, but there is plenty of all other greens. There is a steady demand for all kinds of pot plants, particularly the different nephrolepis.

NOTES.

February 25 has been selected as San Mateo County day at the exposition. As this county produces nearly all the violets for this market and the northwest, it has been planned to give a "violet" ball in the Auditorium on that evening. All the decorative schemes are to be carried out in violets and each guest is to be presented with a large bunch of violets at the entrance of the Auditorium. Very few people have any idea of the extent of this business as carried on in this county out of doors. Thousands of dozens of bunches find their way to this market daily and from this city are distributed throughout the west.

Geo. W. Kerr, of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. of Philadelphia, Pa., was a welcome visitor during the week. This is Mr. Kerr's first visit to this city and he was greatly impressed by the possibilities open to all horticulturists in this state. He is making arrangements for W. Atlee Burpee & Co.'s exhibit of sweet peas at the exposition in June. It is said this will be one of the finest exhibits of sweet peas ever shown at a world's fair. After a tour of the Burpee seed farms at Lompoc next week, Mr. Kerr will depart for home. We hope he will come again and see us.

The exhibit of the Chinese republic arrived in the city yesterday on the Russian steamer Garoslaol. This is the most comprehensive exhibit of Chinese plants that has ever reached this country. The shrubs and plants will be planted in the beautiful Chinese garden surrounding the Chinese pavilion. Much landscape work already has been done and the additional shrubs will make it one of the beauty spots of the state and foreign pavilion area. The Chinese government sent their own landscape gardeners to plant and arrange the exhibit.

E. W. McLellan, accompanied by his wife, have returned from a very extended trip throughout the northwest and British Columbia. It might also be added that at the McLellan range at Burlingame one can see the Mrs Chas. Russell rose at its best. This firm has been particularly successful with this variety and is sending in fine stock to its wholesale store in this city. Mr. McLellan reports business as very satisfactory from the grower's point of view.

The San Mateo commission of the world's fair are interviewing the different growers with a view of setting aside one day at the Palace of Horticulture for each flower grown commercially, such as one day for roses, another for carnations and so on. This idea is meeting with the hearty support of the majority of the growers. It is a good idea and we hope it will materialize.

A visit to the ferneries of H. Plath shows this place in its usual splendid condition. There are very large quantities of Asplenium nidus avis, which Mr. Plath says is a great seller with them. The adiantum and nephrolepis houses were looking fine, as also were the different palm houses. Mr. Plath is the largest grower of this class of stock on this coast.

The many friends of Wm. S. Rennie of Ross are gratified to hear that President John W. Everitt, of the National Association of Gardeners, has appointed him a member of the national co-operative committee. Mr. Rennie is well qualified for the honor and we may expect to hear great things of him during the convention next August.

Carl Purdy, of Ukiah, has been appointed by the exposition directors to the position made vacant by the resignation of Wm. Plumb of New York. Mr. Purdy is well known as a nurseryman and plant collector in this state for years. He has already entered upon his duties at the exposition grounds.

Podesta & Baldocchi are making a grand display of orchids in their store on Grant avenue. They are also using the daily papers, impressing upon the public that they specialize in this flower. Pelicano, Rossi & Co. are also very large handlers of orchids, both in plants and cut blooms.

The multitude of friends of Edwin Lonsdale, who is now at the Burpee farms at Lompoc, will be pained to hear that there is little or no improvement in his condition. He is still confined to his bed, but we all hope that ere long he will be himself again.

Henry Goertzhain, of Redwood City, has purchased a large tract of land near the town of Leland, adjacent to Palo Alto, which at some future date he intends to devote to his increasing cut flower business.

The splendid collection of plants and palms which constitute the Cuban exhibit are now in place. M. McKenzie, who went to Cuba for the collection, has not been in the best of health since his return.

H. McLean, late of British Columbia, has joined the greenhouse staff at the exposition grounds. Wm. Hill has resigned his petition there and has gone with E. C. Bowles at Berkeley.

H. Hefly has resigned his position with M. H. Ebel, of Sacramento, and is in town again.

OBITUARY.

Jesse E. Northrup.

Jesse E. Northrup, for many years head of the firm of Northrup, King & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and one of the best known seedsmen in the United States, died at his late residence in that city, February 4, at the age of 58 years. He had been in poor health for some time and practically retired from active business life two years ago.

Mr. Northrup was born in Saline, Mich., and after completing his education entered the seed trade in the east. In 1884 he located in Minneapolis, and in partnership with the late Chas. P. Braslan and A. H. Goodwin, formed the Northrup, Braslan & Goodwin Co., the foundation of the present firm of Northrup, King & Co., the late Preston King becoming a partner in 1896, when the title was changed.

For more than 25 years Mr. Northrup had been a recognized leader in the promotion of seed interests and few men have been so long continuously and actively identified with the seed trade of the United States. For that reason he had a country-wide acquaintance in the trade and was highly esteemed. He was prominent in the affairs of the American Seed Trade Association, served as its president in 1901-1902, and his counsel was at all times sought and estimated highly in measures tending to promote the welfare of the national organization and the advancement of the seed business generally.

As a resident of the city of Minneapolis for 30 years, he held an enviable position among its public-spirited citizens. He was prominent in all civic affairs, in the business world and socially. The business he founded has prospered until it has left a lasting impress over a territory embracing most of the northwest, and bespeaks his sterling business qualities. In the magnificent Minneapolis park system, for the upbuilding and improvement of which he worked indefatigably, giving liberally of his time, serving as a member of the board of park commissioners for 18 years, a large part of this time as its president, he leaves an enduring monument to the rare power of human sympathy and service that won for him public and private esteem and affection. In his business associations, his clubs, his church, and his civic relations, he was recognized as a strong figure. While gentle of manner, he had executive ability to put into motion and carry to completion broadly conceived ideas in whatever field of activity his mind worked.

He was buried from the family residence Saturday, February 6. Floral offerings in profusion, tributes of esteem from a host of friends in all walks of life, bore evidence of the loss caused in his passing.

WE are in receipt of the proceedings of the thirtieth annual convention of the Society of American Florists, held at Boston, Mass., August 18-20, 1914. a book of some 350 pages, with illustrations and maps.

Pruning Shears.

The controversy with regard to duty on imported pruning and other shears and the inability of foreign manufacturers to fill orders for such goods need not bother the American trade when it is possible to secure the superior article in pruning shears offered in the very complete and varied set made by the Peck, Stow & Wilcox Co., the well known tool manufacturers of Cleveland, O. These pruning shears are offered in more than a dozen sizes and patterns at very attractive prices.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

There will be a meeting of the directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery at the La Salle hotel, Chicago, March 2, at 10 a. m. Members are invited to attend this meeting if possible. ALBERT POCHELON, Sec'y.

Society of American Florists.

President Patrick Welch has appointed J. G. Esler, Saddle River, N. J., state vice-president of New Jersey in place of Joseph A. Manda, who declined the appointment.

The president desires to notify all persons interested in the prize contest that the rules to govern the same are changed to read as follows:

First—Anyone desiring to enter the contest must first register by sending his or her name and address to the national secretary, John Young, 53 West 28th street, New York, as early as possible, who will forward application blanks immediately.

Second—The contestants must forward to the secretary as received a list of the new members secured, accompanied by fee of $5 for each annual member and $30 for each new life member. Each annual member shall count one; each life member shall count six.

Third—The secretary will publish a list of the new members thus secured, and of the contestants, thus securing them in the trade papers weekly. On July 31, 1915, at 6 p. m., the candidate having the largest number of names to his or her credit shall be declared the winner. (Contest closes at 6 p. m. sharp at the secretary's office in New York. Applications for membership sent by mail and received after that hour will not be counted.)

Fourth—The prize to be selected by a committee of three, two appointed by the president of the society and one by the winner. The president's gold watch and chain, value $150, is the prize, but if the winner prefers, the same value will be offered in something else—that is optional. $150 in gold, if preferred.

JOHN YOUNG, Sec'y.

Birds Check Wireworm's Depredations.

Birds are probably the most important factor in restricting the depredations of wireworms, according to the United States department of agriculture's new bulletin (No. 156), "Wireworms Attacking Cereal and Forage Crops." While this bulletin is a "professional paper" and goes into great detail regarding the life history and habits of these pests, it also suggests a number of practical methods for checking or eradicating this menace to such crops as wheat, cotton and corn.

Among the birds that are known to feed on wireworms (either the larvae that do the damage, or the adult beetles) are the following: Bobwhite, flicker, mourning dove, ruffed grouse, crow, whippoorwill, California quail, cowbird and bobolink. Besides these, certain hawks, cuckoos, woodpeckers, phoebes, fly-catchers, jays, blackbirds, orioles and sparrows help the farmer in protecting his grain from the undesirable wireroom.

The true wireworm, economically, is one of the five worst pests that attack Indian corn. It is among the twelve worst pests attacking wheat and oats. With the exception of the cotton and corn wireworm these insects begin their attacks immediately after seeding time, when they attack the seed, eating out the inside and leaving only the hull. When they are very numerous they often consume all the seed, making reseeding necessary, and in severe outbreaks a second reseeding is sometimes made before a stand is obtained. The only remedies which have actually proved to be of practical value in combating any of the wireworms are cultural methods. Even these in a number of cases have not proved entirely satisfactory; however, they are preferable to such apparently ineffective means as endeavoring to kill the adult beetles by poison baits, drying the seed to prevent its being eaten by the insect, or the introduction of poisonous substances into the soil.

Massachusetts Agricultural College.

A conference on garden planning and planting was conducted by members of the college staff January 30 under the auspices of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society in Horticultural hall, Boston. In the morning talks were given on "Trees and Shrubs for Home Grounds" by Prof. A. K. Harrison; "Garden Planting" by P. H. Elwood, Jr., and "Garden Furnishing" by Prof. F. A. Waugh. The afternoon program consisted of talks by Prof. A. H. Nehrling on the "Practical Management of the Home Flower Garden" and A. S. Thurston on "Annuals and Herbaceous Perennials." The latter followed his talk with a set of lantern slides showing gardens and also some of the better perennials.

During farmers' week at the college, two days, March 16-17, will be entirely devoted to floriculture. On these dates several prominent floriculturists will speak. In connection with this series of lectures a spring flower show, occupying the entire first floor of French hall, will be held.

The short course in floriculture has been in progress since the first week in January. Fifteen students are enrolled, the registration having been limited to this number in order that more personal supervision might be given and more efficient work done. Several observation trips to commercial greenhouses are included in the course. Two seminars are being given this semester for the regular college students, one in commercial floriculture conducted by Prof. Nehrling and one in plant materials for garden work by A. S. Thurston.

San Francisco Bowling.

M. C. Ebel, of the Aphine Mfg. Co., Madison, N. J., has advised Vice-president D. MacRorie that his company will donate a bowling trophy for the highest individual score bowled at the coming San Francisco conventions. The actual value of the trophy will be $100, and will be engraved as follows:

STOCK STILL SCARCE.

Stock of all kinds is still scarce at this writing and will very likely continue to be so until after Valentine day at least, for orders are quite numerous and it is a question whether the late demands can be taken care of or not. American Beauty roses are commanding good prices, especially in the fancy grades, and what little stock is arriving is quickly disposed of at an early hour. Roses are a trifle more plentiful than they were last week, but continue to clean up quickly yet at good prices. Roses in general have improved greatly in quality since the weather changed for the better, especially Killarney, which is showing fine color now. Richmond roses are good property and command high prices, as do Milady, Rhea Reid and Mrs. Chas. Russell. Some very choice Mrs. Chas. Russell roses in the longer grades are arriving now, but, like American Beauties, they are commanding good prices and clean up quickly. Carnations have sold better the past week than they have for a long time and good stock easily brought $3 to $4 per 100, and in some instances more for fancy red and other colored stock. Orchids are quite plentiful, but gardenias are very scarce, and it is impossible to fill anywhere near the demand. Violets are selling better, which is natural for Valentine week, but the eastern stock is not bringing the prices that it should. Home-grown single violets are having the best call and are bringing fairly good prices. Lilies of fine quality are arriving now, but the supply is none too large and the market is pretty well cleaned up as far as this item is concerned. Tulips, jonquils, Paper White narcissi, freesias and gladioli are to be had, but like other stock these flowers are also cleaning up well. Lily of the valley is none too plentiful and there has been quite a shortening up in stevia. A few pansies are seen and some of the finest sweet peas of the season are arriving now. Business has been quite good, with the out-of-town demand best, although local trade has shown a big improvement also. A reduction in prices may be expected next week, for several of the larger growers claim to be coming in crop again, but the prices will not be as low as some seem to think they will be.

NOTES.

The A. Dietsch Co. has made a number of changes at its factory the past winter, which included the installation of new machinery, new stack, etc., and everything is now all ready for the spring season. Several new orders for new houses have already been booked and business so far this season is very encouraging.

William Lubliner has leased a store in the Windsor-Clifton Hotel for three years at 36 South Wabash avenue and will be open for business about March 1. His brother Dan will have charge of his store in Milwaukee, Wis., which will be continued until the Plankington building, in which it is located, is torn down.

Felix Reichling, who looks after affairs at Peter Reinberg's store, is serving on the jury in the municipal court this week as is C. L. Sherer of the A. L. Randall Co.

V. Bezdek, who has grown fancy carnations in America for eight years, says that the old standby Victory is still the best red on his list.

The Tonner family had a reunion on Sunday, February 7, when seven children were present at the home of their mother, Mrs. Anna Tonner, and it is needless to add that everyone present had a lovely time. The Tonner family is pretty well known to the florists in this vicinity, especially O. A. Tonner, Lillian A. Tonner and Mrs. Thos. Fogarty. This was the first time that the family had all been together for over seven years, so a group picture was taken the following day.

F. F. Scheel's place at Shermerville was visited by fire on the night of February 5, when his large barn was completely destroyed and three small greenhouses were somewhat damaged. The new range was not damaged at all, everyone is pleased to hear, but at that the loss is quite large. By quick work a good portion of the stock in the greenhouses that were burned was saved by transferring it to the other houses.

If A. T. Pyfer of the Chicago Carnation Co. could have heard the many compliments that a manager of one of the local wholesale houses and a large grower paid to the carnation Herald this week, that his firm disseminated several years ago, he would buy a new lid. Herald is making good, and the longer one grows it the better one seems to like it.

R. E. Kurowski, vice-president of the John C. Moninger Co., will make a business trip to New York soon, stopping off at Cincinnati, O., and other cities enroute. The Moninger Co. has been receiving many inquiries recently from prospective builders and the indications are that there will be as much new glass go up in 1915 as last year.

Bassett & Washburn report business as very good with a grand clean-up in stock each day in all lines. C. L. Washburn says that American Beauty roses especially are good property and that fancy long-stemmed stock is bringing very good prices.

L. Lozer of the Kyle & Foerster store force is the champion weight guesser in the market. He can tell almost to the pound what one weighs by simply lifting him off the floor.

Chas. Erne says that trade was very good at Erne & Klingel's store all week and that stock of all kinds cleaned up well at an early hour.

Chas. W. McKellar is back on the job at his store, but is not feeling any too well yet.

Beauties-Roses

According to George Economopolus, the Alpha Floral Co. will remodel its South Wabash avenue store early next spring. The entrance to the restaurant and buffet below the store will be removed from Wabash avenue to the Adams street side, so as to permit a Wabash avenue entrance to the store in addition to a new entrance on Adams street. A large display window will replace the present entrance, a new refrigerator will be installed and the interior of the store itself will be fitted up in the grandest style possible.

A. Lange has been featuring the pretty new roses Souvenir de Guillard and George Elgar in his window displays the past few weeks at his Madison street store, where they were greatly admired by all those who passed by. Souvenir de Guillard is a splendid looking rose, but the lovely George Elgar, which greatly resembles Cecile Brunner except in color, seems to be the most popular.

Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store is now in the hands of carpenters, and a great improvement is already to be seen. When the alterations are all completed the store will present a much better appearance and Max Ringier and his able assistant. George Goebel, will then be able to look after trade to better advantage. Florida-grown gladioli are seen in large supply at this establishment now.

The land adjacent to Mathias H. Mann's residence and greenhouses at 5504 North Clark street is increasing steadily in value each year, and the field that he used to use for his carnation plants four years ago is now pretty well occupied by flat buildings and residences. Mr. Mann is a member of the wholesale firm of Zeck & Mann and of which concern John Zeck is the able manager.

Otto W. Frese, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., says that the out-of-town demand for stock for St. Valentine's day is very good this year. This firm is offering choice stock in all lines with orchids and Mrs. Chas. Russell roses the leading offerings. The demand for grafted and own root rose plants and carnation cuttings at the greenhouses is very good and new orders arrive each day.

At the Fleischmann Floral Co.'s store on East Jackson boulevard a splendid display of seasonable cut flowers is always to be seen. This week the chief offering in plants seems to be well grown Roman hyacinths in pans and baskets, artistically arranged in the usual Fleischmann style.

J. A. Budlong is cutting about as fine a line of roses and carnations as the firm had to offer for a long time and a good supply of them, too. American Beauty roses especially are in good supply and some choice Ophelia and Mrs. Chas. Russell are among the many offerings.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are showing a large supply of fancy American Beauty roses in addition to their regular supply of other stock. Mr. Vaughan says that business has been unusually good this week, both the local and out-of-town demand being brisk.

Percy Jones is having a brisk call for roses and his buyers have been seen on the market all week, picking up enough stock so all his orders could be filled. Carnations of quality are seen in large supply at this hustling house.

J. W. Breakey says that outside of funeral work trade is none too brisk in his neighborhood. He has been located at 3907 Cottage Grove avenue for seven years, and during that time has built up a nice paying business.

George Wienhoeber, South Wabash avenue, has an advertisement in the street cars offering a bunch of violets neatly arranged with a ribbon for $1.00 for St. Valentine's day, postpaid anywhere.

Peter Reinberg has recovered from his recent illness and is able to be about again. His firm reports a brisk demand for carnation cuttings this week, one order alone calling for 50,000.

A baby boy gladdened the household of L. Hoeckner at Crystal Lake, February 5, and ever since "Stogie" has been strutting around Peter Reinberg's store as if he owned the whole place.

O. J. Friedman has just installed a beautiful lily of the valley, orchid and violet case in his South Michigan avenue store facing the Auditorium annex entrance.

George Perdikas has been featuring bulbous flowers in large quantities the past week, especially jonquils and tulips, at each of his three loop stores.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is offering some of the finest lilies of the season at its North Michigan avenue store.

Walter Kreitling & Co. have been in business at their present location, 77 East Van Buren street, for thirty-two years.

Christian Schluter, secretary of the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., and Miss Eleanor Schulz were married February 3.

The Retail Florists' Association will meet at the Hotel Bismarck next Monday evening, February 8, at eight o'clock.

Graff & Dressel are still conducting the old Sam Pearce place at 2135 Clybourn avenue and are doing very nicely.

Chas. Dendler is celebrating his ninth year with the Atlas Floral Co. this week.

Dave Lavitt is now conducting the flower stand in the La Salle street station.

E. C. Pruner and A. F. Longren are both in the city this week.

F. Benthey says that his foreman, Wm. A. Brenecke, visited F. Dorner & Sons Co.'s greenhouses at La Fayette, Ind., for the purpose of inspecting the new rose Hoosier Beauty again. He speaks very favorably of it and it is quite likely that the Benthey people at New Castle, Ind., will grow some plants of this variety next season. Mr. Benthey says that Ophelia and Mrs. George Shawyer have both made good with them, and has the stock to back up his argument.

Wietor Bros. are in nice crop with American Beauty roses and are supplying their trade with choice stock in this line now. Roses are also more plentiful at this establishment, and the same holds good for carnations. N. J. Wietor thinks that Bonfire is a mighty fine carnation and that it is a bloomer from Bloomerville seems to be true at this store, for almost every third bunch one sees now is a bunch of Bonfire.

Nick Thinnes is shipping some fine carnations to this market now, as is always the case with him. He grows vegetables also, which was a good investment the past season, for the carnation market was not as good as it might have been, but is exceptionally good at present.

Hoerber Bros. are cutting quite heavily in roses and some fine Killarneys are to be seen at their store now. Carnations seem to be in good supply also at this establishment.

John Sinner says that the demand for carnation cuttings continues to be very good at Sinner Bros.' store and that some nice orders are being booked every day.

The Frank Floral Co. is showing some fine bulbous stock and green goods at their store now.

W. W. Adams has about as neat and pretty a retail business card as one would care to hand out.

Chicago Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club was held at the Hotel Bismarck, Thursday evening, February 4, President Keimel in the chair. J. W. Fink, 2644 Herndon street; A. Fuhrman, 2242 San Jose avenue; Peter Bowman, 704 Garfield avenue; Edward Hunt, 5934 Winchester street, Abe Iralson, 356 East Forty-third street and Joe Einweck, 131 North Wabash avenue, were elected to membership and the following were nominated for membership: Fred Schramm and E. Muret, Park Ridge; Rudolph Ellsworth, Downer's Grove; Chas. Schwake and Milton Alexander, New York; Ernst Knecht, 1335 South Keeler avenue, and Howard R. Votaw, 4201 South Ashland avenue.

A communication was read from the civil service board of the West park commissioners calling attention to an examination for florists, February 24, at 9 a. m., at the Garfield Park pavilion. Applications must be filed in the office of the board in Union Park before 5 p. m., February 23 and application blanks may be obtained at the office of the board in Union park or at the West park playgrounds.

A committee consisting of George Asmus, August Poehlmann and Michael Barker was appointed to make the necessary arrangements to entertain the board of directors of the Society of American Florists, which will meet at the La Salle hotel, Monday, March 1, at 10 a. m.

A committee will be appointed to meet with a committee representing the Cook County Florists' Association in the near future, when the society will be invited to affiliate with this organization. There was also some talk in regard to affiliation with the Society of American Florists and a special effort will be made to have enough members join the mother society so that the local club will be properly represented on the board of directors.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. was awarded the club certificate for the splendid cattleya that they had on display and which attracted much favorable attention. Wm. Tricker and John Degnan acted as judges.

The greater part of the evening was spent in telling stories and listening to the songs that Ed. Hunt rendered and it was nearly midnight before the club adjourned.

St. Louis.

TRADE CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

The market during the past week held up well, demand being brisk, and in general good prices prevailed. The weather was cool and dark, which influenced the supply to a great extent. Sweet peas, however, fell off considerably as well as violets, but it is expected the supply will increase with the bright weather. Valentine displays are noted in some of the retailers' windows. Lilies have been in good demand, bringing good prices. Smilax is plentiful and other greens are in good demand.

NOTES.

Ostertag Bros. are fixing up a special decorated window for St. Valentine's day. Miss Lillie Ostertag, Henry Ostertag's niece, will be married in the spring.

Geo. H. Angermueller displayed some very choice cattleyas from the W. J. & M. S. Vesey greenhouses, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Mullanphy Florists have specially decorated windows for Lincoln's birthday and St. Valentine's day.

H. G. Berning had a fine supply of jonquils, Harrisii lilies and American Beauty roses the past week.

The Windler Wholesale Floral Co. had a fine supply of violets and sweet peas last week.

Wm. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co. showed some very choice white and pink Killarney.

Grimm & Gorly have added another new Ford automobile to their delivery service.

The growers held their meeting February 3 at their hall at Kirkwood.

The West End Florists report business good.

DEMAND ACTIVE BUT SUPPLY SHORT.

The only possible objection to market conditions is the undue scarcity of stock. There is a good active demand that easily takes up present receipts and more could be used if forthcoming. The rose cut, as far as quantity is concerned, is at a very low point. All receipts are selling readily. Carnations are cleaning up as fast as they arrive in the market and more could easily be used. Sweet peas are in good supply and are very fine, and the same is true of violets. Lily of the valley receipts are equal to present needs and have a fair call. The cut of orchids, too, can easily take care of present calls for them. Lilies are plentiful and are proving good proverty. Callas and rubrums may be had in limited quantities. The list of small bulbous stock includes tulips, jonquils, Dutch hyacinths, freesias, Roman hyacinths and narcissi.

CLUB MEETING.

The regular meeting of the florists' club was held Monday evening, February 8, at Hotel Gibson. The attendance was better than at the last few meetings. The report of the committee on valuation of growing flowers for taxation was discussed and an order made to have the result of their findings printed and mailed to each member of the society.

NOTES.

Gus and Chas. Brunner have the sympathy of their friends in the trade in their bereavement over the death of their mother.

Julius Baer has a very attractive display of azaleas in his windows.

C. E. Critchell has been having some very fine tulips.

TRADE SHOWS SOME IMPROVEMENT.

There appeared to be a much better tone to business the past week, although the street men were greatly in evidence Saturday, February 6, having quite large stocks of various kinds to offer at low prices, with very good lily of the valley as a leader at 35 cents per bunch of a dozen. Roses are becoming more plentiful, except American Beauties, which in the select grade are still very scarce. White Killarney are now very good, while the pink are a much better color. Sunburst are a trifle more plentiful, as are all the fancies. The Shawyer is one of the newcomers that has apparently made good; it mildews badly with some growers, but with others the foliage is clean and bright, and the flowers develop into a very handsome rose. Ophelia looks good and is likely to become a standard sort. Carnations have never been better than this season and have been sold up very well the past week. Cattleyas are plentiful and sell very low in large quantities. Gardenias, very good flowers have been run as a leader in some stores at 10 cents each. Violets are hard to clean up. Sweet peas appeared to be off crop and prices took a jump. All were in good demand, the orchid variety being all sold before arrival. Snapdragons are good stock and find a ready market. Greens are scarce, selling out every day.

NOTES.

Special sales of choice flowers, such as select cattleyas for 50 cents, and choice gardenias for 10 cents in some of the retail stores, while others get 75 cents and $1 for the cattleyas and 25 cents to 35 cents for the gardenias gives a wide difference in prices that the public find hard to understand.

Cibotium ferns, splendid pedestal grown plants, and kentias galore are the special features of the Joseph Heacock establishment at Wyncote. The large house of cattleyas is very showy with its wealth of choice flowers.

Berger Brothers Central market is full of spring flowers, standard and novelties. Daffodils, freesias and orchid peas, together with choice roses are leaders.

Spring flowers are the leaders with the Leo Niessen Co. Acacias, wall flowers, double violets and orchid peas are specials for Valentine's day.

Edward Reid's Spencer peas are great flowers. Special carnations are a feature. The fancy roses in variety are seen here in quantity.

Kentias and Phoenix Roebelenii are a feature with Henry A. Dreer. A sale at special prices is moving much of this stock.

The M. Rice Co. are laying great plans for Easter. Their plant baskets are of the best, both in shape and coloring.

NO MATERIAL IMPROVEMENT IN TRADE.

During the past week business was nothing more than fair. Some lines of stock were in demand and others seemed to drag. The trade on roses fell off a little, but as long as the stock cleans up well there are not many complaints. Carnations toward the end of the week sold very well, considering the general conditions, but the first of the week they were not in very heavy demand. Sweet peas move nicely, as there is not as yet an oversupply. Violets continue to move slowly, but St. Valentine's day should bring a change for the better. The few warm days we have had have done much toward bringing a heavier supply to the markets in every line of stock. The shipping business far exceeds the local trade in every respect and does much to keep the market to the present standard.

NOTES.

Edward Ahearn, of Wellesley Hills, one of the largest growers of marguerites and English primroses in this vicinity, has commenced to ship his two products in quantity. His entire range is devoted to these two popular flowers.

The Exeter Rose Conservatories, of Exeter, N. H., are right in crop with their roses at present. They have a pink sport of Richmond that looks very promising. Hadley, Killarney Brilliant and Ward also do very well with them.

J. A. Nelson, of Framingham, Mass., is cutting a fine crop of carnations. He has Enchantress in quantity, as he is a firm believer in its producing qualities. His Pink Delight, White Enchantress, Fenn and Beacon are also very good.

A. Walsh at the Boston Flower Exchange is receiving from the Halifax Garden Co. a good cut of high quality roses. Richmond, Killarney Brilliant, Ward and White Killarney are the leaders at present.

In addition to carnations, I. W. Simpson, of Woburn, Mass., is cutting good yellow marguerites. His crop of this popular flower is coming along very fast and soon he will be shipping in quantity.

The Pink Supreme carnations from J. H. Leach of North Easton, Mass., look especially fine just now. The bulk of his shipments comprise this variety, which was originated by him.

The Rosette and Pink Delight carnations from S. J. Goddard, of South Framingham, Mass., are extra fine at present. His entire stock is far above the average.

There will be an exhibition of plants and flowers held by this society, Wednesday, February 17, at the American Museum of Natural History, 77th street and Central Park, west. Premiums are offered for cut blooms of orchids, roses, sweet peas, schizanthus, antirrhinum, freesias, and narcissi. Prizes may also be awarded for exhibits not provided for in the schedule, and such exhibits are solicited. Schedules will be sent on application to the secretary, George V. Nash, New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park, New York. There will also be a meeting of the society on the same day in the East Assembly hall at the same place, at 3:45, followed by a lecture, illustrated with lantern slides, by W. C. McCollom, on "The Small Greenhouse: Its Use and Abuse."

TRADE NOT ENCOURAGING.

The business of the past week was not particularly encouraging. Probably weather conditions had something to do with trade conditions, as the weather throughout most of the week was particularly gloomy. Rain, snow, fog, general dampness and discomfort were the rule rather than exception. Saturday, February 6, was a fair day in the wholesale district, but one swallow does not make a summer. Wholesale prices, which took a little jump during the week ending January 30, dropped off again during the past week on account of the arrival of more stock. That was of no particular advantage to the retailers. The best of them and the most of them, so far as we are aware, are willing to pay a decent price if they have business to warrant it. As a veteran dealer recently remarked: "This business is getting to be a tough game." We believe that it will improve, one reason being that, compared with previous years, it cannot get much worse. Take for instance two stocks, supposed to be leading, orchids and American Beauty roses. As a well-known dealer recently, more emphatically than politely remarked: "This district is 'lousy' with orchids, and I would like to have somebody tell me what we are going to do with them and at the same time please the growers." The arrival of American Beauty roses, of late, has not been heavy, but at the same time they have been hard to move; just what may happen to the market when the next crop comes in is hard to state. The supply of bulbous stock, tulips, yellow narcissi and hyacinths, is rapidly increasing and prices are declining. In tea roses, the leading demand is for short stock, suitable for funeral work. Both carnations and violets are cheap and getting cheaper.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW

NOTES.

Alexander McConnell. the veteran retailer of Fifth avenue and 49th street, is presenting to friends and customers a very elaborately designed "Dickens Calendar" for 1915. All the work on this book, for it is in book form, is so good that it is hard to do it justice in a brief description. For each month there are a number of quotations from the writings of Dickens.

Horace E. Froment, the well-known wholesaler of 57 West 28th street, will soon remove to a much larger store at 148 West 28th street. In this connection it may be stated that L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., who ships a heavy supply of roses to Mr. Froment, and who has recently been seriously ill, is now reported as greatly improved and out of danger.

The Greek-American Florists' Association of this city will hold its annual entertainment and ball February 25, at the Terrace garden, 58th street near Lexington avenue. As this association always provides good entertainment there will doubtless be a large attendance.

As is generally known, President Bunyard of the New York Florists' Club has severed his connection with A. T. Boddington.

The monthly meeting of the club was held in its rooms in the Grand Opera House building on the night of February 8, President Bunyard in the chair. There was a very large attendance, the hall being filled to overflowing. Good feeling prevailed throughout. A committee was appointed to purchase a plot or building for a permanent club home. This, it will be recalled, was outlined in President Bunyard's inaugural address. In an extended address, F. R. Pierson reported good progress by the flower show committee; he was supported by other members. A. L. Miller, of Brooklyn, reported good progress along the same line in his field. The dinner committee reported, as elsewhere noted. Frank Dinda, Farmingdale, N. Y., was proposed for membership by A. J. Guttman.

The exhibits, it being carnation night, were numerous and fine, and all received votes of thanks. The following were among those who made displays:

Chas. L. Doerrer, Westfield, N. J., exhibited Victory and Enchantress.

A. L. Miller, Brooklyn, exhibited Matchless and Enchantress.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., Eureka. Aravana and Philadelphia.

SUPPLY IS SHORT OF DEMAND.

Stock in most lines continues very scarce. Carnations and roses, being most in demand, seem shorter in supply than ever with the exception of American Beauties. Of this flower about enough to meet the demand can be had right along from the real short stock to 48-inch stems with good blooms. There are plenty of greens and bulbous stock.

pany's range at Alliance, Ohio, Thursday, February 4. All report the places are in fine shape and, although stock was scarce, what looked like good crops were in the benches. The meals were also fine and enjoyed by all. The boys flagged a train at the Cut Flower Company's greenhouses, which saved them a long walk to the Falls, where they boarded their car for Alliance. A purse was made up and presented to the conductor of the train for his courtesy.

The charity card party for the benefit of mothers and children of horticulturists and florists of Europe to be given by the Women's Florist Club of this city at the Hollenden hotel, February 18, ought to be supported by all florists and allied trades here. Tickets are 50 cents each, and the games begin at 2 p. m. Get a party of four together and have your own table. Refreshments will be served.

The floral display at the food show attracted large crowds, and as many thousands of people visited the food show it seems that was one good way to advertise flowers for Valentine day.

BUSINESS UP TO AVERAGE.

With stock not overplentiful and prices good, business is fair. With what few luncheons, dinners and receptions that are going on there is no great demand for stock of any kind, but still the price of stock is keeping up. American Beauty roses are bringing from $7.50 to $9 per dozen, while other roses such as Radiance, Killarney, both colors, Sunburst, Richmond, Hillingdon, Shawyer, Wards and Hadley can be had from $5 to $15 per hundred for the best. Spencer peas range from $1.50 to $2.50 per hundred, while other varieties bring from 50 cents to $1.50. Orchids are $4 to $6 per dozen, and gardenias sell at $1.50 to $3.00 per dozen. Tulips and jonquils are plentiful and find a ready sale. Easter lilies, callas and rubrums are plentiful.

NOTES.

At the last meeting of the local florists' club officers were nominated as follows: G. H. Cooke, for president; Lloyd Jenkins, vice-president; L. C. Linz, secretary; Wm. Gude, treasurer. After the meeting the members were guests of G. H. Cooke, and enjoyed a buffet supper with a little entertainment on the side.

There is some talk among the retail florists in this city to the effect that the commission houses are doing a retail business. Of course this we hope is not true, as the retail man is not here for his health and, as he has to buy his stock from the wholesaler. he should be protected by him if no other.

Fred Kramer is on the job again, after an attack of the grippe, and reports business just about as could be expected. He is cutting some extra fine stock, for which he finds a ready sale. In bulbous stock Fred is well supplied and is not afraid of going short.

Geo. C. Shaffer had a rustic table decoration, which consisted of large logs of cork bark with the different varieties of orchids; also corsages of orchids, which made a very rich table decoration.

Gude Bros.' window is attracting favorable comment. With a hedge of lilac and baskets of orchids, Spencer peas and Ward roses it makes a very pretty combination.

All the stores are putting in their St. Valentine's day window decorations and some of them are very artistic.

J. R. Freeman is showing some of the finest primroses that have been shown in this city for some time.

Leapley and Meyer are more than satisfied with business this year so far.

G. C. D.

Oklahoma City.

VOLUME OF BUSINESS INCREASES.

Business is steadily growing heavier every day as the spring advances, for it really is spring-like so far as the weather goes, although still early in February. Wearing carnations on McKinley day seems to be a dead letter so far as this city is concerned. One florist avers that not a dozen carnations were sold in his store for wearing purposes on that day. St. Valentine's day is a big feature here, however; there is always a great demand on that day and the stores are already showing many novelties, which are intended to appeal to the fastidious lovelorn who wishes to send a well-meaning, if otherwise non-committal message to the object of his affections. The open balmy weather is causing a general activity in outdoor preparations of gardens and truck farms, and seeds are beginning to move satisfactorily. A tremendous business along all seed lines is expected this season. A general movement is on foot throughout the entire state to establish school gardens among the children; also to induce municipalities to establish park systems and street tree planting, all of which should prove of some benefit to the horticultural trade in general.

"John Baer" Wins in Competition with "Trisco"

J. R. Robinson, Fall River, Mass., writes Oct. 4th, 1914: "The 'John Baer' Tomato is by far the best Tomato I have ever grown, and I have grown all the new varieties for years, including the new English variety 'Trisco,' but will have to say 'John Baer' has it on them all. The weather conditions have not been very good, we had a late Spring, but for all that the 'John Baer' Tomato has done fine. I let several friends have plants and each one says, 'John Baer' is the finest Tomato they have ever grown."

"Last January I sent to England for a package of 'Buck's Trisco' Tomato. The package contained 28 seeds. I sowed 14 of them and raised ten plants. 'Trisco' is all right as a novelty, as it will grow about fifty Tomatoes in a bunch, but they are not fit for market."

"JOHN BAER" TOMATO

The Earliest and Best Tomato on Earth

In Canada—First to Ripen Fruit Out of 28 Varieties

Mr. C. L. Ireland, Colborne, Ontario, Canada, writes Aug. 10th, 1914: "'John Baer' Tomato turned out better for me than I expected it would. I have fourteen (14) acres in Tomatoes this year of twenty-eight (28) different kinds ordered from a good many different seedsmen in the United States and Canada, and of all the several varieties of which the seed was sown at the same time as 'John Baer' and transplanted at the same time, your 'John Baer' was the first to ripen early fruit. I sowed the seed on March 28th and about April 15th transplanted into flats 16 inches square, 100 plants in a flat. About May 15th, I retransplanted some of them again into 16-inch flats, planting nine (9) twenty-five (25) and fifty (50) plants to each flat. I grew them in cotton-covered hotbeds and hardened them off by removing cotton coverings before setting plants to the field. All the plants grew nice, stalky plants, as good as the best of any other variety and a lot hardier than a great many others. I was very much interested in them and certainly pleased with the plants as they suited me to perfection. I set these 'John Baer' Tomato plants out by themselves in a piece of sandy loam on medium low, flat ground, which had been an old quack grass sod broken up and sowed to Oats last year. I kept this well cultivated before and after setting plants and as there was quite a lot of humus from the quack grass roots worked through the soil, I did not use any manure but just a handful of 2 am—9 ph.—6 pot. fertilizer around each plant at time of setting.

"The plants grew large in proportion to number of plants set in the flats (9—25—50 and 100); and continued to hold their same size in proportion all through their season of growth. I planted them out in rows 4 feet apart by 3½ feet in the row. One row of the 9 plants to a flat, one row of the 25 plants to a flat, one row of the 50 plants to a flat and one row of the 100 plants to a flat.

"The largest plants from the row of 9 plants to a flat gave me my first picking of ripe fruit, before any of the other rows had started to show color. This was on July 28. On August 3d, I picked some more from first row and Aug. 6th I had a picking from both first and second rows and again Aug. 9th I had some from first, second and third rows, but none from the last row of 100 plants to a flat.

"There is a very marked difference in the size, number and early maturity of the fruit on the four different rows and this was evidently governed by the size of the plants at setting time.

"We had a cold, backward Spring at setting time, with continued cold and dry weather. Throughout June and July there were practically only two good rains, one on June 29th and the other on July 23d, and when the last rain of July 23d came, the soil was so baked the best effect of the rain was lost, because before the moisture had penetrated to any depth it had mostly evaporated.

"I see by Market Growers' Journal of Aug. 1st that W. F. Massey says that Earliana was ripening plentifully ten days before a sign of color appeared in 'John Baer,' and he seems to think it is Chalk's Jewel renamed. As he says if it is not Chalk's Jewel renamed, it is so much like it there is no reason to keep them separate. My Experience with 'John Baer' Tomato has been just about the reverse of W. F. Massey's, and I am a practical Tomato Grower, for Chalk's Jewel is not the same shaped Tomato as 'John Baer.' Chalk's Jewel will crack badly at the stem end and will not ripen around the stem.

"'John Baer' Tomato in comparison with Langdon's strain of Earliana and Philadelphia Crown Setting Earliana, 'John Baer' was six days earlier than Langdon's, and ten days earlier than Philadelphia Crown Setting. 'John Baer' ripens up better around the stem end than either of them, in much larger and smoother, with heavier vine and foliage. 'John Baer' is also solid and a good keeper after being picked when ripe—August 10th. I now have the first 'John Baer' Tomatoes, which I picked over two weeks ago, lying on the roof of the house in the hot sun, and they have only just started to wither up. 'John Baer' Tomatoes picked Aug. 6th appeared as quite solid yet. In weight 'John Baer' Tomatoes will average from 6 to 12 ounces each, and about seven Tomatoes to a cluster or first setting, which ripens right up to the stem, perfectly solid, and they do not crack, like Earliana and Chalk's Jewel around the stem.

"The only difference in treatment given 'John Baer' and Earliana is that Earliana was given a good coat of manure, plowed in before planting, while 'John Baer' got none, and were considerably larger, more solid, smoother and a brighter deep red color. 'John Baer' Tomato suits me to perfection.

"John Baer" Bore Tomatoes Two Weeks Earlier Than Any Others

Mr. Richard Bowles, Niagara Co., N. Y., R. F. D. No. 30, Sept. 1st, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato proved to be a success. It bore Tomatoes two weeks earlier than any other seed and we had a very fine yield. We are thankful to have found a Tomato earlier than what we have ever had."

"John Baer" Is the Poor Man's Tomato—It Yields So Abundantly

Mr. Gustav Bartholme, Onondaga County, N. Y., writes, Sept. 1st, 1914: "I am glad of the opportunity to say that 'John Baer' Tomato is highly satisfactory. It is the poor man's Tomato, for it can be bountifully raised on very little land. I planted seven rows 'John Baer' Tomato, 350 feet long, which so far yielded 110 bushels with promises of many more.

"I did not intend to raise Tomatoes to sell. I have always raised them solely for my own home use, but I found they bore so many I could not make use of them all, and so I am supplying my neighbors and friends, who are well pleased with them. 'John Baer' Tomatoes are firm and round, with very few crippled ones among them."

"John Baer" Earliest, Heavy Bearer, Smooth, Fine Flavor

Miss Carrie B. Bankard, Carroll Co., Md., Sept. 3d, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomatoes are the earliest I have ever had. I have been very successful with them. I find the 'John Baer' a very heavy bearer, very smooth and round, and of a fine flavor."

Picking Two "John Baer" Tomatoes to One of Chalk's Jewel

Mr. Harry F. Hopkins, Baltimore Co., Md., writes July 29th, 1914: "'John Baer' Tomatoes have proved to be as you represented them. I planted them along with other early varieties. 'John Baer' made a very much larger growth than the others. I found them to be the best cropping as well as early Tomatoes as I have ever grown. I find 'John Baer' Tomato will stand the drought better than other Tomatoes on account of their large foliage, which protects the fine fruit from the hot sun. 'John Baer' is a good cropper. I am picking two 'John Baer' to one Chalk's Jewel in spite of the fact that we have the dryest season on record. It is the worst growing season I have ever known in this section, and I have been here in the trucking business for forty years."

"John Baer" Is Earlier than Earliana, and Far Superior

Mr. William A. Bridle, Monmouth Co. N. J., Sept. 3d, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato is exceptionally early—earlier than 'Earliana,' and far superior to that variety. It ripens well up to the stem perfectly smooth, solid and of fine flavor, fine color and very prolific; altogether I would consider it the best early Tomato to date."

"John Baer" Earliest and Best Tomato in Texas

Mr. N. T. Wells, Caldwell Co., Texas, writes June 21st, 1914; "The 'John Baer' Tomatoes are the best Tomatoes I have ever raised. I planted them six weeks later than other early varieties and the 'John Baer' ripened first. They are well meated, fine flavor, perfect, round, ripen even up to the stem. They have done more than I expected them to do in spite of the weather conditions. We have had a continuous rain all year, had seven floods in six months. I don't want any other Tomato. Enclosed find my order for more 'John Baer' Tomato Seed."

h—"John Baer" Tomato is the most perfect ship-ping Tomato ever grown—24 fruit exactly fill a ix-carrier basket.

h—Each beautiful "John Baer" Tomato weighs bout 6½ ounces.

h—"John Baer" Tomato Seed was saved only by John Baer, the originator, who personally se-ected and picked every Tomato, from which he aved this seed, selecting only the most beauti-ul, perfect fruit of the Early Stem Set Clusters.

h—"John Baer" Tomato is the offspring of two narvelous Tomatoes—one great specialist having levoted ten years in selecting and improving one parent, and another expert devoted five years in selecting and improving the other parent. The 'John Baer" Tomato is, therefore, the result of Fifteen Generations of Improvement and Selection for earliness, quality, shape, fruit, color and shipping quality.

—As a Packing Tomato, "John Baer" is a mira-le. They all pack Fancy, no seconds, and all pack whole. Peelers can prepare three bushels 'John Baer" Tomatoes to one bushel of any other Tomato. Being such a tremendous yielder a bushel of "John Baer" Tomatoes can be gathered in one-third the time of any other Tomato. A large Baltimore Tomato Packer had all the "John Baer" Tomatoes he could secure packed separately, run-ning them through a special process for his fanciest trade and his own private use.

"John Baer" Tomato the Earliest of Six Different Kinds

James S. Casey, Middlesex Co., Mass., writes Sept. 11th, 1914: "'John Baer' Tomatoes have done fine. They were the earliest of six different kinds I grew this year and now, the middle of September, are still full of ripe and green fruit, in spite of the season being cold and wet. Shall grow more of them another year."

"John Baer" Proved Earlier, Larger, Stronger, More Prolific, and Stands Extremes of Weather Better Than Bonny Best

Mr. E. G. Bell, Grower of Specialties in Vegetables, Pike County, Pa., writes Oct. 23d, 1914: "I tested 'John Baer' Tomato with Bonny Best Tomato. I took 100 'John Baer' Tomato plants and planted them on an inside row of a patch of 8,000 Bonny Best, and the 'John Baer' proved earlier, larger, stronger grower, more prolific, and will stand extremes of weather better than any other Tomato I have ever grown or seen. 'John Baer' Tomato is a tremendous cropper of large, smooth, solid Tomatoes of good quality."

"John Baer"—3 Weeks Ahead of Any Other Tomato

Mr. R. T. Scott, Nottoway Co., Va., Aug. 24th, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomatoes were ready for market three weeks before any other Tomato in our locality. I have been picking fine, large Tomatoes off of them for over two months. I had a very successful crop."

"John Baer" Tomatoes Pay Him More Than $1.00 per Plant

Mr. N. S. Britt, Hancock Co., Ga., writes July 27th, 1914: "I can't say too many good things about 'John Baer' Tomato. I have a patch I planted very early, from which I have already realized $1.00 per plant, besides furnishing all that we needed for my twenty-eight room hotel, and these same plants are still bearing. My main crop of 'John Baer' Tomatoes are just beginning to bear and they promise well."

"John Baer" All Smooth and Fine—Chalk's Jewel Were No Good At All

Mr. Peter J. Losson, Floyd Co., Ind., Aug. 16th, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato is the smoothest and best all-round Tomato I have found in my experience of twenty years in Tomato growing. I have had the Chalk's Early Jewel as my best early Tomato for eight years. I planted half 'John Baer' and half Chalk's Jewel this year. We had a bad Spring; first too cold, then extremely hot, then long drouth. The Chalk's Jewel were no good at all, but 'John Baer' were all smooth and fine all the way through."

Never Saw Such a Wonderful Grower or Prolific Fruiter as "John Baer" Tomato

L. L. Adsit, Greene Co., Ohio, writes Sept. 25th, 1914: "Last Spring I bought of you some 'John Baer' Tomato seed, planted it carefully and gave it special attention, staked each plant, kept the suckers off of them. I treated the 'John Baer' as I do all my early sorts for early market. I have made a hobby of Tomatoes for twelve years, and have tried all sorts in almost every way of growing them. Yet I was not prepared for the great surprise I had in 'John Baer.' To say I was pleased was putting it mild. I never saw such a wonderful grower or prolific fruiter in my life. As to quality, it was simply fine. Beat all other sorts I ever tried, and I have tested seventy sorts in one year."

Hurrah for "John Baer"—He That Laughs Last—Laughs Best

Mr. Edward Faidley, Sullivan Co., Tenn., Aug. 7th, 1914, writes: The 'John Baer' Tomatoes are the finest I ever had. I bought an ounce from you last Spring. Some other gardeners hooted at me paying $4.00 an ounce for them. Now I am selling Tomatoes at fancy prices, while others are selling at any old price they can get. I have always found Bolgiano's seed A No. 1."

"John Baer" Very Good Tomato for Vermont

George H. Mass, Windsor Co., Vt., Sept. 3d, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato is quite early. We find it a very good Tomato for this climate. It is of good size, smooth, round fruit and a good yielder."

"John Baer" Three Weeks Earlier and Far Superior

Mr. William Peterson, Asotin Co., Wash., Aug. 13th, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomatoes are far superior to two other well-known early varieties of Tomatoes. The 'John Baer' picked three weeks earlier and are far superior to the other two varieties in size, color and productiveness. Although we are having a long, hot, dry season, the 'John Baer' plants are holding up in fine shape."

Weather Tremendously Hot—Without Rain for 2 Months—"John Baer" Produced Nice, Smooth Plump Fruit in Kentucky

Mr. Oscar Howe, Hancock Co., Ky., Aug. 6th, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomatoes turned out all I expected. It is a nice, smooth, plump Tomato. It has been tremendously hot, without rain, for the past two months, so the weather conditions have been against us, and yet we had fine Tomatoes."

"John Baer" the Best Tomato in Kansas

Mr. H. W. Drake, Atchison, Kansas, Aug. 17th, 1914, writes: "'The John Baer' Tomato was the earliest Tomato for its size of the five varieties I raised. It was much the best of all Tomatoes I have ever raised. 'John Baer' is early, large, smooth, good flavor, a good slicer, and a perfect canning Tomato. It is the best Tomato I know."

"JOHN BAER" TOMATO
The Earliest and Best Tomato on Earth

A Week to Ten Days Earlier Than Livingston's Globe

Mr. H. E. Ruckert, Sec.-Treas. Terrell Land and Development Company, Florida, writes, May 22d, 1914: "After careful and exhaustive tests, 'John Baer' Tomatoes, planted on hammock land, rich soil, heavily fertilized, produced the best results of all. Produced a heavy vine, full of fruit and matured a week to ten days earlier than Livingston's Globe, planted at the same time under like conditions. The soil is naturally moist and fruit was only damaged slightly by the drought."

Never Tasted Such Nice Tomatoes as "John Baer"

Mr. G. P. Butler, Jr., Santa Cruz, Calif., Aug. 25th, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato is all you claim for it. It is certainly a good one. All my customers say they have never tasted such nice Tomatoes before. I shall plant the same Tomato next year."

"John Baer" Best Tomato Ever Grown in Colorado

The Colorado State Agricultural College, E. P. Sandsten, Horticulturist, Aug. 31st, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato has shown to be the best Tomato we have ever grown. Not only is it as early as any Tomato we have tried, but the fruit is more uniform and the size and ripeness more uniform. 'John Baer' is undoubtedly an excellent Tomato and one we shall grow again, especially for forcing, as I believe it will prove a success. For outside culture it has certainly proven a great Tomato."

"John Baer" Tomato Wins in Competition with Comet

Herman Brownschweig, Marlboro, Mass., writes Sept. 20th, 1914: "I bought some of your 'John Baer' Tomato last Winter and I must say it is far superior to any other Tomato. I grew 'John Baer' Tomato under glass and it produced more and better fruit than either the Comet or Dwarf Stone."

Earlier Than Earliana in Missouri

University of Missouri, Columbia, Oct. 23d, 1914: "'John Baer' Tomato ripened earlier than the Earliana with us this year. It has a much larger plant and bears more fruit and continues to bear much longer than Dwarf Champion. The quality of 'John Baer' Tomato is high for so early a variety. I regard it as slightly superior to Earliana in flavor. I personally regard 'John Baer' Tomatoes as one of the best early Tomatoes we have ever grown."

"John Baer" Tomatoes Never Crack

Mr. Fred H. Ruf, Hillsboro Co., N. H., Sept. 3d, 1914, writes: "'John Baer' Tomato was by far the best of the three new Tomatoes I tried this year, and much superior to my own variety. It ripens earlier and quicker than any. The fruits are round, perfectly smooth and never crack. Cracking was a serious trouble I had with all the other varieties. I shall grow no other Tomato but 'John Baer' next year."

Thirty-Third annual meeting, San Francisco, Calif., June 1915.

W. ATLEE BURPEE, Sr., and Junior, Philadelphia, Pa., and H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia., were inspecting banana fields at Bocas, Panama, January 26.

ONION SET prices at Chicago are generally weaker both with growers, who carry their own product, and jobbers. Stocks have wintered well, the shrinkage being three pounds per bushel below normal.

VISITED CHICAGO: Mrs. M. W. Johansen, of the Victor-Johansen Seed Co., Los Angeles, Calif.; H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City. Ia.; J. L. Schilder, of Schilder Bros., Chillicothe, O.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade February 10 were as follows: Timothy, $6.00 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.—A. H. Goodwin attended the funeral of the late Jesse E. Northrup, at Minneapolis, February 6.

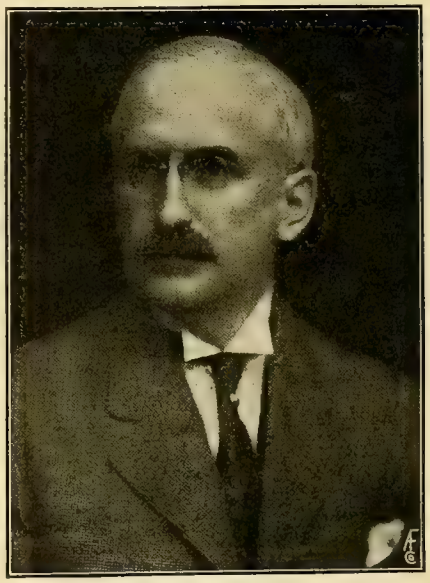
DEALERS and planters of all imported bulbs who are figuring on the same prices as last year will do well to consider ocean freight rates on such heavy items as Dutch bulbs. Double or treble freight rates may well be anticipated again. Lily exporters of Japanese cargoes via Suez lost heavily this year by internment of carriers.

THE seedsmen represented at the annual convention of t e American Canners' Association at New York this week include the Leonard Seed Co.. Chicago; the Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y.; D. M. Ferry & Co., Detroit, Mich.; S. D. Woodruff & Son, Orange, Conn.; J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.; the Everett B. Clark Seed Co., Milford, Conn., and N. B. Keeney & Son, Le Roy, N. Y.

NEW YORK.—At Vaughan's Seed Store, February 6, we noted great activity in sending out catalogues. John R. Walsh, who has been bookkeeper at this store for nearly seven years, has resigned to accept a position in San Francisco. He is succeeded by R. C. Blair.—C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., returned February 6 from his western trip. A. Kakuda, of the same firm, is still in San Francisco assisting in the arrangement of his company's exhibit.—Roman J. Irwin is now well settled in his new offices at 108 West Twenty-eighth street.—Weeber & Don have recently been featuring agricultural and horticultural books in their show windows.—Harry A. Bunyard has established temporary quarters on his own account at Traendly & Schenck's, 131 West Twenty-eighth street.—Peter Henderson & Co., in a recent newspaper advertisement, advise readers to reduce the cost of living by stating that "half of the living expenses, during many months of the year, are for vegetables which could easily be grown in their own gardens."

Market for American Seeds in India.

Consul James O. Laing writes from Karachi, India, December 14, to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, as follows: "An opening exists in India for garden and vegetable seeds, a large part of the supply having been cut off by the war. The seasons are the early spring and October, but there is a fair demand for garden seed in many places throughout the year. A considerable shortage is being felt in western India, and seed is being obtained from the government gardens at Lucknow (flowers) and Saharanpur (vegetables). American firms who desire to enter the Indian market should address these gardens. Representatives of British seed houses are expected in India in January to look after the spring trade. It is thought that they will offer very low prices to get a foothold in the market. Poona, near Bombay, is one of the chief garden centers of India, and Calcutta and Madras use considerable quantities of seed, but there is not much demand for garden seeds in Karachi." [The name of a Karachi firm that might be interested in garden seeds may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce or its branch offices.]



The Late Jesse E. Northrup.
See Obituary, Page 167.

Consul Henry D. Baker writes from Bombay, India, December 21, to the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, as follows: "There are two distinct seasons in India for the growth of flowers and vegetables peculiar to each—the rainy season and the cold season. The seeds for the rainy season are sown in June, and those for the cold weather in October. Generally the supply from Europe for both these seasons is obtained in one lot in April or May where the climatic conditions—such as those at Poona, Bangalore, and places in Upper India—allow of seeds for the cold season being kept without deterioration for sowing in October. In Bombay the hot and moist weather in the rainy season soon affects the seeds, and they lose their germinating power to a great extent. Hence the supply in Bombay has to be obtained in two lots, one in May for the rainy season and the other in October for the cold season." [The names of Bombay seed firms may be obtained from the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce or its branch offices.]

The Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce is located at Washington, D. C., with branch offices at New York, Room 409, United States Custom House; Boston, 752 Oliver building; Chicago, 629 Federal building; St. Louis, 402 Third National Bank building; Atlanta, 521 Post Office building; New Orleans, 1020 Hibernia Bank building; San Francisco, 310 United States Custom House; Seattle, 922 Alaska building.

Giganteum Importers and Growers.

Combinations of importing jobbers of Japan giganteum lily bulbs with large forcing growers of these are reported as being made in many large cities. The jobber takes out first an approximate first cost of say three cents each for the bulbs. The grower plants and cares for the stock and the income from sales is divided on a "fifty-fifty" basis. This may work out all right for these two, but how about the 15 or 20 smaller growers around each town who have to meet such competition, having paid around five cents each to the same jobber for the bulbs they are using? Some disastrous results of the above deals have been seen in the low prices of cut lily flowers in parts of the middle west the past season. One Japanese firm is said to have consigned 1,000 cases to America the past autumn. If so, the American dealer who billed them out on a partnership 3-cent basis doubtless took a fair commission and had his further chances free. A revision of these plans seems necessary to put the lily growing business on a fair and sane business basis.

THE John Baer tomato is attracting considerable attention as an early and productive variety.

NASHVILLE, TENN.—Louis Haury, Jr., is building eight houses, 20x100 feet and one house 10x100 feet for vegetables; Foley construction materials.

THE standard barrel of the United States should contain 7,056 cubic inches, with 28½ inch staves and 17⅛-inch heads, head material not thicker than 2-5 of an inch.

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 9.—Mushrooms, 60 to 65 cents per pound; lettuce, 10 cents to 12½ cents per box; radishes, 12½ cents to 30 cents per dozen bunches; asparagus, $2.00 per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 10 cents to 20 cents; cucumbers, $1.25 to $2.00.

New York, February 9.—Cucumbers, $1.50 to $2.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.25 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 15 cents to 25 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $3.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.25 to $2.00.

Angle Worms in Lettuce Beds.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Is there any way to destroy angle worms in lettuce beds on benches without damaging growing lettuce?

A SUBSCRIBER.

Tennessee.

Lime in some form is the accepted remedy for angle worms. Where lettuce is young and there is room to work between the plants, it would be best to apply either hydrate or air-slaked lime between the rows and then give a good watering. If lettuce is too large, lime water can be applied. In either case no injury should result to the crop. Lettuce is very often benefited by lime; we use lime constantly as a tonic for lettuce. Its only detriment can be said to be its caustic effect upon humus, liberating the nitrogen. Therefore, if a soil is not full of humus lime should be followed by an application of old manure to guard against an impoverishment of the soil. "Lime, and lime and no manure, will make both farm and farmer poor," is an old proverb. If beds are spaded up, and worms are a pest, they can be immediately destroyed by a very small application of lime. Air slaked lime can be made in a few days by exposing common builders' lime to the air in a greenhouse long enough to pulverize the lime. It is then ready for use. Since we can now obtain hydrated lime in convenient paper sacks at a nominal price, in any quantity and always ready for use, we have abandoned builders' lime entirely. Angle worms are a benefit to some soils if they are not too numerous, as they help to aerate the soil, and their numerous holes carry the surface water down to lower depths.

MARKETMAN.

Providence, R. I.

TRADE CONTINUES QUIET.

Everyone is getting ready for the St. Valentine day trade this year, but on account of the season being unusually quiet, things are not being shown on as large a scale as usual. Several of the florists are showing heart-shaped boxes for violets, of which there will be a good supply. Violets are good and should sell well. Sweet pea corsages will be shown and are excellent. All stock is fine. Carnations never were better, especially the new Matchless, which are perfect. Roses are good. Marguerites are being shown now and are excellent for corsages. Daffodils and Paper Whites are fine, and giganteum lilies are of first quality. Business is very quiet and very little doing in any line. Floral work comes in flurries.

NOTES.

W. Cohen, of Smith the Florist's staff, has left to take a position elsewhere.

The florists' club banquet and entertainment will be held February 22.

Edgar Nock of Wheeler avenue is cutting first quality orchids.

H. A. T.

Pittsburgh.

STOCK SHORT BUT BUSINESS POOR.

A grip of real cold weather seized Pittsburgh February 5 and has remained with us ever since, consequently we are safe in saying that the market is in a very tight fix, as the lack of sunshine and warmth have cut the supply down to a minimum. As the lack of sunshine will not bring out the color on the shorter grades of roses, they must all be pinched back to get a flower with a distinguishable pink or red. This results, of course, in there being an oversupply on the longer grades of roses, with very few of the medium grades of stock to offer. American Beauty roses are almost completely off crop, and are bringing very high prices for what few can be had of them. Carnations, sweet peas, lilies and Paper White narcissi are also quite scarce. There are plenty of daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, lilac, violets and lily of the valley. The sale on lily of the valley seems to have dropped off altogether, and quantities of this stock are thrown away every day, although the quality is as good as can be expected. But the general complaint from everybody, we might admit, is that business is very poor, but probably no worse than that of any other nearby cities, whose reports are not much more encouraging. However, we console ourselves when we think that it must get better some time soon, and the best and only thing to do is to "grin and bear it."

NOTES.

The trade around the market and wholesale districts were quite surprised recently to learn of the approaching marriage of Mrs. Annie Garrity, who has conducted a retail flower store in Pittsburgh market for a number of years. The wedding is to take place the coming week, and a new residence on Market street is being prepared.

Peter Hopman, of New Galilee, Pa., was a visitor in town Monday. He reports that his crops of roses and carnations will be on strong and steadily from now on. He also says that Wm. Lauch, whom he succeeded in the business, is quietly enjoying life at home with a new Mitchell automobile.

Earle Mann, of the E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., stopped off here on his way home from the Buffalo convention, and took great pride in showing the city trade their new roses, "Hoosier Beauty" and "Ophelia."

Ray Daschbach has a novel display at his Wood street store, featuring a woodland scene with a large number of live canaries.

The A. W. Smith Co. have added a new Commerce truck to their fleet of delivery vehicles.

Visitors: J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.

Massachusetts Horticultural Society.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society held its midwinter exhibition at Horticultural hall, February 6-7. The keen competition in nearly every class made the show one of the best seen here for some time. The Begonia de Lorraine exhibits were far above average and some very fine specimens were on display. Freesias also made a very interesting exhibit. The class for Primula malacoides brought out some very fine plants, the white variety being especially good, and much interest was shown in this exhibit as it is practically a new thing. The keenest competition in the whole exhibition was brought out by the big display of carnations. The quality of flowers was so good that it made judging rather difficult. A. Rogers' vase of Alice Coombes showed up very fine, and was much admired both from the spectators' and growers' points of view. Among the successful contestants in the classes of plants and flowers who were awarded prizes and gratuities were the following: W. W. Edgar Co., Wayerley, Mass.; S. J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; A. A. Pembroke, Beverly, Mass.; J. A. Nelson, Framingham, Mass.; Strouts', Biddeford, Me.; Patten & Co., Tewksbury, Mass. A large number of private gardeners were represented by exhibits in flowers, fruits and vegetables, all of excellent quality.

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala., President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Fortieth annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 23-25, 1915.

VISITED CHICAGO: Arthur H. Bobbink, of Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.

BALLINGER, TEX.—O. J. Hinds has bought the W. W. Allen fruit farm, located near Ballinger, for a consideration of $10,000. Nothing but fruit will be raised on the farm this year, it has been announced.

WHEN in need of stock or supplies of any kind in a hurry it will be a great advantage to have a copy of the latest edition of our Trade Directory at hand for names and addresses. The price of the latest (1914) edition is $3 per copy, postpaid.

STOCKTON, CALIF.—George Weatherby, horticultural commissioner of Humboldt county, reports very heavy shipments of fruit trees into the county. The new planting will be the largest in any one season, as many new orchards are being set out. Apples are the favorite fruit.

COLLEGE STATION, TEX.—Designed especially with the idea of improving general nut culture in Texas, I. E. Cowart, of the department of horticulture of the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas, has made available a correspondence course in nut culture, which will be given through the department of correspondence courses of the college.

Remedies for "Damping Off."

Commercial sulphuric acid has been found by the United States department of agriculture to be an effective remedy for the loss of pine and spruce seedlings from "damping off." It is quite common for the soft tissues of these young seedlings to decay so rapidly soon after sprouting that they disappear sometimes before the nurseryman knows that there is anything the matter with them. So common indeed is loss from this source that many nurserymen import their seedling stock from Europe. This, however, is not only troublesome, but dangerous. The white pine blister rust has already been introduced into this country in this way and continued importations of seedlings are certain to result in the establishment in the United States of other foreign pests. For this reason the department attaches much importance to the recent investigations of possible disinfecting agents which will rid the soil of the parasitic fungi which cause "damping off." Of these agents the most satisfactory for commercial use in the majority of cases has been found to be sulphuric acid. Treatment with this acid not only reduces losses from "damping off" but increases germination.

The number of seedlings in treated beds may be from 1¼ to 10 or even 20 times as great as in untreated beds, depending on how serious the disease is in the untreated beds. At most nurseries moreover, the treatment also decreases the number of weeds and causes the pines to make a better growth during their first season. At one nursery, jackpine seedlings have grown three times as high in acid-treated beds as in untreated beds. The treatment is not expensive, for commercial sulphuric acid can be purchased in quantity at very low rates. At one nursery where careful accounts were kept it was found that the entire cost of the treatment, including labor, materials, and extra waterings, was less than $5 per thousand square feet of bed. On the other hand, the saving in the cost of weeding alone, which the treatment made possible, amounted to $5.30 per thousand square feet.

The sulphuric acid is dissolved in water and applied to the beds with a paraffin-coated sprinkler just after the seed is sown and covered. From ⅛ to ⅜ of a fluid ounce of acid should be used per square foot of bed, dissolved in enough water to make 1½ or 2 pints of solution. At some nurseries it is also necessary to water the beds once or twice daily during the germination period to prevent chemical injury to the seedlings. Individual conditions, however, must determine for each nursery whether or not this frequent watering is necessary and exactly how much acid should be used.

Sulphuric acid is now in regular use on the seed beds at nurseries in four western states, Nebraska, Kansas, Colorado and New Mexico. Considerable quantities of carbonates however are contained in some soils in these states their presence being indicated by vigorous effervescence or bubbling when a strong solution of acid is applied. Where this is the case, sulphuric acid is not likely to be effective. In one nursery in Kansas zinc chloride and copper sulphate have been found satisfactory substitutes when used in the same way as sulphuric acid. For zinc chloride ½ ounce avoirdupois is used per square foot; and for copper sulphate ⅜ of an ounce or less. The chloride is less apt to injure seedlings, but is more expensive than the copper sulphate. Despite its greater cost, however, it is possible that the zinc chloride may be preferred both to sulphuric acid and to copper sulphate even on soils which do not contain carbonate.

In some northern nurseries where soil disinfection has not been resorted to, fall sowing has been found to control "damping off" fairly well. At all nurseries where the soil remains frozen during the winter, it is worth while to test sowing just before the soil freezes. Excessive moisture should be avoided in unsterilized seed beds.

Nurserymen who wish to test these remedies should write to the United States department of agriculture for specific advice adapted to their particular localities.

Albany, N. Y.

At the meeting of the New York State Federation of Floral Clubs held at Ithaca the Albany Florists' Club was represented by Fred Henkes, formerly president of the organization, and Edward P. Tracey. The delegates were named at the February meeting held in the rooms of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange. F. A. Danker made a report on a visit to Ledyard Cogswell, Jr., treasurer of the Albany Institute, relative to holding a show in the Institute's building in November. Mr. Cogswell said the trustees thought well of the idea and suggested that the club arrange for a date as soon as possible, as the use of the hall might be sought by other attractions. The report led to a lengthy discussion in which the majority of the members expressed their views in interesting ways. The subject was finally left to a committee made up of F. A. Danker, Edward F. Meany, Edward P. Tracey, Fred Henkes. and Louis H. Schaefer, who will report at the March meeting in regard to date, the amount of space available and other details. A special meeting for the growers and retailers and the club members interested in the show was announced for Thursday evening, February 18, at the Albany Cut Flower Exchange. This meeting will settle some details as to the exhibits.

On motion of Fred A. Danker the club resolved to assist, so far as possible, employers in search of help and men in the trade in search of jobs. Names are to be given to the secretary, who will place them in the hands of Thomas F. Tracey, manager of the Albany Cut Flower Exchange, which will act as a kind of clearing house for labor. Two names of men wanting positions were handed in after the meeting. Joseph Traudt, Canajoharie, N. Y., florist, and two others were voted into membership.

Mrs. C. W. Ward

As a Bread and Butter Variety

What Mr. Fritz Bahr, the famous writer of "The Weeks Work" in the Florist Exchange of January 9th, 1915, says about this variety:

"With a good many of the retail growers, throughout the Middle West in particular, the great merits of Carnation Mrs. C. W. Ward have just been recognized and appreciated. It is one of the best of its color that we have today. Every retail grower should provide room for at least a few, and fairly well grown stock will sell at a higher price than any of the standard sorts on a glutted market."

We have 40,000 Cuttings of this variety ready.

$2.50 per 100; $20.00 per 1000.

The New French Hydrangeas

For Spring Sales and Memorial Day

Our stock is in prime condition, retarded dormant plants from 6-inch pots, in fine shape to flower for Spring Sales or for Memorial Day; any of the varieties described below at $30.00 per 100.

Avalanche. A splendid large white with a well established reputation; an easy variety to force.
Bouquet Rose. Large trusses of rosy amber turning to bright pink; a favorite with all growers.
Dentelle. Entirely distinct, deeply fringed flower of a creamy white color.
E. G. Hill. Trusses of immense size, color a most pleasing shade of pink which does not fade, growth vigorous, foliage of a pea green color, large and attractive.
General de Vibraye. A favorite wherever seen; very large heads of bright rose colored flowers, a splendid early forcing variety.
La Lorraine. Very large flowers, pale rose, turning to bright pink; has become a general favorite.
Mme. A. Riverain. Superb bright rose color; very vigorous and floriferous.
Mme. E. Mouillere. Probably the most popular white variety on the market today, an early easy variety to force.
Mme. Maurice Hamar. A delicate fresh-rose color, a vigorous grower, the individual flowers as well as the trusses being very large.
Mlle. Agnes Barillet. A splendid white; flowers large and very freely produced.
Mousseline. A beautiful mauve-rose with cream-colored center; the flower heads are large and held erect; a fine acquisition.
Mont Rose. Immense panicles of clear-flesh rose, entirely distinct, one of the best very early flowering varieties.
Ronsard. Flowers and trusses very large, of a beautiful rose-tint.
Souvenir de Mme. E. Chautard. One of the very best, of splendid erect habit, very robust, medium sized heads, of bright rose-colored flowers; one of the very best of the Bouquet Rose type.
Senateur Henri David. Another splendid rose-colored variety, with red reflections; flowers produced in immense large heads; on the style of La Lorraine, but an earlier bloomer.
Vieux Chateau. Very large pure white becoming suffused with delicate rosy carmine as they mature.
Hydrangea Otaksa. Dormant plants, 6-inch pots, $25.00 per 100; 10-inch tubs, $1.00 each; 12-inch tubs, $2.50 each.

We Offer For Immediate Delivery

Good, strong, well-established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly

Valuable New Roses

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, and Prince E. C. D'Arenberg.

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly, and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA. No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer, and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively. Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY. This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red, and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer, and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG. This variety might well have been termed Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color, the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly, and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

We will be glad to quote on application prices on all the newer and standard varieties—strong grafted plants ready in March.

F. R. PIERSON, Tarrytown, New York

OPHELIA, ONE OF THE FEW THAT HAS PROVEN ITS WORTH

We have grown this magnificent rose the past season, with most gratifying results. As a free and vigorous grower and great producer it has no equal. It sets bud freely in the short days of winter, and is now coming in with a heavy midwinter crop, doing equally well on grafts or own roots.

MRS. GEORGE SHAWYER is at present more favorably thought of than ever, and we intend to again plant it heavily this season. As a money getter, our experience has proven its superiority over all sorts, and having grown extensively on own roots and grafts, we have no hesitancy in stating that like Sunburst, it does better on own roots.

We will have a splendid lot of both varieties, (grafts and own root), ready for shipment about the middle of March, together with a choice lot of Sunburst, Ward, Prince d' Arenberg, White and Pink Killarney, cutting taken from sand the latter part of December. STOCK CLEANS UP WELL.

There is nothing new or very important in the trade to be reported this week. Sales have held their own, and the supply of flowers has been about equal to the demand. and each day has seen a very fair clean up. The quality of flowers has been very good. Roses, while not so abundant, are excellent in size, shape, and color, and carnations are coming in well. There is an unusually fine supply of orchids in the market by both the Joy Floral Co. and McIntyre Bros., and the sale has been good. Violets are blooming nicely. and most of the growers have had sweet peas all through the season; also lily of the valley. Pot plants are doing well, and are in constant demand; cyclamen in all its variations, azaleas, Primulas obconica, and now the bulbous stock is just beginning to come in, and the demand is very good. The early arrival of lent this year will make very little difference in the trade, as the season is not very generally observed in this city. All stock grown for the Easter trade is in fine shape and guarantees a good and abundant stock for that season.

Geny Bros. have had sweet peas all the season, but are now making a run on the butterfly variety, which is very popular for almost any and all purposes.

Nassau County Horticultural Society.

The ninth annual dinner of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held at the Oriental hotel, Glen Cove, Monday evening, January 25. Seventy-five members and guests were present and did justice to an ample repast. President Ernest Westlake delivered a short address of welcome and introduced as toastmaster for the evening, J. Austin Shaw, who conducted the proceedings in his usual able manner. Gentlemen responding to the toasts of the evening were, Charles H. Totty, for the Society of American Florists; J. W. Everitt, National Association of Gardeners; Frank Traendly, American Rose Society; R. F. Bowne and W. R. Kinnear, for the village of Glen Cove; William Duckham, Morris County, N. J. Horticultural Society; William Turner, Bernardsville Horticultural Society; E. W. Neubrand. W. Scott and J. W. Smith, Tarrytown Horticultural Society; J. Duthie and J. Robinson, Oyster Bay Horticultural Society.

BUSINESS CONTINUES TO IMPROVE.

Persistent cloudy weather has retarded carnations and brought about the greatest scarcity experienced for a long period. Demands upon local growers are exceeding the supply. Roses are fairly plentiful, but only of fair quality, generally speaking, owing to lack of sunshine. Business continues to improve. Florists are looking forward to a good St. Valentine day's trade, a feature which has been developing rapidly during the past few years. Some very handsome boxes are on display in show windows. Liberal consignments of violets are being received from the east. St. Valentine's day will be exploited by page advertisements in the daily newspapers, in which a number of the leading florists co-operate.

NOTES.

The new horticulture and forestry building at Ohio State University was dedicated with appropriate ceremonies. February 5. It is 60 feet wide by 250 feet long, fireproof, and contains about an acre of floor space. Two greenhouses are being constructed in connection with it which will have an area of 8,000 square feet of glass. This is the beginning of a range of glass houses which, when completed, will cover an acre of space.

The Block-Crane Floral Company, which handles commercially the flowers grown on the Ohio State University grounds here, had an attractive booth at the students' grain show, which was a feature of "farmers' week" at the university, February 1-5. A bride's muff, composed largely of roses and lily of the valley, was the chief attraction.

The flower and retail seed department of the Livingston Seed Company is being improved by the redecoration of walls and ceiling and the addition of a large new refrigerator for the display of cut flowers. New counters will also be added.

A. W. Livingston, of the Livingston Seed Company, is attending the national canners' convention in New York.

TRADE FULLY UP TO EXPECTATIONS.

Business the past week has been exceedingly good in all lines, but especially in funeral work, owing to the deaths of a number of prominent persons. This bright weather is substantially increasing the number of flowers produced, and is improving their quality as well. The flower-buying proclivity has increased, owing to the crisp, snappy atmosphere. Spring flowers are in the market in great profusion, and are exceedingly popular for corsages, table decorations and for gifts. Easter lilies and callas are in great demand for funeral work, and the foliage wreaths combined with flowers, generally roses or orchids, are used freely. The quality of roses is very good, although they could be more plentiful. Carnations are in good supply and of fine quality. Violets meet with a ready sale and are quite plentiful. Green goods are sufficient to meet the demand.

NOTES.

The representatives of the Gaelic League of Ireland have been the recipients of a great many social favors during their stay in this city, the first week of February. The decorations for a reception given in their honor were extensive and elaborate, and were executed by the Flick Floral Co. Several cases of southern smilax and hundreds of pink and white Killarney roses were used, while ferns and palms were arranged in great numbers for a background.

Arthur Zirkman, representing M. Rice and Co., Philadelphia, Pa., called on the trade last week. Mr. Zirkman had received word, just a few days before his visit here, of the death of his mother as a result of a surgical operation. The sympathy of all his friends in the florist trade is extended to Mr. Zirkman.

Miss Helen Patten, of the Patten Flower Shop, Toledo, Ohio, who was a visitor last week, reports business unusually good, considering the effect of the European war.

Visitor: T. T. Kairns, representing H. A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa.

SYSTEM

Get Out of That Hole

The Morehead System puts an end to that antiquated "boiler-in-a-pit" method of steam line drainage. With the Morehead, condensation is returned to the boilers—placed above ground—pure and HOT, at its original temperature. You are assured of perfect circulation—constant temperature—a saving of fuel, time, labor and heat. It is the ideal system in the greenhouse. Let us give you the complete facts free.

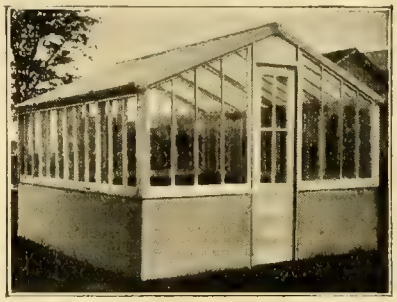
Two layers of glass instead of one



One small inexpensive greenhouse made of Sunlight Double Glass Sash.

Get our catalog

This book points the way to bigger profits in gardening. It gives the actual experience of growers all over the country—tells how they, with the aid of Sunlight Double Glass Sash grew bigger, stronger, earlier plants which yielded the big, early market prices.

This catalog is free. If Prof. Massey's booklet on the care and use of a hot-bed, cold frame or a small greenhouse is wanted, send 4c in stamps.

Early plants make the profitable garden

You cannot possibly have vegetables ready for the early prices or flower beds to bloom right unless you use hot-beds and cold frames for starting and expediting them.

Now is the time

Sunlight Double Glass Sash make the earliest and strongest plants at the least cost of labor and money. They are complete without mats or shutters. As they are never covered the plants get all the light and warmth that the sun affords and are secure against the cold night and day.

Expert gardeners and florists, men who know from experience, look upon the Sunlight Double Glass Sash as the standard of efficiency in gardening.

Immediate shipment is made and freights are equalized to the customer according to the distance. Ask about this when you write—and write today.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—A northerner who arrived February 4 writes, stating, "the temperature here is 76 degrees and I have at last been warmed up."

ASHTABULA, O.—Faust & Lockwood have moved their retail store from the Casts theater building to more spacious quarters at 153 Main street, which allows them to display the latest and more elaborate floral arrangements to much better advantage than their old location would permit. This firm is also considering the erection of two more greenhouses in addition to the five they now operate.

Greenhouse Construction

BY PROF. L. R. TAFT.

It tells the whole story about how to build and heat a greenhouse, be it large or small, and that, too, in a plain, easily understood, practical way. It has 210 pages and 118 illustrations. PRICE, $1.50.

Greenhouse Management

By the same author. Covers the subject completely. 382 pages. PRICE, $1.50.

"We Understand Our Business Thoroughly"

What They Say:

Jan. 20, 1915
Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,
L. Buckendorf,
Norfolk, Neb.

Paint Without Oil

Remarkable Discovery That Cuts Down the Cost of Paint Seventy-Five Per Cent.

A Free Trial Package is Mailed to Everyone Who Writes.

A. L. Rice, a prominent manufacturer of Adams, N. Y., has discovered a process of making a new kind of paint without the use of oil. He calls it Powdrpaint. It comes in the form of a dry powder and all that is required is cold water to make a paint weather proof, fire proof and as durable as oil paint. It adheres to any surface, wood, stone or brick, spreads and looks like oil paint and costs about one-fourth as much.

Write to Mr. A. L. Rice, Manuf'r., 271 North St., Adams, N. Y., and he will send you a free trial package, also color card and full information showing you how you can save a good many dollars. Write to-day.

SUGGESTIONS FOR PLANT GROWERS.

Violets.

With the approach of spring the violet plants grow rapidly and quantities of runners will spring from the old stools and propagation of the runners at this time will save much time and room later in the season when the spring stock is insistently demanding space, and much better plants are procurable from cuttings taken now than from divisions in May, when the days are often warm and the plants more or less exhausted. And if the young stock is procured now the old plants can be thrown out as soon as through blooming, securing available room at once. These runners or laterals root easily at this time in a propagating bench or can be taken off with a few small roots and either potted or placed in flats and will take but little room, and as early as possible placed in a cold frame. Treated in this manner splendid stock may be obtained for planting out early, either in the field or in the houses, and with good strong stock to start with much better results are sure to be attained than by being obliged to plant small, weak stock later in the year.

As the warm days approach the houses will need to be shaded, for the sun bleaches the flowers, and a watering of liquid manure will greatly assist in maintaining the size of the blooms and also keeping up the color.

Mignonette.

The grower will always find some plants in his beds of mignonette that produce exceptionally large spikes of bloom, the plants are more vigorous in foliage or the blooms of better form, and these spikes that show special characteristics should be selected and the seed saved, and in this way the grower can procure a strain which after two or three years' selection will be far ahead of any seed he can buy. This seed should, however, be saved before the bees and other insects are flying around and attracted to the houses, for they will cross-fertilize the flowers with undesirable strains. The seeds of mignonette do not ripen all at once, and as the pod remains open, the ripe seed falls out and is lost, so special preparation must be made to receive it. Select the spikes that are to be saved for seed and tie them to strong stakes and mark them. The flowers should then be cross-fertilized by rubbing a camel's hair brush up and down the flowers. This should be done every bright day so as to secure a thorough pollination. To catch and hold the seed take a piece of heavy brown paper and roll it into a cone shape, and after winding a piece of cotton around the stem and stake below the flowers, tie the small end of the cone-shaped paper around the cotton, the paper spreading upward so as to catch all the seeds that drop out of the seed pods. This can remain until all the seed has ripened and as the spike grows the cross-fertilization continues, but care should be taken that no water gets into the paper to wet the cotton, and the seed must be gathered before the days become so warm that insects and bees are in the houses.

Easter Lilies.

The one important crop to the plantsman at this time is the lilies for Easter, for they must be properly timed to be at their best on that date. Easter this year comes April 4 and most growers like to see buds on their plants six weeks before that time. If the buds are not showing, the temperature will have to be increased to 70° at night. This will do the plants no harm if they have good sunlight during the day, and are given all the ventilation possible, but the ventilators should not be opened unless the sun is shining and the thermometer at least at the same degree as the night temperature, and avoid all draughts possible, for the plants grown so warm are very tender. It is next to impossible to bring a lot of lilies in all together, so it is better to grow them so the slowest ones will be in on time, and move those that are more advanced into a cooler house and retard them, but this should not be done until the buds are nearly full grown. A lily retarded when the buds are forming is very difficult to start into active growth again, but after the first buds begin to turn white the plants can be moved into a house of 50° or lower and they come on slowly and will be of better quality than those grown warmer. The plants should be all tied to a neat stake as soon as the buds form, if not already done, for the buds add considerable weight to the top of the stem and they bend over very quickly. When the buds form, if the plants are pot bound, a watering of liquid manure will increase the size and substance of the flower. It will be a continual fight against aphis from this time on and fumigation or spraying with nicotine will have to be regularly and continually practiced to bring the plants into bloom in the best condition.

Hydrangeas.

The greatest demand for hydrangeas is in May and June and to have them in the best condition at that time the plants should be started before March 1. While they may be started later and forced harder, yet the plants so grown are not as sturdy and do not give so good satisfaction after they are placed on the porches. Start the plants in a cool house and if the wood has become dry in their winter quarters, frequent syringing will assist in softening it. When they begin to grow do not crowd them. Crowding and too much heat are the principal causes of the long, ungainly plants so often seen. If they are grown in a cool house, with plenty of room, the plants will be sturdy and short-jointed, covered with beautiful foliage and shapely, and are a great ornament, which surely cannot be said of the tall plants with small foliage and bare stems toward the base. When the plants begin to grow rapidly they will require plenty of water and during the warm, sunny days of spring, when the houses are hot, all the ventilation possible, and at this time watch carefully for red spider, which gather in great numbers on the young growths and blooms and quickly spoil them. If they appear, syringe heavily until they are overcome. Keep the plants staked and tied as soon as required.

Hail Screens for Greenhouses.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

I would like to secure information regarding the use of hail screens on greenhouses, particularly the proper size of mesh, distance the wire should be placed above the glass, and percentage of light that is shut off by the use of hail screens. W. A. P.

CONNERSVILLE, IND.—The Carnation Support Co. has increased its capital stock from $2,000 to $5,000. The officers elected for the ensuing year are Carl R. Houghton, president; Michael Ganley, vice-president; Joseph N. Wilkin. secretary and treasurer. The directors are Joseph E. Huston, Robert T. Huston and the three officers.

SCRANTON, P.—Members of the Scranton Florists' Club, which comprises all of the florists between Carbondale and Wilkes-Barre, at a meeting held February 8, perfected arrangements for the annual flower show which is to be held March 25-27. So successful was the exhibition given under the auspices of the club last year that it has been decided to have this year's show on a much larger scale.

The Gates Ajar.

This is an old time design that at one time had a great run. The dove on the top with the sprig of valley in its beak has a familiar look to many. As will be seen by the accompanying illustration this has been very elaborately gotten up, quantities of choice stock having been used. It is complete in every detail and worthy of the artist. K.

Business Building Salesmanship.

The address of Arthur F. Sheldon, president of the Sheldon School of Scientific Salesmanship, before the Philadelphia Florists' Club at its December meeting, will long be remembered by those fortunate enough to be present. Mr. Sheldon has a most pleasing personality, and his address, delivered in a conversational tone, was listened to from start to finish with rapt attention.

T. Mohan.
Of the Mohan Floral Co., Waco, Texas.

He gave as a motto for business, the golden rule; this principle carried out, together with a thorough knowledge of the business, was almost sure to secure success. In the flower industry, the grower, the middle man and the retailer, were interdependent; all must work together to insure success. Confidence is the keynote; without it, doubt would creep in, and doubt is fatal to success.

The salesman, to be successful, must have knowledge of his business, must be enthusiastic, must love his job and be loyal to his firm. Without knowledge he cannot succed—he would not know enough; if not enthusiastic he cannot enthuse others, he cannot present his case favorably. To get the attention of the customer, then the confidence, there must be no room left for doubt, for doubt kills. Working by deed and word, just enough and no more, marks the perfect salesman. Kindness and courteous treatment is a part of the service that wins and keeps customers. Quality and quantity, which means high grade goods in quantity for the price, and service, were business building corner-stones that made a sure foundation on which to erect the permanent structure.

Successful business men were sure to be educated—they knew how. Many men spent years in school or college, but never secured education. Others learned and became educated out of college, getting their knowledge in a practical way. They are known as self-made men.

Obedience to nature's laws, or copying nature, spelt success. Nature was always on time, never a second behind. This is the policy of the good business man—always on time. The greatest earthly power is man power; the greatest need of the age is to develop man power. The body is not the man, it is the house he lives in; the mind is the man, he expresses himself through the body. Nourish the thinker, develop it, give it mental manna and exercise it. Do things, and thus increase its efficiency.

He gave in detail examples of good salesmanship; how kind and courteous treatment and knowledge of the business interested the prospective customer, then won their confidence. There was no doubt in the salesman's mind he was going to make the sale, and did so. He did not use the negative phrase, "You don't want any of this do you?" but called attentions to something choice, just because he knew they would appreciate seeing it, and while at the time flattering the customer, sowed seed that might bring forth fruit later. Confidence he said was the basis of all permanent relationship; to get customers and then by fair dealing hold them. The wagging tongue of a satisfied customer was the very best ad.

Success is not a matter of luck; it is generally the result of the hard work and constant application that had gone before, much of which seemed at times to be for nought. It laid the way, however, for a preparedness that was much in evidence when opportunity knocked, and advantage was taken of a situation which had to be passed by others.

Some men are brighter than others and have more natural ability, but the salesman is not born a salesman. All can be improved and made as perfect as their abilities will allow, by application and study. Education and application would greatly benefit any one, efficiency depending on knowledge, enthusiasm, energy and love for one's chosen calling. K.

Washington's Birthday.

This is the least important of the holidays viewed from the florists' business standpoint, yet it is worth while exploiting, and will amply repay for any work put upon it. It is too bad that the great patriot is not remembered, except for the incident of the cherry tree—the tree and the ax. There are facsimiles of these all over the land, and the story is retold each year, losing nothing by the repetition. The florist takes these symbols, the ax and the cherries, and soon has them on display. The ax is tied with a red, white and blue ribbon and embellished with a few red carnations. These can be sold as they are, or placed on the outside of a box of cut flowers. Cherry tree boughs, full of wonderfully fine looking cherries (if they are stuffed with cotton), well clothed with foliage, are also tied outside the box of cut flowers. Several of these tied together, or better still, a small cherry tree, placed in a pot, with the addition of quite a lot of fruit and foliage makes a rather taking novelity. The day usually winds up with a number of dinners, at the tables of which these small trees make acceptable center-pieces. Red and white carnations are also popular, and with decorated axes at the plates as favors, and a liberal use of tricolored ribbons, there is no mistakening the meaning of the day. There should be a bust of the great man, which with the necessary flags, is made the center of an elaborate window decoration. Nicely arranged corsages of violets, gardenias, roses or red and white carnations, tied with red, white and blue ribbon will be sure to prove attractive and help along the sales.

It is well to have a good stock of growing ferns for this day, as many fern dishes are sent in for refilling about this time. Blooming plants can be sold, the addition of the hatchet giving the necessary distinctive feature. Small baskets of flowers, with tiny flags and diminutive cherry boughs, tied to the handles with narrow tricolor ribbon, are attractive and will be found salable. Take it, all in all, if very few of the especially designed articles sell, the display is a good advertisement, as is every attractively arranged window.

Moving Large Trees in Winter.

Many people are unwilling to wait for trees to grow to large size in these days of immediate results, and are willing to pay for them ready made, if of good height, habit and shape. There is as much diversity in trees as there is in white folks. The planter of small trees cannot tell how they will develop in later years, and if an avenue or parkway is to be planted, and look well in the time to come, uniformity is essential.

The writer has in mind a very fine park system in an eastern city, where all the elms used are of the English type, and it was always thought that trimming or pruning brought the uniformity always seen there. It was a revelation, therefore, some few years ago to find that for many years this city had bought all the trees, grafted annually by an English grower from one fine specimen tree. These were nursed along for years until needed in the park nursery, and then planted along newly created boulevards and streets. This is now being done in Illinois, perhaps for the first time, and the prominent planters buy the elms as fast as they can be grown. All are grafted on seedling elms, below the level of the ground, and in two years trees the size of a broom handle can be supplied, all warranted to grow alike in time to come, and be uniform in habit. It may be said in passing that to plant the English or Scotch types of elm in the middle west is a mistake; they grow for a few years, and when valuable specimens might be expected, decadence begins. There is no elm like the American variety, ready to hand, vigorous, hardy and having the added advantage of being at home.

When a tree attains the age of perhaps 20 years its contour can be easily seen and specimens can be selected that will match and make uniform lines in time to come. These can be moved in winter with surety of their living, and this is being done by many with a guarantee. It is often advised that the tree should be trenched round a year before, and good soil be placed around it to induce the formation of young fibrous roots. There could not be a greater fallacy and more losses will ensue from this treatment than when they are dug, frozen up sufficiently to hold the ball of soil, and then moved to the new location at once, putting good soil around about them, in a hole already made large enough to receive both. There is then only one operation, a major one, it is true, but not so severe a check as the digging up the second time, and the consequent injury to the young roots already made when these should be becoming established in the new soil of the new location.

As to the freezing, enough is sufficient. A maple can be easily killed, as we found to our sorrow one severe winter, when the frost went down through the ball of soil containing the tree. An elm, however, will stand more without injury, but does not enjoy it, so when a tree is frozen sufficiently to hold the soil at the roots, if it is not possible to move same at once, put plenty of snow over all, or lacking in this, as in some years, put on straw manure to hold it as it was until ready to move. All evergreens can be moved safely in this way, choosing a day when the branches are not frozen, without loss of many roots, but transportation for long distances is not advised, as the freight would be high; however, for moving from one place to another near by, it is the safest way. Only surface rooting trees can be moved, such as elm, maple, ash, or such as make no tap-roots. An oak is difficult unless nursery grown.

In sections where there is lots of snow, trees are easily loaded on sleds, and travel best this way; there is less liability to the tree being dumped in transit than when on wheels, as often happens when we have plenty of snow with no frost under it in the ground. This is the case now, and the moving of large specimens weighing 10 or more tons could not be accomplished when they have to be moved from the woods and across open fields. We had a hard experience last winter in moving a fine specimen elm, one that had been sought for two years. It rolled off the wagon five times and had to be reloaded. It took eight horses to draw it on wheels, and all the difficulties were due to the snow keeping the ground soft below.

MOVING LARGE TREES IN WINTER.

Photographs are herewith reproduced of a tree-sled made this past year to overcome all such troubles, and of the many trees moved not one has been tipped over, even though crossing soft ground from the woods to the traveled way. The runners are six inches wide, and four horses have been able to draw the largest loads without difficulty.

In digging trees for removal, it is only necessary to go to the depth of the roots, eighteen inches being usually enough. Then, when frozen enough, cover up to keep from more frost than is necessary, or it will be very hard to pull the tree over with blocks and tackle, and when pulled over, the surplus frozen soil will have to be cut off with axes before loading. This, as before said, will be fatal to a maple, and not good for an elm.

The Minneapolis Convention Garden.

On account of the large amount of annual planting material required to fill the garden, which, because of the requirements for bedding plants for other parks, we are not able to furnish from our own propagating plant, it seems advisable to change the layout of the garden to provide appropriate place for a larger number of perennials and other hardy plants which do not require replacing every year. The accompanying plan shows the proposed rearrangement of the grounds.

We cannot expect outside growers to furnish large quantities of plants every year to help fill this large garden, and we do not intend to ask them to do so. We are, however, not only willing, but anxious to have all growers who wish to do so, make use of these display grounds to introduce and show their novelties in large or small numbers. Exhibits sent us for that purpose will be given a conspicuous place in the garden among the class of plants to which they belong. They will be properly labeled, giving the exhibitor's full name and address. We simply ask that prospective exhibitors write to us before April 1 what they wish to have planted, so that we may reserve space for their exhibits, and that the plants be sent, freight or express prepaid, at the proper time of planting.

Our home people are taking a great interest in the garden right along, and there can be no question as to the advertising value of an exhibit at these well kept exhibition grounds. I therefore extend a hearty invitation to all growers and introducers of novelties and meritorious plants to make use of our garden. We will do our share to grow the plants as nearly to perfection as possible and to thus serve the interests of the exhibitors and public alike.

IOWA CITY, IA.—The new flower shop of A. G. Prince & Son at 26 South Clinton street was opened February 6. It is complete in every appointment.

MOORHEAD, MINN.—Plans and specifications have been submitted to the city council for a large greenhouse, by T. J. Berrigan. The city is negotiating for land.

Ixoras.

For a considerable part of the summer, and frequently till autumn is well advanced the ixoras form one of the brightest features among stove-flowering plants. In bygone days they were exceedingly popular for growing as large specimens, but they are now usually seen in the form of small plants. Given a regular stove temperature and a fairly moist atmosphere they are not difficult to cultivate, though they need a reasonable amount of care and attention. According to The Journal of Horticulture cuttings may be readily rooted from the half-ripened shoots, dibbled firmly into well-drained pots of sandy peat, passed through a sieve with a quarter-of-an-inch mesh. After being well watered they must be placed in a close propagating case in the stove, and, if possible, plunged into a gentle bottom heat. As soon as they are rooted they must be inured to the ordinary atmosphere of the stove, and when sufficiently advanced potted off singly. A suitable compost for this potting may be formed of two parts of peat to one part of good yellow loam and a liberal sprinkling of silver sand. In order to lay the foundation of a bushy specimen the young plants must be stopped two or three times during their earlier stages. For subsequent pottings the soil must be of a rougher nature, sound fibrous peat being very necessary. If the plants can be given a little bottom heat during their earlier stages so much the better. Over-potting must be guarded against, and in carrying out this operation the soil should be pressed down pretty firmly. The watering, too, must be carefully carried out. During the growing season, when the pots are well furnished with roots, an occasional dose of weak liquid manure with soot water will be beneficial. Ixoras are not particularly liable to insect pests, that is, if due precautions are taken. If the atmosphere is too dry thrips are liable to make rapid headway, but they can be kept down by a liberal use of the syringe. Scale and fly are also apt to attack the plants, but they may be kept in check by sponging and vaporizing. For mealy bug there is nothing so effectual as a drop of mythylated spirits applied to the insect with a small brush.

There are numbers of species, beside which many garden forms have been raised. A selection of the best would include: aurintiaca, orange red, compact habit; coccinea superba, a native of Java, bright orange; coccinea lutea, a distinct shade of soft yellow; Colei, pure white; Dixiana, of good free growth, flowers dark orange in color; Fraseri, salmon, tinged carmine; Javanica, of a pleasing shade of orange; Pilgrimi, flowers bright orange red, shaded with crimson; Prince of Orange, very bright orange, particularly fine; salicifolia, narrow, dark green leaves and deep orange-colored flowers; sanguinea, a very distinct variety, whose blossoms are of a deep crimson tint with a violet shade; Westi, very different from any of the others, and exceedingly pretty; the flowers, which open pale rose, deepen with age. A good hybrid is Williamsi, which bears a profusion of reddish salmon-colored flowers.

There yet remains one species which is so distinct and striking when in bloom as to merit a paragraph to itself. This is Ixora macrothyrsa, which, when first introduced from the South Sea Islands, was known as I. Duffi. It was discovered by Mr. Duff, of the Sydney Botanic Gardens, and first flowered in this country in 1878. This is a tall grower of upright, sparsely branching habit, with leaves on well-developed specimens nearly a foot in length. The deep reddish crimson flowers are borne in huge trusses, sometimes as much as eighteen inches across.

Garden a Part of Home.

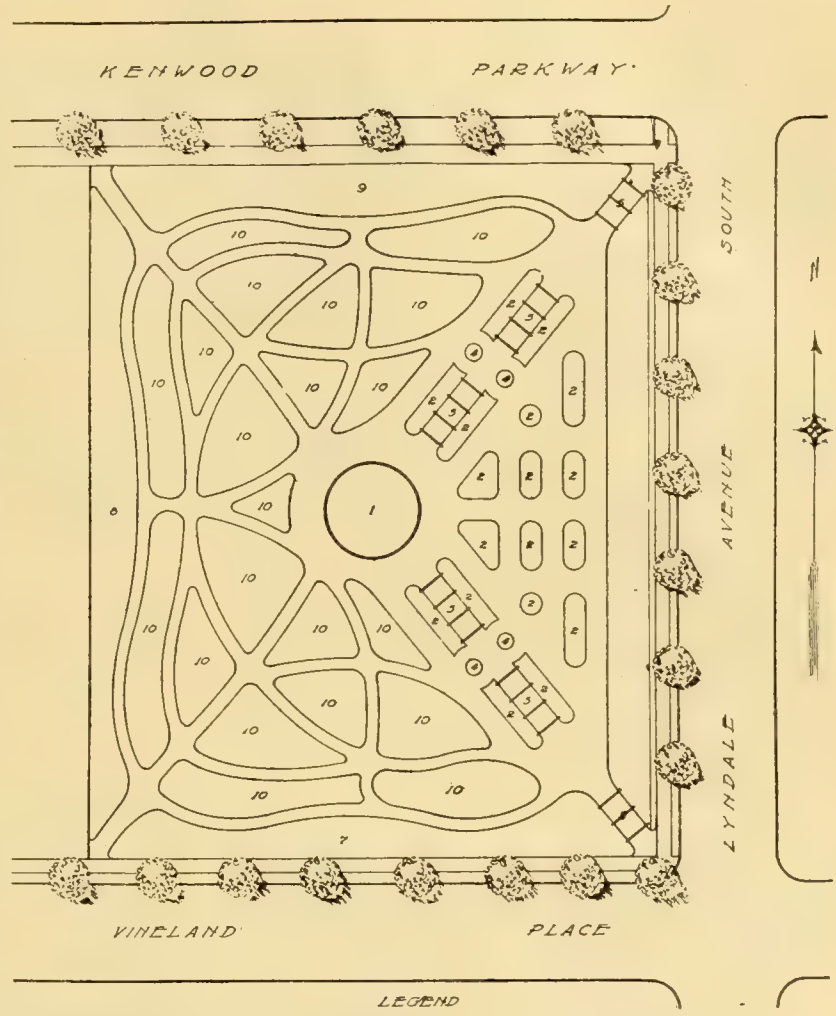
Methods which may be employed to make gardens attractive by means of suitable furnishings and planning were set forth by Professor Frank A. Waugh of the department of landscape gardening at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, in a recent lecture before the school of gardening at Horticultural hall. He urged the need for making the garden a part of the home instead of a display space largely for the benefit of the passersby. American gardens, he said, are largely unfornished, like an apartment house ready to rent and before the furnishings are in place.

"A garden may be considered from two different points of view," said Professor Waugh. "It may be an integral part of the home used and enjoyed like any other domestic unit, such as the library, the sitting room or the kitchen. On the other hand it may be regarded merely as an ornamental exterior. Unfortunately in this country the latter view has largely prevailed. The garden has been considered a mere embellishment, an external ornament. The idea of making the garden a part of the home—of living, playing, working, eating in it—is only beginning to find its way into the best society. Obviously the garden ought to be more generally put to use and less commonly left to the doubtful admiration of passersby.

"These different views of the purposes of a garden lead to very different methods of design and treatment. If a garden is to be part of the house it must first of all have privacy. We cannot live our family life in the garden if the spaces are left open to the observation of all the neighbors and of strangers passing in the street. Hedges and screens of trees and shrubbery are the most natural and often the most effective means of shutting in the garden and shutting out the world.

SOME GARDENS LIKE EMPTY FLATS.

"After a certain amount of privacy is secured the garden next needs some furnishings. An unfurnished garden is as dreary and hopeless as an unfurnished house. Nothing could be less domestic and inviting than an empty dwelling house; but put a rag carpet on the floor, two chairs and a table in the room, with a picture on the wall and curtains at the windows, and the place has all the physical equipment of a home. If there are sympathetic human beings to inhabit the place nothing more can be required.



MINNEAPOLIS CONVENTION GARDEN PROPOSED REARRANGEMENT.

"Now our American gardens are largely unfurnished. They have reached exactly the same stage as the apartment house when it is ready to rent. There are the hardwood floors, the plumbing and the paper on the wall; all the furnishings necessary for family life, for human comfort, for interest and entertainment are completely lacking. Our common talk about gardening completely ignores furnishings, concerning itself simply with trees, shrubs and flowers, which at best are hardly more than the pictures on the wall.

SUSPICIOUS OF PERGOLA ARCHITECTS.

"In modern garden magazines we read a great deal about pergolas. As I understand a pergola, it is an architectural figure primarily designed to connect an outlying architectural element with the main house. Its whole tendency is to carry domestic life farther into the garden. Of course we must allow that, as fashionable pergolas are designed, they do not always accomplish this end, but I am suspicious that the pergola has not always been fully understood by the architects who did the planning or the suburban dwellers who paid the bills. It is hard to tell the modern fashionable pergola in all cases from the old-fashioned arbor or summer house.

A TEMPLE, A PAVILION OR A GAZEBO.

"In some of the old gardens there are attractive temples. Now a temple is merely an architectural shelter which adds interest to the place, and which is called a temple largely by way of politeness. In order to make a temple of an ordinary garden shelter it was necessary to introduce a putative god or traditional goddess. Usually a small effigy of Mercury or a trivial bust of Venus would answer this purpose. A pavilion is simply another name for a garden shelter where the bust of Venus is lacking. Then there is the gazebo. This is a delicious name and worthy of introduction into the garden whether the thing itself cuts any figure or not. My own understanding is that gazebo is middle-period hog-Latin for an outlook. After all this is nothing much different either from the arbor, summer house, tea house, studio, music house, or other garden shelter.

"The creature comforts of life depend largely upon seats and tables.

If the garden is really to be inhabited, there must be places to sit. Perhaps the most necessary furnishings of all are seats. In this respect our American gardens are sadly unfurnished. Tables and seats ought to be furnished in plenty in every garden just as they are inside the house. They should be placed at the most effective points, that is, the points of best inlook and outlook.

SOME GARDENERS HAVE WATER ON BRAIN.

"Several styles of landscape gardening have insisted strongly upon the introduction of water into every garden. The famous Italian gardens practically never omitted the water features. It is said that the classical Japanese gardeners insist upon the presence of water in some form in every garden scene. We all know how greatly water adds to the charm of every garden, and we may well make suitable sacrifices in order to secure such great advantages.

GARDEN MUST BE FULL OF PICTURES.

"After all is said and done, a garden is partly ornamental as well as useful. It must be beautiful and full of pictures. In building up these pictorial effects it is often desirable to introduce furnishings of a purely ornamental character, and such as do not have any justification in actual utility. While statuary has been used mostly in formal gardens it can also, with some careful study, be introduced effectively into informal gardens.

"Simple columns of stone, marble, or even of wood, serve to add effect to certain points in gardens. This applies especially to the design of formal gardens, but is open for consideration elsewhere.

GARDEN GATES FOR BEAUTY.

"The garden gate is such a pretty and sentimental thing that one only has to mention it to commend it. In fitting the garden with those accessories most compatible with human life and enjoyment, there should be now and then a pretty gate. If it is at the same time thoroughly practicable for purposes of flirtation, this need not be counted against it. Every garden must be furnished with walks. There must be means of access and circulation.

"Garden furnishings of all sorts have been rare and expensive in this country. The expense of getting good furniture has accounted in many instances for the unfortunate conditions of which we have already complained. Large payments would he wholly justified in many cases; they would not be out of style as compared with the cost of similar furnishings inside many homes. But, for common people, and especially for every-day use, a simpler and more practicable style of garden furniture is much to be desired."

ARDMORE, PA.—At the annual meeting of the Autocar Co., so favorably known to the florist trade, Monday, February 8, the former board of directors was re-elected. Walter W. Norton, who has been for several years superintendent of the factory, was elected a vice-president and will hold the position of production manager. The officers of the company who were re-elected are David S. Ludlum, president; John S. Clarke, vice-president; Louis S. Clarke, vice-president and Edwin A. Fitts, secretary and treasurer, and Frank G. Lewin, assistant secretary and treasurer.

SHORTAGE IN SUPPLY CONTINUES.

The scarce season still prevails in our town, and we are really worse off for stock this week than we were at the last writing. Carnations might be termed as being plentiful, considering the general shortage, but roses are very "few and far between." There is always enough bulbous stock to go around, but lilies are still on the short end. Daffodils, tulips, narcissi and poeticus are all in good supply and are held at good prices. To say St. Valentine's day trade was "good" would be expressing it far too mildly, as this day certainly proved that it is surely coming to the front here, and we are sure it will be able to hold its own with the other holidays of the year before long. The wholesale houses were cleaned out entirely at early hours, both Friday and Saturday. Smaller flowers had the call, of course and yellow daisies, sweet peas and violets were as scarce as money. Many of the retailers were badly disappointed on account of the violet growers failing to live up to their predictions. Plenty of violets were scheduled to be on hand for this day, but for some reason or other, they did not reach Pittsburgh in even good sized quantities. The retailers all report an increase of business for the past week, which is evidently true, as everybody seems to be buying heavier than usual.

NOTES.

Herman Gumto, who deals in pot plants in the East End district, had quite an accident February 9, when his wagon was hit by a street car, which disabled him so badly that he has been confined to bed since then. His horse was also badly injured, and had to be shot.

George Wehrley, who has been connected with the Hayman Greenhouse Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va., as manager of their Fairmont store, has opened a business of his own in Fairmont. He was also with the A. W. Smith Co., of this city for some time previous.

Randolph & McClements were cleaned out entirely Saturday evening, even to pot plants. "You might realize how we were rushed," said Mr. McClements, "by our sending out these araucarias for St. Valentine tokens."

The McCallum Company has just received its consignment of German goods, which has been on the way since last fall. It numbers 147 large steamer cases and was badly needed.

A. C. Miller, of Homestead, Pa., reports good business, mostly funeral work. The branch store in Duquesne is giving the Homestead store a "run" for business.

The A. W. Smith Co. reports having sold 250,000 violets for St. Valentine's day corsages, February 13, and then not having enough.

EXCELLENT ST. VALENTINE'S DAY TRADE.

The business for St. Valentine's day was without a doubt the largest business we have ever had for that day in this market. Almost every flower appropriate for that occasion enjoyed a very good market. The markets immediately preceding and following that day have been good. The rose supply is about the same as at last writing and continues to clean up as readily. Carnations are, if anything, a little more scarce than they were. Lilies are in a fair supply and are proving good property and both callas and rubrums sell pretty well. Single violets and good sweet peas clean up each day. Lily of the valley is having only a fair market, while the double violet market is not at all active. The offering in bulbous stock includes good cuts of narcissi, tulips and jonquils, as well as freesias and Roman hyacinths. The supply of all greens from southern smilax to ferns is sufficient to take care of present needs.

NOTES.

The wedding of James Tiernan, proprietor of the Main Flower Shop, and Miss Laura Pfeiffer, was solemnized last week.

STOCK SELLS WELL.

For the past week stock has been selling fine, with carnations and roses scarce. Violets have not been in demand for Valentine's day as in other years and same sold at reasonable figures. Plenty of freesias, Star of Bethlehems and also greens are on hand.

NOTES.

C. C. Pollworth Co. report business good. This firm is cutting some fine cattleyas, which were in good demand for Valentine's day.

The Cudahy Floral Co. are consigning some fine long American Beauties and other excellent roses to Gust Rusch & Co.

M. A. McKenney & Co. had a large wedding order on Monday, using mostly Killarney roses, sweet peas and lily of the valley.

A. Schuhman, formerly with Eberfeldt and Schuhman, having left this firm will open a store at Third and Wright streets.

Wm. Lubliner has been spending his time in Chicago, having leased a store, which will be opened in a short time.

Holton & Hunkel Co. are receiving some fine Butterfly sweet peas from Watertown, which find ready sale.

R. Lietz has a fine lot of lilies which will be in fine shape for his Easter trade.

Maggie Edlefsen & Co. have started a flower shop at 626 Grand avenue.

E. Praefke is consigning some fine bulb stock to the local market.

ST. VALENTINE'S DEMAND GOOD.

The market was a good one all week and Saturday, February 13, was the banner day. The feature was the demand for St. Valentine's day, which was very good. There was a scarcity of colored stock both in roses and carnations, but white stock was plentiful as were greens. Quite a little of plumosus of poor quality is noted which must be sold cheap.

NOTES.

The local florists' club met February 11. The dance committee will give their report at the next meeting. Fred Ammann in a very interesting talk spoke on affiliation of the club with the S. A. F. and its advantages. He also spoke on how St. Louis was chosen as the next meeting place of the American Carnation Society. H. M.

Birkart made application for membership.

John Barnard, formerly of this city, visited his father, who is quite ill, having met with an accident. He reports the flower business in Kansas City is booming.

Dave Geddes, of the floral department of Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, reports St. Valentine's day trade very large.

Frank Farney, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., was at the Jefferson with his stocks and samples recently.

Mullanphy Florists had many admirers of their window displays for Lincoln's birthday and St. Valentine's day.

Mrs. Rosie Schoenle was a large buyer of fancy Butterfly sweet peas and violets for St. Valentine's day.

John Bubach, of the E. J. McCallum Co., Pittsburgh, Pa., was in the city recently and reported trade good.

Windler Wholesale Floral Co. had a large assortment of fancy sweet peas and violets last week .

The Retail Association held its meeting at the Washington hotel, February 15.

Ostertag Bros. had a specially fine decorated window for St. Valentine's day.

F. H. Weber had a good demand for flowers and plants last week.

H. G. Berning is receiving some choice American beauty roses.

Harry Young & Son report trade as brisk. W. F.

CLUB MEETING.

At the regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society held February 9, considerable time was given to the discussion of building a horticultural hall. The majority of the members present seemed favorable to the project, as it is truly said that there is no hall here large enough to make a proper display. A hall having a gallery is being talked of, so spectators can see shows to better advantage. It was thought, also, that a large hall here could be made a paying investment, as it could be rented for various entertainments. A committee of five was appointed to take the matter in hand and report as to cost and location.

NOTES.

The schedules for the American Sweet Pea Society exhibition to be held at the Casino July 8-9 are now ready, in which are listed many good premiums offered by some of the leading seedsmen throughout the United States. It seems that more than usual interest is being accorded this show, perhaps due to the fact that many are expected to exhibit and attend from a distance, and that it will be liberally patronized and attended by society people, who are showing a growing interest in horticultural advancement.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY STIMULATES SALES.

St. Valentine's day brought quite a vigorous spurt to the trade and everybody reported a good business. There was an abundant and beautiful supply of flowers, especially violets, lily of the valley, orchids, carnations and roses of every variety. There was an abundant supply of fresh and beautiful pot plants among them, cyclamens, azaleas, hyacinths, narcissi, both white and yellow, primulas, mixed boxes and mixed pots and prices were very good. The call for pot plants was fine, better than usual for St. Valentine's day. Violets led in popularity and were put in lovely, specially attractive boxes, or made up into corsage bouquets. Combinations of violets and lily of the valley, and violets and orchids were also very popular. The trade lasted through the two days with quite a rush.

NOTES.

The Joy Floral Company had a big supply of every kind of stock. Trade was stimulated by a very attractive local advertisement three columns wide and three quarters of a column in length in the daily papers. This firm is very enterprising and never lets an opportunity go by.

Geny Bros. had an abundance of violets, cutting many thousands, the bright weather of the past few days bringing out an abundance of blossoms, and after a very large cut Saturday, there were as many more for the Sunday cut. They also sold a fine lot of plants.

The McIntyre Floral Company had a very attractive line of Valentine boxes, heart shaped. They had a fine stock of flowers to fill them with, and satisfied a large demand from customers.

L. H. Haury and Sons did a good business in corsage bouquets and other flowers.

Pacific Coast Horticultural Society.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society held its monthly meeting February 6, at Redmen's hall, 240 Golden Gate avenue, San Francisco, with President Plath in the chair. By unanimous vote the business of the evening was deferred until after the program, a lecture on tree surgery, by Prof. J. W. Gregg, of the University of California. California being rich in timber, has until very recently been negligent of its trees, and with many illustrations from California city streets, the lecturer was able to show the need of improvement, and how it lay within the realm of the gardener or florist to perfect such conditions. He than showed several developments in landscape design, drawing on eastern cities for views. He suggested that the ginko would be well adapted to California conditions, and should be more extensively planted, and illustrated the effect produced by these trees by showing a picture of the Avenue of Ginkos, Washington, D. C.

The business transacted, after the lecture was largely relative to the convention of the Society of American Florists. It was decided that an official programme would be issued, which through the advertising would largely pay for the entertainment of the delegates of the convention. There was much time spent in discussing the merits of being a member of the Society of American Florists, and members of the Pacific Coast Horticultural Society were urged to join that organization.

It is planned to have a smoker in the near future, and a bulbous flower show within the next month. This will include bulbous plants grown indoors and out, for as spring is already at hand outdoor plants are coming forth.

OBITUARY.

John B. Hanft.

John B. Hanft, one of the oldest florists of New York, and founder of the firm of Hanft Brothers, now located at Madison avenue and 62d street, that city, died February 10, aged 82 years. Mr. Hanft was born in Rodach, Sachsen Meiningen (Germany) in 1832. When a young man, with his brothers, George M., Julian N. and Gustave, all of whom are now dead, he came to this country in 1849, and established a florist business in New York, under the firm name of Hanft Bros. The brother, Julian, who died in July, 1914, though a florist, was not connected with the firm of Hanft Bros.

In October, 1914, the late Mr. Hanft was stricken with paralysis and has since been failing. He was one of the first florists to import lily of the valley pips from Europe. He had been a member of the Arion Singing Society since 1864. He was also a member of the German Hospital Society. He is survived by a widow, five sons and five daughters. Two of the sons, Julian and Fred, now conduct the business of Hanft Bros. at Madison avenue and 62d street.

His funeral was held from the Arion Society's club house, Park avenue and 59th street, New York, Saturday afternoon, February 13.

Robert Legate.

Robert Legate, a well-known designer and decorator of New York, and who had for a number of years been employed by James Hart, died February 4, aged 62 years. He was a genial man, possessed of social qualities, and was well thought of by those who knew him best. He is survived by a widow and one son.

TRADE SHOWS HEAVY GAIN.

St. Valentine's day business was far in excess of the same day a year ago. Considerable advertising was done by the retailers individually and in a co-operative way, and the result was easily attested by the increased volume of trade thus developed. In some cases an increase of fully one hundred per cent was made, while everyone reported large and most satisfactory gains over last year, and on Monday, February 15, this unprecedented demand, echoes of the Valentine day activity, was felt all along the line, nearly every florist sharing in the spirited call. It would be difficult to correctly name the flowers that had the greatest call, as nearly all varieties as well as the many made up arrangements found ready sale. Carnations moved slowly, though the quality was good, but roses and bulbous stock showed well, and great quantities were sold to the disadvantage of the divine flower. Many of the violets shown were of poor quality and their condition alone was the cause of their unpopularity. Sweet peas were fine, and all available stock was completely sold out. Pot plants of bulbous stock were very popular, and the quality and variety complete.

SIX weeks to Easter, which falls on April 4 this year, one week earlier than last year.

St. Valentine's Day Business.

Gratifying reports received from all sections show that St. Valentine's day sales this year were highly satisfactory, increases in nearly every instance being noted over the 1914 St. Valentine business. Stock was in good supply, excellent in quality as a rule, and cleaned up early. Carnations and violets led in popularity, pot plants showed an increase in demand, and basket arrangements and appropriate boxes found ready sale. Attractive window displays and general publicity calling attention to the day and the appropriateness of flowers for the occasion are credited with having much to do with the generally satisfactory result.

American Rose Society.

The exhibition of the American Rose Society for March 18-21, is being taken well in hand by the Boston horticultural interests with the determination to provide an exhibition of the first class. The American Rose Society has already received 20 special prizes besides the regulars. A special prize, a little different from anything that has been offered before, is made by the Glenfrew Farm, Sewickley, Pa., a silver cup valued at $20, for the best dozen of roses grown by an amateur. There may be two varieties. Amateur gardeners, nor commercial rose growers, may not compete, it being solely for amateurs. This prize is given to encourage lovers of roses, as the English Rose Society has been doing for years past. Free tickets to the show will be issued to all members.

DEPARTMENT OF PLANT REGISTRATION.

Public notice is hereby given that the Swiss Floral Co., East 7th and Hancock streets, Portland, Ore., offers for registration the salvia described below. Any person objecting to the registration, or to the use of the proposed name, is requested to communicate with the secretary at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from this date.

Description: A salvia in habits of growth similar to Salvia Bonfire. The corolla, or petals, bright scarlet; calyx, creamy white, slightly flushed with a tinge of red on the surface exposed to the sun rays giving the calyx an appearance of salmon pink on white ground. Free and profuse blooming. Result of crossing Salvia Bonfire with Salvia Bavaria. Name—Salvia Red Cross.

Public notice is hereby given that Richard E. Loeben, Gloversville, N. Y., offers for registration the carnation described below:

Description—Sport of Carnation Benora. Growth, foliage and formation of plant identically the same as parent. A light, red in color, same as red striping in Benora.

Portland's City Beautiful Plan.

Thirty-one thousand rose plants of the finest quality, roses of the kind that would ordinarily cost from 25 cents to $1 per plant, are to be sold to the citizens of Portland, Ore., before February 22 at prices of 12½ cents, or 15 cents for a single plant. This is brought about by the city beautiful committee of the Rose Festival Association in its movement to make this the greatest rose planting year that Portland has ever seen and to further the comprehensive plan of the committee to prepare the city to make the finest possible appearance in every section during the coming rose festival.

The committee under the leadership of Julius L. Meier, chairman, has arranged to get Oregon grown roses for this purpose, to be sold to the residents of Portland and vicinity who desire to join in the planting movement. All of the bushes that have been obtained are two years old and will bloom this year. In case the supply already procured does not meet the demand, the committee contemplates getting still more roses, so that when February 22 comes, which has been set aside as official rose planting day, everybody who is interested in the city beautiful movement and willing to support it by personal work, may have all the roses he needs. It is expected that the 31,000 plants already procured will be soon exhausted when the public begins to enter fully into the spirit of the movement.

T.

Panama-Pacific Exposition Attendance.

The grounds to the Panama-Pacific exposition are now closed pending the opening to the public on February 20. Prior to that people flocked to view the grounds and unfinished buildings, paying an entrance fee of 25 cents, and the amount taken in exceeded the total taken in at the big midwinter fair held in San Francisco a number of years ago. Special rate seasonal tickets at $10 each were offered and within two or three weeks 30,000 of them were sold. A new issue of the same number is now being printed. It indicates that there is ready money in and about the city, and the confidence which local people have shown in the worth of the fair will be a big boost to eastern friends. Business is certainly going to be on with a rush when the big exposition opens, and the local merchants have great faith in the increase of business promised for 1915.

Spring Made in the City.

The following is taken from "Prose Fancies," one of Le Gallienne's new English books:

"It is true there is spring on the terrace, but even so it is spring imported from the town-spring bought in Holborn, spring delivered free by parcel post; for where would the terrace have been but for the city seedsman—that magician who sends you strangely spotted beans and mysterious bulbs in shrivelled cerements, weird little flower mummies that suggest centuries of forgotten silence in painted Egyptian tombs. This strange and shrivelled thing can surely never live again, we say, as we hold it in our hands, seeing not the glowing circles of color, tiny rings of Saturn, packed so carefully inside this flower-egg, the folds of green and silver silk wound round and round the precious life within.

"But, of course, this is all the seedsman's cunning and no credit to nature; and I repeat that were it not for railways and the parcel post—goodness knows whether we should ever get any spring at all in the country.

"I am tired of waiting for this slow-moving provincial spring. Let us to the town to meet the spring—for:

"They've taken all the spring from the country to the town—
Like the butter and the eggs, and the milk from the cow;
And if you want a primrose, you write to London now,
And if you need a nightingale, well—Whiteley sends it down."

Easter Lilies Stems 3 to 4 feet long; very choice flowers, $10.00 per 100, or $1.50 per dozen.

Roses Very choice quality in all lengths of stem. We especially recommend our Shawyer, as at this time of year it is the finest Pink Rose in the market.

Carnations Our big fancy Red Carnation, the Belle Washburn, at 4c, is the best buy in the market. It is the American Beauty of the Carnation family. Fancy Pink and White Carnations, 3c to 4c, depending on market conditions.

We handle Bruns' Valley, Jurgens' and Cochrane's Tulips, Daffodils, Narcissus and other bulbous flowers, so have the finest stock coming in this market.

VALENTINE DAY TRADE BEST EVER.

The Valentine day trade this year was very good, and the best that the local florists have ever experienced. Both the local and out-of-town demand were brisk and stock in all lines cleaned up at an early hour at good prices. American Beauty, Richmond, Milady, Rhea Reid and all other red roses were in brisk demand and the same holds good with red carnations, red tulips, etc. Roses and carnations in general were both good property, and it was almost impossible at times to supply the demand. Violets and orchids sold quickly, and there was also a good call for lily of the valley. Sweet peas never sold better this season than they did for Valentine's day, but the supply was limited and what stock did reach the market brought fancy prices. Miscellaneous seasonable cut flowers, such as jonquils, Paper White narcissi, gladioli, pansies and freesia all sold well, and taken all in all, everything salable was disposed of with the possible exception of the late shipments on Sunday morning and everyone was more than satisfied with the amount of business that was done and the prices that were realized. The retail florists advertised quite extensively in the daily papers on the Friday before Valentine's day and also had very elaborate window displays which were so tempting that the public could not help but drop in and spend a few dollars. Plants sold well with the retail florists but cut flowers cleaned up at an early hour and several trips to the market were made by the larger florists who advertised and did not expect to do as large a business as they did. Business has shown a gradual improvement since last October and according to a majority of the wholesalers January in 1915 was much better than January in 1914 and it appears as if the same will hold good for February if the balance of the month is anywhere at all good. Stock is more plentiful this week and while prices are not quite as firm as they have been there is not any too much stock around at present even though the Lenten season has opened and a quiet week was expected.

RANDALL AND AMLING FIRE.

The E. C. Amling Co. and A. L. Randall Co. stores located in the four-story Stewart building at 66-68-70 East Randolph street, in the heart of the great central cut flower market, were completely destroyed by fire early Sunday morning, February 14. The alarm was turned in shortly after two o'clock, and when the fire department arrived on the scene, the building was already a mass of flames, and it was only by hard work that the fire was kept from spreading to the Yale building on the east in which Poehlmann Bros. Co. is located, and the building adjoining on the west. It seems that the fire started on the top floor and worked down, for the roof fell shortly after the firemen arrived and when the blaze was extinguished, only the second floor and walls remained standing. Both firms carried insurance and while the damage to the E. C. Amling Co.'s establishment was caused mostly by water the A. L. Randall Co.'s entire store and stock of supplies were completely destroyed by fire. In both instances the fire just missed the offices and consequently all the records were saved, although they were somewhat badly damaged by water. The only damage that Poehlmann Bros. Co. suffered was from water which leaked into John Poehlmann's private office on the second floor, but the loss itself is nothing to speak of.

In spite of the fire both the A. L. Randall Co. and E. C. Amling Co. opened for business on Sunday, the day of the fire, when all the shipping orders were filled on time and the local trade was taken care of. The Amling Co. used the rear of Harry C. Rowe's store and the Randall Co. accepted the kind offer of Kyle & Foerster to do business at their place until other quarters could be secured. The wholesale florists all did what they could to assist the two firms in conducting their business while their establishments were on fire and both the Randall and Amling companies wish to thank them for their kind offers of assistance.

The E. C. Amling Co. is now comfortably located in its new quarters in the Federal Life building at 166 North Michigan ave., where business under the able management of John Michelsen is going along uninterrupted as though nothing at all had happened. The store has been equipped like it was before and everything is again in running order and while the firm has experienced the unpleasantness of a fire, everyone is making the best of the situation and all the customers are being treated with the same efficient service as in the past. The A. L. Randall Co. is now located in the Goodyear building at 177-179 North Michigan avenue, almost directly opposite the Chicago Flower Growers' Association establishment and the new E. C. Amling Co. store. Randall's cut flower department has been filling orders right on time since the fire, and while service in the supply department was affected somewhat, orders are now being filled from new fresh stock in both domestic and imported goods from stock in the firm's outlying warehouses, and from stock shipments that are being rushed from the east and elsewhere. The basket and wire work factory is again in running order and a new supply of chiffons and ribbons is due. Frank Johnson who has so successfully managed the firm in the past is leaving nothing undone to get affairs in working order as early as possible and feels that none of the customers will be inconvenienced in the slightest.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY BUSINESS.

The retail florists all report a record breaking Valentine's day business with a brisk demand for both cut flowers and plants and a good cleanup in all lines. Everywhere one went in the city all the stores had neatly arranged window displays and carried such fine lines of stock that one could not help but drop in and buy. Arnold's Valentine box made a big hit this year and so did Hughes' box. Violets sold well and the prices were very reasonable, stock selling from 50 cents per bunch up at retail. Friday, February 12, was an unusually good day and so was Saturday, but on Sunday the rainy weather put a damper on trade, otherwise it would have been much better. Lily of the valley in pots and in pans was featured everywhere and sold well. A. Lange, Fleischmann, George Wienhoeber, Samuelson, and Ernst Wienhoeber Co. carried big advertisements in the daily papers on the Friday before Valentine day, and those that did report splendid results and agree that printers' ink on this occasion proved to be a mighty good investment.

A. Lange on East Madison street had about all the business that he and his store force could conveniently handle and while a brisk demand was experienced for the $1.00 box of flowers, plants and other stock sold well, and the store was nearly always crowded with customers. The best ever is the report at this establishment in regard to the St. Valentine day business.

USE Budlong's Blue Ribbon Valley.

The Alpha Floral Co. had a splendid showing of stock at its store in South Wabash avenue in both cut flowers and blooming plants, but the latter sold best at this place, especially lily of the valley in pots, azaleas, cyclamens, hyacinths, etc.

George Wienhoeber had a large six foot heart of red frieze in addition to a fine line of cut flowers in his Valen-

SLIGHTLY DISFIGURED

BUT STILL IN THE RING

FIRE destroyed our store at 68-70 East Randolph Street, early Sunday morning, February 14, but business is going along as usual and we are now located in new quarters in the Federal Life Building, at 166 North Michigan Avenue. The greater part of the damage we suffered was more from water than fire, but all our records were saved and every order was filled on time on Sunday the day of the fire, in other quarters as though nothing at all happened. Our new store was open for business at the regular time, not a sale was lost—and while we are slightly disfigured we are still in the ring with the largest and most complete line of Cut Flowers and Greens, and are giving our customers the same high service and the same high quality of stock as in the past.

tine day window display, and his offer of a bunch of violets delivered postpaid anywhere for $1.00 was a winner. Everything sold well, but violets had the call at this store, over 50,000 being disposed of according to the proprietor.

Schiller, the Florist, reports an increase in the Valentine day business at the West Madison street store with the demand best for violets. George Asmus says that Valentine Day trade has shown a big improvement each year at this establishment and that it is getting to be quite a big flower day. Schiller's North Side store also had a fine Valentine day business.

O. J. Friedman had a splendid display of neatly arranged baskets of bulbous flowers, etc., at his South Michigan avenue store, and featured a special valentine box of his own for this occasion. Business was very good and he did more business than he expected to.

The George Wittbold Co. enjoyed a splendid Valentine day business and did much better than last year, cut flowers of all kinds selling well. Violets had their usual good call, but roses were all in brisk demand.

The Bohannon Floral Co. had a magnificent display of orchids, sweet peas and other cut flowers at its East Monroe street store and enjoyed splendid business. A handsome new 40 h. p. Overland delivery car was used to make deliveries on Dan Cupid's day.

The Fleischmann Floral Co. had on display a large quantity of bulbous flowers in pans and baskets as well as a large supply of other seasonable cut flowers and was well pleased with the Valentine day trade in general. Violets had a splendid call as usual.

Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, had a very pretty Valentine window of neatly arranged baskets of cut flowers, etc., and enjoyed a better Valentine day business then he did last year.

AMLING'S AND RANDALL'S FIRE-WRECKED BUILDING AT CHICAGO.—See Page 224.

The Atlas Floral Co. on East Randolph street had a pretty window display the whole week before Valentine day, a change being made each day. Business was very good at this store, and according to Mrs. Irene Williams, it could not have been much better.

Harry C. Rowe had a dandy display at his new store in North Wabash avenue and also did a nice business.

H. N. Bruns says that the Valentine day trade at his Madison street store was almost as good as an ordinary Easter business with bulbous stock of all kinds in best demand. Roses and carnations brought better prices than they did last year, but violets sold at very reasonable prices this year.

NO INTERRUPTION TO BUSINESS

Regarding the big fire which completely destroyed our building on Sunday morning, February 14, we wish to announce that there will be no interruption whatever to business and that we are now located in temporary quarters at 177-179 North Michigan Avenue.

Positively No Delay in CUT FLOWER Shipments.

Every order will be filled in the same prompt manner as in the past. Most of our Sunday shipments went out as usual from quarters secured while the fire was still raging.

Service in Supply Department Interrupted 24 Hours.

Our entire stock of supplies was destroyed by fire with exception of what was stored in our outlying warehouses, but all Domestic and Imported Supplies are now available and all orders will be filled from the new fresh stock in our outlying warehouses and incoming shipments.

We want orders to continue to arrive. Send them all to

NOTES.

O. Johnson of the Batavia Greenhouse Co. is well pleased with the business outlook and says that the sales the past month were very good. He adds that if business was as good last November as it was last month his firm would have added a couple of new houses to its range this spring, but conditions were so unsatisfactory and uncertain then that it was decided to postpone building until some future date.

The Garland Manufacturing Co. is building a fine new steel boiler shed for Sol Garland at Des Plaines and is also repairing his greenhouses, which were damaged by fire recently. A brisk demand is being experienced for the "Little Wonder" rose nozzle which sells for 35 cents each and is to be found in use at nearly all the leading commercial establishments in this and other vicinities where roses are grown.

Nic Kruchten, when interviewed at John Kruchten's wholesale store this week, says that some of the carnation plants in his greenhouses are recovering from the effects of the damage done by gas several weeks ago, but that plants of the variety Victory seem to have suffered most and appear to be completely destroyed.

Tim Matchen, who is now operating a retail store at Indiana Harbor, is going to open a new establishment at East Chicago, March 1. He has already placed the order for his new refrigerator with Buchbinder Bros. of this city.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association now has the E. C. Amling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. as neighbors. The Amling store is only a few doors south and the Randall store is directly across the street.

Peter Sroczyniski, probably better known as "Big Pete," as he is often familiarly called, is confined to the St. Luke's hospital where he underwent an operation for gall stones February 15.

Mrs. Kuehnel of the Auburn Florist, 734 West Seventy-ninth street, who has been confined to her home for some time by a serious accident, is able to be about again.

Chas. W. McKellar and wife expect to leave about March 1 for San Francisco, Calif., to spend a month or so at the Panama-Pacific exposition.

A. T. Pyfer says that carnations never sold better for Valentine day at the Chicago Carnation Co.'s store than they did this year.

W. N. Rudd is scheduled for a two weeks' course of lectures at the Illinois State University, commencing February 23.

The Fair placed an order this week for a florist refrigerator with Buchbinder Bros. of this city.

ROSES AND CARNATIONS

Nice, large supply of Roses and Carnations in all the leading varieties, and in all grades, at prices that will surely meet with your approval. If you have never bought any stock from us, there is no better time to start than the present, and we are confident that a trial order will prove that we are in as good a position to supply you with stock as well and even better than any other house in this or any other market.

Large Crop of Fancy Freesias

Always remember that we are headquarters for fancy Freesias and can also take care of you in grand style on Tulips, Narcissus, Violets, Sweet Peas, Valley, Lilies and everything else that is seasonable in Cut Flowers and Greens. Our line is always so complete that if any particular item is desired and is to be had, it is usually at our establishment.

N. J. Wietor reports that both the local and shipping demand were brisk at Wietor Bros.' store for Valentine day, and their books show a big increase over last year. Roses and carnations sold exceptionally well, but American Beauty roses had the call and cleaned up at an early hour. This firm is now in good crop with both roses and carnations, and the quality of the American Beauties that they are cutting is all that can be desired.

Otto W. Frese says that the Valentine day trade was very good at Poelhmann Bros. Co.'s store this year and stock of all kinds had a brisk call and cleaned up early. In the supply department everything is going along nicely now, although it looked for a time Sunday when the big fire was raging next door as if T. E. Waters would be without a home next day.

Kennicott Bros. Co.'s store is beginning to look pretty classy as the alterations progress and when everything is completed will enable the store force to handle the orders to better advantage. The wire working department is pretty busy now filling orders that are constantly being booked.

Joseph Ziska & Sons are doing a nice business in supplies and Raymond has been kept busy with his delivery car in trying to distribute the orders as fast as Joseph and John fill them. The demand for wire designs has been very brisk of late and a new catalogue is ready for distribution.

At Percy Jones' store the Valentine day trade was surprisingly good and Saturday, February 13, was the best Saturday that the firm has experienced. Everything went like hot cakes and while every order was filled in full, there was no surplus left when the store closed for the day.

John Sinner says that with one exception every order that Sinner Bros. received from their carnation cutting advertisement in THE AMERICAN FLORIST was accompanied with a good sized check, and that the exception has already been paid.

At J. A. Budlong's store one cannot help but admire the splendid quality of the roses that firm is cutting now and Phil Schupps says that the demand so far has cleaned up the supply.

The Raedlein Basket Co. has a big display of all the latest styles in Easter baskets at its Milwaukee avenue salesroom and cordially invites all its customers to call and inspect same.

Erne & Klingel are receiving very fancy Butterfly sweet peas now in addition to their usual fine line of stock. To-bak-ine and Nico-fume are still handled in quantity at this store.

George Reinberg is booking quite a number of orders for rooted rose cuttings, and bench rose plants now, and almost every mail brings in new orders.

George C. Weiland was well pleased with the Valentine day trade at M. Weiland's store in Evanston, which was the best that has been experienced yet.

Hoerber Bros. will grow the new roses, Hoosier Beauty and Ophelia, next season at their Des Plaines greenhouses.

John Poehlmann was given quite a scare early Sunday morning, February 14, when a Pinkerton man called him up at his home about four o'clock telling him that the Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s store was afire. He immediately called up his brother August at Morton Grove, notifying him of the news and made a quick trip in his auto to the store to find out that their store was safe, but had a narrow escape, for it adjoins the Stewart building in which the E. C. Amling Co. and the A. L. Randall Co. were located and which was completely destroyed by fire. August Poehlmann reached the scene shortly after he was notified and the writer can just about imagine how long it took him to make the flying trip in his Winton Six to the city from Morton Grove.

Bassett & Washburn were unable to supply the demand for their new carnation Belle Washburn for Lincoln's birthday and Valentine day at $6.00 per 100 and over 10 per cent of the orders for this splendid variety had to be refused. Business was very good at this house the past week and so good that Mr. Washburn will give his able assistant, Mrs. Horton, a vacation so that she can take in the sights at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco, and be back before the Easter rush. Mrs. Horton will leave for the Golden Gate city March 3.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. have experienced a splendid shipping business right along, but Mr. Vaughan says that the out-of-town demand was surprisingly large and which also holds good for the city trade. American Beauty roses never sold better for Valentine day, and while red roses and red carnations were in best demand, other stock sold well in all lines and a grand cleanup was the result.

At Peter Reinberg's store the report for Valentine day is that it was the best in three years, with the shipping trade very heavy. Orders for roses were refused from other out-of-town wholesale markets, but all the regular customers were taken care of. Mr. Reinberg recovered sufficiently from his recent illness to make his regular visits to the store this week.

Kyle & Foerster kindly offered the use of their store to the A. L. Randall Co. on Sunday, February 14, which enabled that firm to get all its orders out on schedule time. The florists did all they could to assist both of the firms in every way possible for those whose stores were destroyed and it was pleasing to note the friendly feeling that existed.

Anton Then's many friends will regret to hear that he fractured his arm when he slipped and fell on an icy sidewalk about a week ago.

Otto Amling, of Maywood, is the proud father of a baby girl who arrived on the morning of Wednesday, February 16. This is the only girl in the A. F. Amling family and it is needless to add that the little stranger is more than welcome.

Zech & Mann are supplying their many customers with fancy freesias which they are handling in quantity. The Valentine day business was a record breaker at this store and everything in cut flowers was in brisk demand.

Weiland & Risch are again cutting heavily in Mrs. Chas. Russell roses, but the demand for this variety is always so brisk at this house that there is hardly ever any surplus.

ST. VALENTINE BUSINESS HEAVY.

The feature of the week was the demand for St. Valentine's day. All the retail men were busy, or expected to be, for this floral festival, and stocked up according to their volume of business. The result was that all the wholesalers' big boxes were entirely cleaned up by Saturday morning, and buyers stood around awaiting their chances on the various consignments as they arrived. The crops on nearly all the roses still run light, and prices hold firm. What little stock there is runs very good. The Killarney Brilliant appears to be making good, owing possibly to the rather uncertain color of the older sort. Some good Russells and Shawyers are coming in; also Mock, which commands about 50 per cent more than the other sorts, its long stems and large buds bringing it next to the American Beauty in size. The American Beauty still holds back with prices out of sight, $9 per dozen being asked for the specials. While we hear stories of splendid looking beds of carnations, they appear to be scarce, the price for specials being boosted to five cents. Violets were the only really plentiful flower on the market; there were quantities of singles and New York doubles, the latter at $7.50 per thousand. Gardenias cleaned up very well, all specials being bought up on sight at top prices. There were plenty of cattleyas, the specials being offered in quantity at low prices. Daffodils had an inning and sold well all week, they being largely used in the boxes of spring flowers, which are now the leading features of the store trade. Good plumosus sprays are scarce, the demand exceeding the supply. Any one with a crop of this useful green, or maidenhair, will find good sale for it in this market. Sweet peas were in great demand, all shipments being practically sold before they arrived. The Spencers are superb and the Blanche Ferry is the best seller.

PHILADELPHIA SPRING SHOW

NOTES.

The carnation night at the next meeting of the florists' club, March 2, will give the growers with promising seedlings, a good opportunity to make bids for popularity. Each shipment sent express prepaid to Secretary David Rust, will be well staged, and be sure of action by the club's committee. The essay committee were fortunate in securing E. A. Harvey of Brandywine Summit, Pa., a carnation specialist, as the essayist of the evening. There will no doubt be a banner attendance.

There is to be a new wholesale house in this city. Stuart H. Miller, who has been the first lieutenant to Edward Reid for some twelve years, is to open up a commission business next door to his old employer, at 1617 Ranstead street. Mr. Miller is well versed in the business, enterprising and a hard worker. He has the best wishes of his old employer and the trade generally for his success.

Edward Reid is a great friend of the carnation, and spends some of his spare time motoring among his growers. He recently visited Mrs. Sarah I. Smith's houses at Secane, Pa., and saw the finest growth and crops of flowers he had ever seen grown by man or woman. Mrs. Smith is a very enthusiastic carnationist, and also succeeds with violets.

Choice carnations, snapdragons, lily of the valley and gardenias are leaders with the Leo Niessen Co. The largest stock of American Beauty roses in the country is seen here, but little is said of them now as they are nearly all sold in advance.

W. K. Harris cut and marketed 500,000 Golden Spur daffodils, during the last week of January and the first week of February, twelve working days. Their market was in all the large cities of the east.

Robert Craig Co. reports the Easter rose stock to be coming on in first class shape. An immense crop of giganteum lilies and several houses of hydrangeas are also features of their stock.

Berger Bros. report more business than flowers the past week, but their growers assure them that they will very shortly be able to supply all their needs.

The M. Rice Co. has recovered its breath after the St. Valentine's day rush. Their heart basket was a great hit. They promise another sensation for Easter.

Killarneys, white and pink, are now in crop again with the Joseph Heacock Co. Very select cattleyas are also a feature.

L. P. Vollers cleaned up all the red carnations February 11, having a large order for a school commencement.

MARKET UNCHANGED.

There is no change worthy of note in the cut flower situation. St. Valentine's day made some business for some of the large stores, but at others it was stated that they noted little change. All kinds of roses are increasing in supply and nobody can foretell what prices will be at the end of this week. Carnations seem to be holding their own. Such stock as Georgeous is wholesaling as high as $6 per 100. There is fine stock of Mrs. Ward, Matchless and other productions that bring $4 to $5 per 100. On Saturday, February 13, there was quite a lively movement in orchids. On that day, the "violet men" put up the price of violets to 50 cents per 100. On Sunday morning violets could be bought for $1.50 per 1,000. There is an enormous supply of tulips, narcissi and freesias and the end is not yet.

James K. Allen will remove May 1 to more commodious quarters at 118 West 28th street.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

There was a large and enthusiastic attendance at the monthly meeting of this society held in Doran's hall, Greenwich, Conn., Friday evening, February 12, President W. J. Sealey in the chair. Several new members were elected, and a number of proposals for membership were received and placed on file. It was voted to hold the fall exhibition again this year and dates will be announced later. Among the visitors present were: W. J. Collins, of Carters Tested Seeds, Boston, Mass.; A. L. Rickards, of Stumpp & Walter Co., New York; Chas. H. Totty, M. C. Ebel and Arthur Herrington, Madison, N. J. Each in turn spoke briefly, complimenting the society on its progress, and the fine monthly exhibitions that are a feature of each meeting. Mr. Herrington, who has been appointed manager of the national flower show that will be held in New York, March 17-23, spoke at length, outlining the plans that have been made to make the exhibition of 1915 a success that is expected to eclipse all previous efforts in this direction. The support of our members is anticipated. The Hon. John M. Brown, mayor of Stamford, made a few remarks, and assured the members of his best wishes and hearty support.

"Coniferous Trees that Thrive and Are Adapted to Climatic Conditions of the Counties of Fairfield, Conn., and Westchester, N. Y.," was the subject chosen by Henry Kelly, of New Canaan, Conn., who delivered his lecture in a straightforward and comprehensive manner, describing planting methods, suggestions for grouping, and methods for combating insect pests and diseases that some evergreens are subject to. Mr. Kelly was accorded a rising vote of thanks for his instructive and interesting lecture. The same honors were also accorded to Thos. Ryan, of Portchester, N. Y., who read an essay on "Sweet Pea Culture for Exhibition," which was well received and replete with helpful cultural hints. A feature of the meeting was the competition for the prizes offered by John Canning, of Ardsley, N. Y., for the best vase of roses, any variety. Jas. Stuart won the first prize with a grand vase of Killarney Brilliant. The second prize was awarded to Robt. Grunnert for a fine vase of the same variety. The commercial section was represented by Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., and Reuter & Sons, Westerly, R. I. Mr. Totty showed a fine quartet of new roses, Mrs. F. F. Thompson, Georgeous, Mrs. Geo. Gordon and September Morn. All were very fine and received high commendation. Reuter & Sons staged a fine vase each of Killarney Brilliant and Crimson Queen that attracted a lot of attention and were highly commended by the judges. In the non-competitive exhibit a display of cyclamens from Jas. Linane was very highly commended; bunch of violets from Carl Hankenson received a vote of thanks; display of Primula malacoides from A. Wynne received honorable mention; vase of new winter flowering sweet peas from Patrick Fairfield, vote of thanks. A cultural certificate was awarded to Robt. Allen for a grand vase of mignonette that was exceptional in size and vigor; vote of thanks to A. Wynne for vase of stocks. Honorable mention was accorded to W. H. Fisher for display of carnations. Robt. Grunnert received the same honors for a fine vase of carnations. Honorable mention was given to Robt. Allen for display of cinerarias. P. W. Popp was highly commended for a combination of miniature pink hyacinths and lily of the valley, and the same exhibitor received honorable mention for a specimen plant of Erica codonodes. The next meeting will be held March 12 at 7:30 p. m. A prize will be offered for the best exhibit at the meeting.

P. W. POPP, Cor. Sec'y.

ST. VALENTINE BUSINESS GOOD.

Valentine business was all that the trade could wish for this year; all stock sold exceptionally well, and the stock was A No. 1. Violets had a very heavy demand and sold in bunches of 100 and 150. Sweet peas also had a heavy demand and sold out early. Corsages of marguerites were sold. Cyclamens sold very well this year in fancy baskets and pot covers. Lily of the valley corsages and orchids met with ready sale. One florist using the red heart boxes sold out his stock of boxes and violets as early as 7 p. m. Saturday night and had to disappoint a good many customers. No one expected the business this year as in former years, and every one found it even better than last year.

NOTES.

Bourgaize & Son, of Hoxie, are cutting the best daffodils to be seen in town now. This is his first venture in bulb forcing under glass, and he is making a success.

There were several St. Valentine windows in the city this year that were good, large red hearts and Cupids being used to good effect.

The Liggitts drug store sold cyclamens Saturday in their store with Willie Cohen, formerly of Smith, the florist, in charge.

C. S. Macnair, who has been sick for some time, is expected back to business very soon. H. A. T.

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—The greenhouses which have been successfully operated for several years by C. W. Moore have been sold to Andrew Peterson, of Gibson City, who will take possession March 1, continuing his Gibson City greenhouses as well.

Nassau County Hort. Society.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Glen Cove, February 10, with President Ernest Westlake in the chair. W. H. Reynolds was elected to active membership and one application was received for active membership. The exhibition table was well filled and J. P. Johnstone, W. Robertson and G. Gilder, who were appointed to act as judges, made the following awards: Twelve sprays freesia—J. McDonald, first; also first for exhibit of one plant of stock. One plant of Primula malacoides, exhibited by F. Honeyman, was awarded first prize. An exhibition plant of the same variety exhibited by James Duthie was very highly commended. Harry Jones' exhibit, a pot of freesias, received the thanks of the society. President Westlake announced that he would offer a fountain pen as a prize at the next meeting for the best vase of carnations, 25 mixed. Other exhibits will be carnations, 12 white, 12 pink and 12 any other color.

ST. VALENTINE'S DAY SALES HEAVY.

The weather for Saturday and Sunday was ideal for St. Valentine's day, with the result that florists locally did almost twice the business they did last year, particularly in violets, which flower cleaned up entirely, as did also all roses and carnations. The advertising at the food show last week, together with the cooperative advertising in the newspapers, certainly had much to do with the tremendous business that we did here. Tulips, daffodils and narcissi also sold well, especially being used freely in "dollar boxes." Lily of the valley was in good demand, with a supply of excellent quality stock. Sweet peas were quite plentiful, some stock being quite short in the stem, but the better grades cleaned up entirely. Adiantum and such flowers as are used in corsages were perhaps most in demand. Both calla and Easter lilies were short of the demand. Considerable funeral work is being done by nearly all the florists.

NOTES.

L. L. Lamborn of the Lamborn Floral Co., Alliance, O., is at Battle Creek, Mich., where he will spend a few weeks for his health. He has not been in the best of health for some time.

Frank Friedley has been confined to the house for several days the past week with the grippe.

Geo. Bates of the Cleveland Cut Flower Co. was presented with a fine baby boy.

C. F. B.

Rochester, N. Y.

Plans for a flower show to be held at Exposition park next fall were discussed at a meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association February 8. The management of the industrial exposition suggested the idea and the florists have entered enthusiastically into the plan. A committee, composed of George B. Hart, chairman; F. J. Kelley, A. H. Salter, Harry E. Bates and Charles H. Vick, will work in connection with the industrial exposition committee.

A movement is now on foot to bring the annual meeting of the American Rose Society to this city in the spring of 1917. The display that would be held in connection with the meeting probably would be one of the most brilliant floral exhibitions ever seen here.

A return bowling match between the Buffalo Florists' Club and the Rochester Florists' Association will be held soon. The Rochester florists defeated the Buffalo team in that city February 3, but Buffalo has two legs on a trophy that is being contested and Rochester has only one. The city winning the best three out of five matches would have permanent possession of the trophy.

20% Discount

ON ORDERS FOR

Hardy Perennial Phloxes

The Phloxes here offered are all one year old field-grown plants. It is our custom to pot these into three-inch pots about the middle of March for the Spring trade. To save this extra handling we will allow a special discount of 20 per cent from our regular low prices here quoted, on all orders booked for immediate delivery between February 20 and March 15.

General Collection of Hardy Phlox.

Albion (Medium). One of our own introductions; producing very larg panicles of pure white flowers, with faint analine-red eye.
Antonin Mercie (Medium). Light ground color, upper half of each petal deeply suffused bluish-lilac, large white halo.
Bacchante (Tall). Tyrian rose, with crimson-carmine eye.
Baron von Dedem (Medium). Brilliant cochineal-red with salmon shadings.
B. Comte (Medium). Brilliant French purple, with crimson carmine shadings, 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100.
Bridesmaid (Tall). White, with large crimson-carmine center.
Champs Elysee (Dwarf). A very bright rosy magenta,
Coquelicot (Dwarf). A fine pure scarlet, with crimson-red eye. 85 cts per doz.; $6.00 per 100.
Danton (Medium). Scarlet, pure red eye.
Diadem (Dwarf). A fine dwarf, pure white.
Eclaireur (Tall). Brilliant rosy magenta, with large lighter halo.
Frau Rosalie Wildt. Soft pleasing mauve-rose with carmine eye.
George A. Strohlein (Medium). Bright scarlet, with crimson-red eye; does not bleach. $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100.
Henry Marcel (Medium). Pure red, with bright salmon shadings.
Henry Murger (Tall). White, crimson-carmine center.
Henry Royer (Medium). Tyrian Rose, with lighter shadings.
H. O. Wijers (Tall). White, with bright crimson-carmine eye.
Jeanne d'Arc (Tall). A good standard late white.
Jules Cambon (Medium). Bright rosy magenta, with large white center and light halo.
La Vague (Medium). Pure mauve, with analine-red eye.
L'Evenement (Dwarf). Orange scarlet overlaid with salmon-pink.
Louise Abbema (Dwarf). Very large dwarf, pure white, fine form.
Manzelbrunner. A very large bright soft pink, with a large white eye.
Mme Paul Dutrie (Tall). A delicate lilac-rose, reminding one of some of the beautiful soft pink Orchids.
Mrs. Jenkins (Tall). The best tall early white for massing.
Obergartner Wittig (Medium). Bright magenta, with crimson-carmine eye; large flower and truss; one of the best.
Pantheon (Tall). Bright carmine rose.
Pierre Bayle. Crimson-carmine, overlaid with orange scarlet.
Professor Virchow (Medium). Bright carmine, overlaid with orange scarlet.
Rosenberg. Bright reddish-violet, with blood-red eye, large truss and individual flowers as large as a silver dollar.
Rynstroom. An improved form of the popular variety Pantheon; fine for massing, of a Paul Neyron Rose color.

Selma (Tall). Large flower, pale rose mauve, with claret-red eye.
Siebold (Tall). Bright vermilion-red overlaid with orange scarlet; crimson red eye. 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100.
Sunshine (Dwarf). Large, analine-red with crimson-red eye and light halo.
Von Hochberg (Tall). Bright French purple, one of the finest dark colored varieties. $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100.
Von Lassburg (Medium). The purest white in cultivation, individual flowers larger than any other white.

Any of the above varieties except where noted, 75 cts. per doz.; $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Novelties and Recent Introductions.

Europa. A white variety with very decided crimson-carmine eye; the individual flowers as well as the trusses are very large, entirely distinct.
Frau Anton Buchner. The finest white variety yet introduced, having the largest truss and individual flower of dwarf habit.
Gefion. A new color in Phloxes, a tender peach-blossom pink with bright rose eye. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.
Rheinlander. A beautiful salmon pink with flowers and trusses of immense size, the color of the flower is intensified by a very decided eye of a deep claret-red. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100
Riverton Jewel. One of our own introductions which it gives us great pleasure to recommend, a lively shade of mauve-rose illuminated by a carmine-red eye, a splendid improvement on the popular variety Asia. 30 cts. each; $2.50 per doz.; $18.00 per 100.
Thor. A most beautiful and lively shade of deep salmon-pink suffused and overlaid with a scarlet glow and a light almost white halo around its analine-red eye. $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100.
W. C Egan. One of the finest Phloxes yet introduced, and while the individual flowers according to the color-chart are of a delicate lilac color illuminated by a large bright solferino eye the color effect as a whole is a delicate pleasing shade of soft pink. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.
Widar. A splendid improvement on Edmond Rostand; in color a light reddish-violet, with very large white center, which intensifies the color.
Tragedie. Deep brilliant carmine with blood-red eye. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.
Wanadis. Entirely distinct, a mottling of white and light violet, reminding one of the native Phlox Divaricata Canadensis. The color is intensified by a bright reddish-purple eye, a strong grower producing trusses of immense size. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

Price. Any of the above varieties, except where noted, $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

For full line of seasonable Plants, Bulbs, Seeds, Etc., see our current Wholesale Price List.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif., President; J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., First Vice-President; E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer; S. F. Willard, Jr., Cleveland, O., Assistant Secretary.

Thirty-Third annual meeting, San Francisco, Calif., June 1915.

IT is said the German government will prohibit the export of seeds of all forage crops.

ROBERT FULTON, representing Henry & Lee, New York, expects to reach Chicago February 23.

VISITED CHICAGO: Hon. James S. Michael and H. A. Johns, of the Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co., Sioux City, Ia.

CARTERS, of London, Eng., now have four branch houses in North America. They offer no packets under 10 cents each.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.—The Jones Seed Co., owing to increasing business, has leased a store adjoining its present location.

THERE are 15,000 prisoners, half French, half Russian, in Erfurt. Carl Schmidt, Jr., of Haage & Schmidt, is assisting in guarding them.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—The Sioux City Seed & Nursery Co. reports that the indications in the jobbing trade are for the best business they have had in many years.

CARL CROPP, of Vaughan's Seed Store, says that while shipments of European seeds are coming to hand almost daily, there are still many items which have not arrived.

THE German seed dealers are complaining with some bitterness of the falling off in American trade, a condition which they claim is due to political causes. The real reasons are tardy arrival of German price lists and non-shipment of ordered seeds through fear of non-delivery.

THE government statisticians report that the value of the agricultural products of the United States last year surpassed all previous records, with a total of nearly $10,000,000,000, notwithstanding the heavy reduction in the value of the cotton crop, owing to the decline in European demand as a result of the war.

W. ATLEE BURPEE & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., advise that the mail order business with them in January and the first week in February was ahead of 1913, but slightly behind 1914. The business now is running ahead in number of orders of this time last year and the orders are averaging about the same in size.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade February 17 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.—The W. W. Barnard Co. says the seed business has now opened up very satisfactorily, if anything a little ahead of last year. There is no reason why the seed trade should not enjoy a prosperous season this year.—Vaughan's Seed Store reports January business off but that February business has commenced strong and is running quite a good percentage ahead of last year.

AT A. C. Kendel's Seed Store, Cleveland, O., they say, basing their observations on past experience in other years of hard times, that the trade is in line for a good business this year, but that with the price of seeds, notably grass seeds, jumping up and down as it has been, makes the question of profits uncertain.

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN. — Northrup, King & Co. write as follows, February 16: "Some departments of our business are a trifle behind a year ago, but on the whole we are very well satisfied with our volume of trade. During the past few weeks we have had extreme cold weather and a great many severe storms, which have been very detrimental to some departments of our business."

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—Currie Bros. Co. views the outlook optimistically, saying: "So far we are pretty well satisfied with the way business is opening up this spring. Orders are beginning to come in more or less freely, varying a little as the condition of the weather changes. Orders might be a little larger, but on the whole we have no cause to complain at the prospects, and anticipate a good season."

NEW YORK.—S. D. Woodruff & Sons consider the seed business better than last year to date. Orders are coming forward more freely than they were a year ago and are of larger size. They believe that the hard times help the seedsmen because of the large number of unemployed, a large percentage of which will return to the farm and take up the planting of the crops and naturally look to the seedsmen to supply their wants. They firmly believe that the seedsmen are in for a very good year.

Boddington Creditors Meeting.

At a meeting of the larger creditors of A. T. Boddington, 342 West Fourteenth street, New York, held February 11, the consensus of opinion was shown to be unanimously in favor of continuing the business, looking to the best interests of all concerned. Accordingly a creditors' protective committee was appointed, the following gentlemen being elected to serve thereon: C. W. Scott of the Yokohama Nursery Co., Chas. Schwake of Chas. Schwake & Co., Inc., and Remsen S. Mills. This committee will take full control of the business, Mr. Boddington giving his active co-operation. It was demonstrated that a forced sale at this time would leave creditors absolutely without any dividend whatever, whereas under the economies to be put in force by the creditors' protective committee, and with the co-operation of the creditors themselves, there is every possibility of the business being eventually restored to a profitable basis.

Onion Sets.

Chicago seedsmen are trying to figure out a profit in contracting onion sets at present prices. The grower truckers are asking the same money as in former years. The risks of rainy weather in mid-autumn and of mild damp weather in early winter are as serious as ever they were, yet wholesale jobbers are trying, and perhaps succeeding, in buying at lower prices. Shrewd seedsmen say that such prices would only be exchanging one good dollar for another, even if outdoor and indoor conditions at harvest and storage time were good, but with a normal average three to five years in a row, prices are now below the safety line.

Canners' Cancan.

George W. Drake, secretary of the corn section of the American Canners' Association in presenting some statistics at the annual convention, February 8-12, said, "the canner's profit was 8.7 per cent, the jobber's 21.21 per cent and the retailer's 43.71 per cent. He urged corn canners to spend some of the money on advertising, which they now expend on salesmanship. With one half of what we now spend to place our product we could have a yearly advertising fund of $900,000, $450,000 for a home campaign and $450,000 to secure foreign business."

Wm. C. Breed, who welcomed the delegates on behalf of the Merchants' Association of New York, said, "the American public, the armies of Europe, the world at large must have canned food products. More than three billion cans were prepared and packed last year."

RICHMOND, VA.—T. W. Wood & Sons say: "Considering the backward season and general trade conditions our business is satisfactory. Better weather the past week has made considerable increase and it looks now as though business would be fully as good, if not better, than last year."

DREER'S PEERLESS PINK ASTER

Dreer's Famous American Asters

We offer below a short list of the most important sorts; all of the very highest quality. For complete list, see our Wholesale Catalogue.

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high, bearing on long strong stems their handsome chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, averages 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz::

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. Rich lavender	$0 25	$1 00
Pure White. Extra fine stock	25	1 00
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade	25	1 00
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	25	1 00
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	25	1 00
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple	25	1 00
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	25	1 00
Crimson. Very rich	25	1 00
Finest Mixed. All the colors	25	75

Dreer's "Peerless Pink" Aster.

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink. The color is similar but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other. 50c per trade pkt.; $2.50 per oz.

Queen of the Market Asters.

The standard early flowering variety; good flowers on long stems.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White	$0 20	$0 75
Lavender	20	75
Pink	20	75
Bright Rose	20	75
Purple	20	75
Crimson	20	75
Mixed	15	65

King Asters.

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Dreer's Crimson King. A brilliant new color in this type, which originated with us. It is the richest and deepest crimson variety known to us	$0 50	$3 00
Pink King. Delicate shell-pink	40	2 00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose	40	2 00
White King. Of purest glistening white	50	3 00

Astermums.

This strain of Giant Comet Asters were first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and chrysanthemum-like appearance created quite a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White Astermum	$0 50	$2 50
Pink "	50	2 50
Lavender "	50	3 00

Crego's Giant Comet Asters.

Magnificent fluffy flowers, with long strong stems, the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors, our own saving, of the highest quality.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White. Purest white	$0 30	$1 50
Pink. Delicate shell-pink	30	1 50
Purple. Bright purple	30	1 50
Rose. Rich deep rose	30	1 50
Lavender. A rich deep shade	30	1 50

New York, February 16.—Cucumbers, $1.50 to $2.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 50 cents to $1.25 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 15 cents to 25 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $2.00 to $3.00; lettuce, per strap, $1.00 to $2.00.

Triumph of the Italian Tomato.

The tomato was given to the world by America, but Italy is to-day teaching the rest of the world by example how it should be raised and how it should be preserved. Italian canned tomatoes have practically pushed the American produce out of the English market, and have gained an enormous market in the United States. The Italians raise a solid, meaty tomato of fine color, and it is so packed in the cans that the consumer is not obliged to pay for a large percentage of water.

Canned tomatoes, however, are put up principally for the export trade. The Italians themselves prefer their tomatoes in the form of sauce, or paste, which is nothing more nor less than boiled down tomato pulp, minus the skins and seeds, as set forth in an interesting manner in a report by Commercial Agent J. Alexis Shriver entitled, "Canned-Tomato Industry in Italy," recently issued by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. This sauce is put up in cans and is used by the Italians in a great variety of dishes, of which spaghetti is perhaps the most familiar to Americans.

According to fairly accurate statistics the area planted in tomatoes in Italy is about 22,000 acres, producing about 385,000 tons. The exports to the United States amount to about 20,000,000 pounds of canned tomato and tomato sauce, and some 8,000,000 pounds of the product go to South America. The total value of the tomato exports from Italy is well over $6,000,000.

The skins and seeds that were formerly wasted are now utilized, the former as stock feed and the latter as a source of oil. The crude oil is suitable for soap making and for lamps, and the refined oil is said to be edible. Commercial Agent Shriver's report, Special Agents' Series No. 93, may be obtained from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, at five cents a copy.

Toledo.

VALENTINE BUSINESS FINE.

St. Valentine's day business came up to expectations of all concerned; in fact, the best business of several years for that day was experienced. There was plenty of stock on the market and the demand was lively. Violets and sweet peas easily led in favor, while plants sold surprisingly well. Basket effects found a ready sale. Although many florists had extremely handsome windows, no other advertising was done except by a few individual florists. One florist who sent out a handsomely illustrated folder in colors, did a splendid business. Roses are still scarce, while carnations are plentiful and of splendid quality. Sweet peas and violets are high grade and are selling briskly. Bulbous stock is coming on the market in large quantities and is meeting with a ready sale. Jonquils, tulips and hyacinths are being displayed all over town. Easter lilies and callas are scarce.

NOTES.

If it were ever brought about that the wishes of the licensed firemen's union should become operative upon the florist and gardener, namely that all firemen are to have a license, that they must belong to the union, and that three shifts must be provided, this would mean the ruination of many a legitimate business man who is not making an abnormal profit at any time. Yet that is what they are trying to do in this city. The state law says that all boilers registering over 30 pounds of steam pressure must be inspected once a year and must be operated by licensed firemen who are required to take a state examination. In order to convince the state of the injustice of such a regulation, the florists and gardeners invited the state deputy boiler inspector to meet with them in Toledo, which he did. The state deputy listened to the reasoning as above mentioned of the florists and was favorably impressed by the justice of their plea. He promised to take the matter up with the state industrial commission and to notify them of the result.

Mrs. J. B. Freeman had a very effective St. Valentine display window that brought in a lot of business for her. Other fine windows were those of Feniger, on Adams street, Max Spanner, on Summit, and the White-June Company, on Madison street.

Krueger Bros., East Toledo wholesalers and growers, had a splendid stock of sweet peas for St. Valentine's day and cleaned up their stock in a very satisfactory manner. Their Easter bulbous stock is in excellent condition.

Christ Winterich, with his son, both of Defiance, Ohio, were in this city February 12 to attend the Toledo auto show. Mr. Winterich was very optimistic about his stock and his prospects for a good year's business.

George Bayer & Son sold all the violets they could possibly cut on St. Valentine's day. The crop was of a high grade quality.

Barney Karsor reports that business has been picking up of late and that he expects a very satisfactory spring trade. K.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX.—Florists here have not had much heavy business this winter, but trade seems to be better than in coast towns, as the effect of the war does not appear to be felt so much here, although money is tight.

THE FAMOUS

which we secured from the introducers last year, we planted, and it proved all and more than they claimed for it. We decided not to sell the fruit, as it looked too valuable to let go that way, so we have a limited amount of seed. One lady canned a few, and when placed on the table on lettuce leaves, the tomato retained its form and made an appetizing sight. Out of bushels none cracked, and all were ripe to the stem, and skin was taken off without cutting or scalding. 25c per pkg. of about 100 seeds, 5 pkgs. for $1.00.

ST. VALENTINE'S DEMAND HEAVY.

St. Valentine's day had a wonderful effect on business here, valentine parties were numerous and the call for flowers for these occasions, not only in the city proper, but from all over the state, was quite heavy. The stores made special efforts in window displays of things pertinent to this saint's day, and, without a doubt the general good run of business experienced is traceable directly to the florists themselves in creating the demand by judicious advertising. Roses coming in from the north seem to be off in both color and substance; there must have been a lack of sunshine where they were grown. We have sunshine to spare here at this time of the year.

NOTES.

The Stiles Co. are cutting plenty of snapdragons and sweet peas just now, the former mentioned flower being of especially good grade.

Furrow & Company are sending in a regular supply of well-grown bulbous flowers from their Guthrie greenhouses.

Metairie Ridge Nurs. Co. Awarded Damages

A valuation of $300 was placed on the right of way through the Metairie Ridge Nursery Co.'s property, at New Orleans, La., and damages of $450 allowed against the Orleans-Kenner Electric railway, by a jury, February 4, in Judge Fleury's court in Gretna. The nursery company fought the transversing of its property with every legal weapon at hand. An injunction was first sought to prevent the company entering upon its property. This refused, a mandamus was then asked of the supreme court directing Judge Fleury to issue the injunction. This also was refused, and the expropriation proceedings went forward to the award of damages.

Evergreens in America.

In addressing the North Shore Horticultural Society, Lake Forest, Ill., January 15, 1915, A. H. Hill, of Dundee, Ill., made the statement that it is only within comparatively recent years that the American landscape architect, gardener and planter has awakened to the many and varied uses of evergreens, and the important part they must necessarily take in garden making, if permanent and lasting effects are desired. This is a new country (a lusty infant, it is true) growing and learning fast, but in the mad race for money during the last hundred years, in the main, it can be said that but scant interest has been given to permanency. Results are wanted in a day or week, at best a few months. Quick growing, short-lived material has been used with never a thought for the future, but planters are now waking up to the fact that something is lacking; that something which gives solidity, strength and virility so noticeable in European gardens, where the use of evergreens has predominated for centuries.

But we are learning fast. Fifty years ago it could be said that the average ornamental planting on a country estate consisted of 75 per cent deciduous stock and 25 per cent evergreens; whereas, today, in the eastern part of the United States, along the Atlantic coast, the ratio is 65 per cent evergreen stock and 35 per cent deciduous, and this ratio is gradually spreading westward. An example of how this works out with the average American business man is as follows:

A prominent man in one of our large middle west cities, who had spent 45 years of his life in money making, suddenly found himself worth several million dollars. A large income, and a desire to turn his attention to other things besides grinding out money, took him on extended travels through the eastern states and Europe, where he admired the many beautiful estates and examples of landscape gardening, which aroused his enthusiasm for both building and landscape architecture. When he reached home, his cramped, city quarters were so distasteful to him, in contrast to the wonders, beauty and freedom of the homes and gardens he had seen, he decided he must have something of like nature for himself. So he secured the services of the best architect in the country, who gave him a magnificent house complete in every detail, built on a tract of ground some 45 acres in extent, just adjacent to the city. He spent a small fortune on this magnificent structure, and then the day arrived when everything was completed, and behold what did he see—a bare, uninviting prison-like structure, and not until then did he realize that something was lacking. So, discouraged, he wondered what to do, when along came the tree agent, into whose hands he placed the planting of his grounds. So many shrubs for so many dollars.

It is needless to go into details of how this venture turned out, but, suffice it is to say that two or three years later he was still dissatisfied; the plantings consisted of a miscellaneous mass of many varieties, all planted entirely inharmoniously and without regard to proper arrangement. His next experience was with a landscape gardener, who, while very conscientious, was not informed of the value of evergreens in the landscape, and rarely used them, chiefly because most of his clients looked to price rather than results, with a result that almost 98 per cent of his planting stock was planted for summer effects only. This man was still dissatisfied, and not until he had traveled more, and made more extensive and intensive study of the matter, did he realize that the permanent and magnificent all-the-year-round effects of the old world century old gardens were wanted, and learned the value and necessity of evergreens.

In a word, he learned that you plant annuals for a season, shrubs and perennials for a few seasons and evergreens for a lifetime and your posterity.

Good, strong, well-established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly

Valuable New Roses

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, and Prince E. C. D'Arenberg.

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly, and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA. No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer, and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively. Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY. This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red, and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer, and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG. This variety might well have been termed Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color, the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly, and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

We will be glad to quote on application prices on all the newer and standard varieties—strong grafted plants ready in March.

OPHELIA, ONE OF THE FEW THAT HAS PROVEN ITS WORTH

We have grown this magnificent rose the past season, with most gratifying results. As a free and vigorous grower and great producer it has no equal. It sets bud freely in the short days of winter, and is now coming in with a heavy midwinter crop, doing equally well on grafts or own roots.

MRS. GEORGE SHAWYER is at present more favorably thought of than ever, and we intend to again plant it heavily this season. As a money getter, our experience has proven its superiority over all sorts, and having grown extensively on own roots and grafts, we have no hesitancy in stating that like Sunburst, it does better on own roots.

We will have a splendid lot of both varieties, (grafts and own root), ready for shipment about the middle of March, together with a choice lot of Sunburst, Ward, Prince d' Arenberg, White and Pink Killarney, cutting taken from sand the latter part of December. Houston, Tex.

The February meeting of the florists' club was well attended and developed much enthusiasm. Discussions of the pretty yards' contest proposition gave occasion for a number of the members to refer to the success of the contest of last year and the large amount of permanent results that came from it. This year the club will pay more attention to assisting contestants by advising them, in matters of flowers, soil, seeds and arrangement of grounds. Rules of the contest will be prepared and published at the time the club is ready to publish a complete list of prizes.

The Houston annual flower show was discussed, and all members seemed to be agreed on the point that more attention will be given to amateur exhibits this year than last year.

T.

Tri-City Florists' Club.

The February meeting of the Tri-City Florists' Club was held at the residence of Henry Pauli, Davenport, Ia., with a good attendance. A. Anderson showed a vase of his new seedling white carnation, No. 100. It is the largest ever seen in this vicinity, with good calyx, and though it was quite double, showed no sign of splitting. President John Staack was chosen as delegate, with L. Stapp alternate, to the convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association at Urbana, March 1-2, with the object of inviting the State Association to meet in Moline, or Rock Island, next year. The next meeting, which will be March 11, with election of officers for the ensuing year, will be held at the residence of L. Stapp, Rock Island, Ill.

THE LEEDLE FLORAL COMPANY, SPRINGFIELD, OHIO.

Dayton, O.

One of the most elaborate floral and landscape gardening expositions ever given in the Miami valley will be opened in this city, Monday, March 1. The exposition will be participated in by florists and gardeners from all western Ohio, and Manager W. Allen Barber announces that the enterprise has received the indorsement of the local association as well as the commercial organization, and that applications for floor space have already been received. Floor plans will be forwarded to any address upon application.

The exhibits will consist of floral and nursery stock, wedding and funeral decorations, and designs for lawns, parks and highways. The hall will be beautifully decorated with lattice work, miniature gardens, parks and forests, and there will be lectures illustrated with moving pictures and stereopticon views each day.

Many eastern people who are interested in gardens, parks and city plannings are expected to attend the exposition. T.

TAMPA, FLA.—The executive committee of the Florida State Horticultural Society met February 5 and decided that the annual meeting would be held April 13-16, inclusive, in this city.

FALL RIVER, MASS.—Geo. E. Lindeman, formerly with Cobb, Bates & Yerxa Co., has opened a flower store on his own account at 1137 Pleasant street. Previous to coming here Mr. Lindeman was with Chas. Thorley, New York, Fleischman, New York, and the Atlanta Floral Co., Atlanta, Ga.

Milwaukee Florists' Club.

With new headquarters, a new, live president, Wm. R. Schroeder, and an apparently new spirit, the Milwaukee Florists' Club held its meeting, February 4, with a good attendance. The annual dinner, previous to the meeting, was enjoyed by all, thanks to the entertainment committee, consisting of Walter Halliday, chairman; Nic Zweifel and A. Hare. The greater part of the meeting was taken up with the discussion of St. Valentine's day advertising in the daily newspapers. The press committee, consisting of Arthur Leidiger, chairman; Richard Leitz, and the club's secretary, appointed at the January meeting, reported that all those approached took kindly to the idea and promised their financial support. The club also voted an amount to be turned over to the press committee, and thought it advisable to have the club's name appear in the ad. in some form. Should this first venture be a success, advertising of this kind will be run oftener and on a larger scale.

While the Wisconsin state board of agriculture does not give the floricultural end of the Wisconsin state fair as much consideration as received in other states, President Schroeder reappointed the committee of 1914, namely H. V. Hunkel, C. C. Pollworth and James Livingstone, and we look to them for improvements in the premium list, and a more conspicuous place, where the professional florists can exhibit their displays.

There was considerable talk on the subject of flower shows, but from present indications none will be held in this city in the near future.

EUGENE OESTREICHER, Sec'y.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—H. G. Street, superintendent of the Illinois Experiment Station, Hebron, will deliver an address on "Fruit Culture, What Variety to Plant, When and How to Spray and Prune," before the North Shore Horticultural Society February 19.

"We Understand Our Business Thoroughly"

What They Say:

Jan. 20, 1915
Willens Construction Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen: The greenhouses you built for me last summer and with which I am so well pleased, received several severe tests within the last few days. During one cold spell of 30 degrees below, I easily maintained the desired temperature in the greenhouses.

I am well pleased with the material and also your pleasant business methods and am convinced that I have the finest greenhouses in Nebraska.

Yours very truly,
L. Buckendorf,
Norfolk, Neb.

Back to Boiler SYSTEM

At its best in the Greenhouse

It isn't just one instance—but hundreds of times—wherever installations are made, in fact—that the Morehead System "makes good" in the greenhouse. There is nothing to equal the time, fuel and labor saving qualities of the Morehead. It drains your steam apparatus perfectly and maintains that even temperature so necessary to good flower growing.

Our engineers will give you all the facts.

STIMULANT TO EASTER BUYING.

Economy in Early Sales.

"There is not much in common between shoes and flowers, but I got the germ of a good advertising idea from one of these make-your-feet-glad fellows."

This observation was from our neighborhood florist. I sometimes dropped in on him at his modern plant of an evening to feast two of my senses, after having satisfied a grosser one at my own dinner table.

"It was simple enough, and I don't see why I never thought of it myself, in the first place," he continued, when pressed for an explanation. "One day I got a circular letter from him with my name at the top in typewriting. It stated that he was going to have a clearance sale, and enumerated a few of the price reductions he was making."

Here my friend stopped and gave deliberate attention, in the lighting, to a cigar I had handed him when I first came in.

"There is nothing original in a cheap sale," I protested. "To make use of what is said to be the shortest rhyme in the English language, we may conclude that 'Adam had 'em,' granting the theory that he engaged in some standard mercantile pursuit after leaving the Garden. The kind of advertising you describe is commonplace. Anyway, Peters, you must not try to make me believe that florists—who are not merchants in the accepted sense—ever have bargain occasions."

"I was listening for you to say something like that. Have you got another match? Curb your arbitrary instincts till I finish my story."

It will be seen that Peters and I were pretty good friends, when we could talk to each other in such fashion.

"What I was going to tell you," he resumed, "was that the letter stated that for three days prior to the sale being opened to the general public through newspaper announcement, the shoe man was going to give his regular customers the benefit of choice of stock. Would I not come in at my earliest convenience and pick out my shoes while the picking was good, or words to that effect.

"Now, that struck me as being clever," continued the florist. "I don't know whether it was his idea or not, but it was new to me. You see, from the customers' standpoint, it was courteous and appreciative. From the dealer's standpoint, it jollied the customer, was pointedly suggestive in making him think of shoe buying, and was aimed to bring the cream of the sale's trade into the store when stock and service were at their best. I had never bought but one pair of shoes of the man. I suppose he had a record of my name through the delivery. My wife went down and made a purchase. She said the store was having a good trade.

"Well, it occurred to me that I could use that idea, with some variations. Next Easter time I made a list of all the live names that were on my books and sent them a circular letter. I called their attention to the great demand we always had for Easter flowers, and to the fact that people were often disappointed in getting just what they wanted because of their delay. It was my desire, I stated to take special care of regular customers. Up to a certain date I could insure their satisfaction in the matter, and would be pleased to have them call or telephone their orders previous to the time mentioned. I indulged in some nice description about features of stock.

"The result was beyond all expectations. Business began to get lively right away. Over and over again I was thanked for my thoughtfulness and partiality for my regular patrons. I sold more flowers than ever before and the average size of the orders was better. The increase in Easter business was at least twenty per cent. Another thing, the trade was handled with less confusion and expense. Early buying is usually good buying, and it gives a chance to gauge my orders with the growers. I am sure many people bought flowers that would have forgotten or neglected it altogether but for my suggestion.

"This happened two years ago. I have tried the plan out two Easters and one Christmas season with increasing good results. I consider it now a regular part of the business. Maybe the idea isn't new to florists in other towns, but so far as I know I am the only one here that makes use of it. I am glad the shoe man didn't have it patented."

Our Gerardias.

Among the most regal of our summer wildflowers are the false foxgloves of the genus gerardia. Belonging, as do the true foxgloves to the figwort family (scrophulariaceæ), they are all considered to be clandestine or root parasites, says Dr. W. W. Bailey in the American Botanist. This fact is diagnosed by their habit of blackening in the process of drying. Even the most rapid operators often fail to procure good specimens. With us in New England, the plants are about equally divided by color into two groups. In the one wherein the flowers are yellow, the plants are large and stately, with bell-like corollas an inch or more in length. The species most familiar to us is G. pedicularia, which is viscid and glandular with deeply cut leaves and corollas thin and delicate in texture. It is generally from one to two feet high and when found is often abundant. In this species the corollas are almost always pierced by bees near the base. They probably find the hairy stamens an impediment. Gerardia flava grows much more scattered and in the deep woods rather than, as is the case with the preceding, on the borders. It is a showy plant to meet with in a lonely wood path and can usually be taken home in good condition, while the blossoms of pedicularia fall too easily. Another tall species formerly known as the oak-leaved (quercifolia) is now known as Gerardia virginica. In most respects it is much like the last except for its often deeply parted, or even twice parted leaves. It extends from Maine to Minnesota and southward. In the other group of gerardias, the plants are all low, some of them even dwarf and the flowers of varying shades of rose-purple. These usually grow in low sandy soil and are best known through the common purple gerardia, found everywhere. One who gathers it for the first time expects to reach home with a pretty bouquet but finds his flowers soon fall. A kindred species, G. tenuifolia, very like in appearance but with lighter colored flowers, supported on thread-like stems, grows in dry copses and along woody pathways. Then, lastly, in salt marshes one finds G. maritima, also purple and with thick, fleshy leaves, the sign of a halophyte. Truly is gerardia an interesting genus, and well would it repay cultivation did not its parasitic habit render that nearly impossible. To grow both plant and host together has hitherto nearly defied accomplishment. It may be, however, that with increased knowledge, these mysteries of growth may be solved.

The Vacant Chair.

This is a conventional design generally ordered by members of a society who have lost their president. The illustration shows the design to have been quite lavishly filled with an assortment of flowers. A more compact form of arrangement following the lines of the article to be represented is perhaps desirable. There is no question, however, as to what is intended and the piece is composed of well selected flowers and withall is well balanced. K.

Quickening a Dull Time.

When the weather is fine it appears to add energy, to buoy up, to put new life and animation into each individual. The step is springy and more lively, it seems a pleasure to do things and everybody comments on the fine day and there is general enthusiasm. It is so different when it is wet and disagreeable, the buoyant spirit goes down, and things appear to drag instead of galloping along as before. It is the same with business; when everybody is hustling and order files are full and fat, there is enthusiasm galore and the day passes quickly; but, like rainy days, dull times will creep in and one wonders where all the people have gone to. There are men who are only busy when there are orders to be filled; when the file is cleared they stand around and complain and wait for something to turn up. This is not the case in the well managed store. Keeping everybody busy is one of the secrets of success—how to do it is the result of experience and intuition on the part of the managing head. Most men would rather be busy than idle, but the great majority do not see the work and it must be pointed out to them. In nearly every large business establishment there are monthly, or perhaps oftener, meetings of the heads of departments, who discuss what is best to be done in this or that emergency, and plan for extensions and a larger volume of business.

The ordinary flower shop with a routine that is carried on from day to day, filling the orders as they come and nothing more, is not likely to forge ahead. What is needed here are features; something a little above the ordinary, displays that will attract attention and hold it. Like the Scotchman's "I'll hit you and there it is." there must be a punch to it, which lands before they know it, and a favorable impression is made that counts in money at once or in the near future.

Dull days should put the manager on his mettle and his time should be divided between keeping the hands busy and bidding for new business. When a feature has been determined upon, his trade should know of it at once. Keeping one's patrons posted

GUDE'S FLOWERS

Will Be Appreciated

Place an order with Gude and you can rest assured that the recipient will be delighted. Here's the reason: The order will be filled with choice home-grown flowers, artistically arranged in a neat box, and promptly delivered at any time you wish.

You'll be pleased with the prices, too. Just as a trial, let us fill your next order, and see if you don't get better satisfaction. Especial care given to telephone orders.

Our floral tokens are most impressive. Prices always reasonable.

AN ADVERTISEMENT THAT COMMANDS ATTENTION.

and familiar with your stock as the seasons change is splendid business. This is also appreciated by customers and suggests opportunities when flowers, from your stock, are just the right thing. Talk about the table fernery, boost it and tell of your stock of the hardy, healthy plants of the right varieties that are sure to keep in the house. Get the fern pans and dishes together, fill some of them, display them to look their best and watch the result. Have a nice showing of azaleas; when the card goes out some will call to see them and possibly purchase. Follow this with a daffodil display; bring out the flower holders and shallow dishes and the tumbler baskets filled daintily and ribboned. They appeal to those of moderate means, the people that Lincoln said "God must love, because he made so many of them."

When roses are plentiful there is a great message to send out, as everybody loves the rose. They can be arranged in the shallow bowls and the small baskets more effectively than almost any other flower. Feature plants of Primula malacoides, the most dainty and profusely flowered of the family; they work up into beautiful baskets and hampers. The miniature colonial bouquets with their Frenchy paper adornments, cost little but the time it takes to make them up, yet they are very attractive and valuable as a feature. A display of corsage bouquets illustrating the various styles in which the flowers most favored for this class of work may be combined, together with suitable ribbons and pins, is sure to attract attention and bring business.

Specimens of decorative work are always much admired, such as flowers for a wedding, the kneeling stool, shepherds' crooks with flowers and ribbons, some bouquets and baskets for the flower girls make a pretty picture and one that may be productive of much business. Luncheon and dinner tables, with the silver and china in place, and harmonious color effects, worked out in the artist's best style with the flowers of the season, should be one of the best features.

The above are but a few of the many plants and flowers that may be brought into the spotlight and made to enliven and encourage business during the dull spells. These and similar features are sure to give the store a bright, progressive look, which is a great factor in creating new business.

VACANT CHAIR.

Bedding Plants.

PREPARATIONS FOR SPRING.

To be sure of having first-class stock of the various kinds of bedding plants they must be given close attention from this time on until the indoor season closes and they are planted outdoors. The stock plants that are depended upon to produce cuttings should be cleaned up and given a place where they will get plenty of light and receive daily attention to their needs as regards watering, airing, etc.

After seeing that everything is done to induce the stock plants to produce cuttings, the propagating houses should be put in readiness to receive them, as all the available space will have to be utilized to the limit to be able to work up a sufficient number of plants that will be just right at the time needed. Nearly all the plants used for bedding purposes are fast growers, and require to be worked quickly and on time to safeguard them against getting hard or developing into spindly, drawn out plants. Ample room and plenty of fresh air are both essential to the successful culture of these plants, and it is a fight from start to finish to prevent the many kinds of insects getting the upper hand and checking the plant's growth.

Geraniums, as one of the leading bedding plants, should receive first attention, the plants propagated last fall and carried over winter in 2¼-inch pots, should now be well established in 3-inch pots. If this is not so, they should be potted into 3-inch without any further delay, which will give them time to be ready for shifting into 4-inch before the end of March. It will take these plants all of the time from March until the middle of May to get well established and nicely in bloom. Geranium plants without a bloom and bud on them are very slow sellers, but nice dwarf plants, well in bud and bloom, move quickly. Most customers like to select their own bedding plants, personally spending a lot of time doing the selecting, and if there is not a big lot of well flowered plants to pick from, they go away dissatisfied and will buy somewhere else, or many times not at all. Geraniums should not be given a high temperature. The best plants are produced when they are grown cool and the soil at the roots held a little on the dry side rather than overwet. The popular standard varieties may be counted on the fingers of one hand. White, salmon pink, rose pink, dark red and scarlet are the colors most called for, and the semi-double varieties are now planted almost entirely. There are very many beautiful colors and large size flowers among the newer single varieties, and they are grand while growing under glass, but it is a poor business policy to plant them outdoors because the flowers do not stand the wind and many of the varieties do not grow well in our hot climate. When the plants are in good growing condition, and are large enough to permit it, the tops can be taken off for cuttings for a while yet, but do not carry this to the extreme by chopping the plants all to pieces; also do not do any topping after March 20, or the plants will be very late in blooming.

Cuttings of heliotropes, fuchsias, petunias, impatiens and all other soft-wooded plants of this character should be propagated right along now. Salvia, Mme. Salleroi, dwarf ageratum, sweet alyssum and double lobelia should also receive attention.

It is a little early yet to start putting out the alternantheras into the hotbeds, but if the required numbers are not accounted for, now is the time to run in some cuttings—these will be ready for potting just about the time of starting up the hotbeds. Commence propagating and working along the coleus and achyranthes; these are more tender than most of the bedding plants and require greater heat. It is also now time to overhaul and rebox the echeverias. It is generally a problem to find room for large quantities of stock in flats, but these plants must receive attention, even if it becomes necessary to build shelves to hold them. Echeverias must be grown near the light, so that there is not any danger of them becoming drawn; to leave them standing around in dark, shady places will quickly ruin them.

January-sown pansy plants will now be ready for transplanting. Give them a light, live soil to encourage quick growth, so that they will be in shape for planting out in the cold frames as soon as the weather becomes favorable.

The vines for vases and window-boxes should also come in for attention at this time. If the vincas have become potbound and the soil at the roots worn out, give them a shift, either into the same size pot, or a little larger, but it should be borne in mind that the larger pot gives the plants so much heavier clumps of roots, making the work of filling cases or boxes a very much more difficult job. Besides the vinca, the English ivy is being used more extensively every year. They are slower growers than the vincas and should have a place where the vines can hang down for their proper development.

Seeds of single lobelia, bellis, snapdragon, verbena and other annuals should be sown now. Use a very light soil, to which is added a liberal amount of sharp sand. As quickly as the seedlings are large enough to handle do not delay the transplanting.

PLANT NOTES.

Seeds for March Sowing.

The middle of March is the proper time for the sowing of the main crop of summer annuals. The seedsmen have seen that the growers have the catalogues, and the lists of the wants for the year should be made out at once, if not already done, and the seeds procured and sown. How often have we seen good growers spending valuable time during the busy days of May and June hunting for some small stock that could have been easily grown, but was neglected at the proper time. It is a good time now to look back at the sales of the last year or two and note what lines of stock were in short supply or were carelessly omitted. Such matters as this are the little things that count in a successful business, for the time taken in hunting up and procuring the cheaper kinds of stock during the busy season more than eats up all the profit received in handling it. The seeds that should be sown now are almost endless in variety, and they include asters, Phlox Drummondii, zinnias, marigolds, balsams, antirrhinums, begonias, calendula, celosias, cobæas, cosmos, gauras, mignonette, nicotianas nasturtiums, petunias, salpiglossis, ricinus, salvias, scabiosa, stocks, thunbergias and others that may be demanded. With the exception of Cobæa scandens, mignonette and ricinus, which should be sown in pots, these can all be sown in flats and as soon as large enough transplanted to pots or spaced in flats, and good stock be had for summer bedding.

Iceland Poppies.

A beautiful cut flower for summer use not often grown is the Iceland poppy. While it is a perennial, yet it can be treated as an annual if the seed is sown early and the plants transplanted. Seeds sown in March will bloom the coming summer, and the varieties of color range through the yellow and orange to white. The petals have a peculiar satiny texture and are beautifully crumpled, and if the flowers are picked in the early morning they will stand in water for a long time and are very decorative. There are few annuals that will attract more attention than a vase of these lovely poppies arranged with apporpriate green, and besides they have a delicious fragrance. They are easily grown, and if the flowers are kept picked will continue to bloom all summer. Another poppy that can be grown for cut flowers is the Shirley poppy, but the flowers do not last as well as the Iceland poppies.

Camellias.

While it is a question if the camellia will ever become as popular as it was years ago, yet there seems to be a growing demand for the blooms of the "Japonica" as it was so familiarly known to the grandparents of the present generation, and the flowers are well adapted to certain classes of work or occasions. A few dwarf plants are now also seen in flower in some of the stores. They are easily grown, the prime requisite being a cool house. one with a night temperature of 45 degrees to 50 degrees, and the constant care throughout the year that all hard-wooded plants require. The large specimens which are grown for cut blooms may be planted in the ground of the house, first spading in a quantity of leaf-mold and rotted cow manure. The smaller plants are generally grown in pots, firmly planted in the same kind of soil, with plenty of drainage. They do not need repotting often and when done the shift should be to only one size larger, and this should be done just after the plant is through flowering, for it then starts to make its growth for another season. When the growth starts the plants should be given plenty of water and frequently syringed; in fact, careful watering is the one thing necessary in their culture. They should never become dry, and during the hot days of summer frequent syringings are required, which also greatly assists in keeping down mealy bug and scale, the only two insects to which the plant is subject. The cause of the buds dropping, which will sometimes occur, can invariably be traced to the plant becoming dry some time during its growth. During the summer, heavy shade over the plants will be required and an abundance of air should be provided at this time.

Lilacs for Easter.

A large variety of blooming plants can be grown for Easter, and dwarf, shapely lilacs are appreciated by all flower lovers, and the cut sprays have now become a standard winter flower. For the pot plants the imported budded stock is preferable, but for cut blooms any lilac may be lifted and they force quickly and easily in a warm house. The varieties most grown for pot plants are Marie Lagraye, white, and Charles X, purple. Four weeks in a temperature of 65 degrees will bring them into flower. The plants when placed in the greenhouse should be syringed several times a day in order to assist the buds to swell and kept in a dark place. As soon as the buds begin to open the plants can be placed in full sunlight. The common lilac can be forced in the same manner. A bush, which is well set with flower buds, and these are easily distinguished from the leaf buds, can be lifted and planted in a bench and will furnish fine sprays of flowers. If the plant is kept shaded from the sun by spreading a heavy cloth over it the flowers of the purple varieties will be white when forced. The plants will require plenty of water, for they make but little root growth and bloom upon the vitality which has been stored.

Rambler Roses.

The plants of rambler roses that are intended for Easter blooming should now be showing color and if they are not, they will require quite a little forcing to have them in the best of condition for that date. If the plants are at all potbound, watering with liquid manure will be of great assistance to them and stimulate the flowers and make them much larger and an addition of soot to this will intensify the color. The plants will often, when setting the buds, make long growths from the base of the plants; these should be cut out, for they are taking much strength that should go into the flowers. These canes can be made into cuttings and propagated and will make small plants for next year's growing or can be planted outside and grown on for stock for the future.

There is always a good demand for well-grown pot ramblers for Decoration day and early June, and plants started now will be in the best of condition at that time. They can be started in a cool house and frequently syringed until the eyes break, when they can be moved into warmer quarters and full sunlight. For June decoration there is nothing better in blooming plants than Crimson Rambler and the other rambler roses and hydrangeas; they make a beautiful combination and are also very decorative for porches.

Surgery for Sick Trees.

A cavity in a decayed tree is something like a cavity in a decayed tooth. If an unreliable tree surgeon who has been called in to save the tree only partially removes the diseased part of the wood, uses no antiseptic coatings in the cavity, and fills it up with cement, the tree is no more cured than is a person whose decayed tooth has not been properly filled by a dentist. The only difference is that after the tree cavity has been covered, if the work has not been properly done, the tree has no way of making its trouble known except by further decay. Within the last decade there has been a great increase in demand for surgeons to repair decaying shade trees, but the possibilities of practicing fraud in this profession, like the instance just cited, have tempted so many unreliable people to dabble in the science that tree surgery has fallen somewhat into disrepute. The department of agriculture realizes that commercial tree surgery should occupy a high place in the estimation of the public, and has recently issued a pamphlet entitled "Practical Tree Surgery," wherein suggestions are made for improvement along these lines.

As in all professions, there are reliable and unreliable men and firms competing for contracts in tree surgery. In recent years so many occasions have arisen when property owners felt the necessity of calling in commercial tree surgeons to attend to their trees that there are now numerous firms, both honest and dishonest, engaged in the work. Usually tree surgery is practiced in connection with some nearly related line, but often it is taken up as a business of itself. When a blight such as the chestnut bark disease infects the trees of a district, the community, or individuals in it, will often spend considerable money to control ravages which may rob the whole district of its trees. An affection like the chestnut bark disease is contagious. It requires scientific knowledge of the disease to know whether an affected tree should be destroyed at once or is worth treating. It requires scientific training to understand the manner of growth of the fungi causing the disease and what treatment is best. Many individuals who have had faith in tree surgery have lost it through following the advice of unreliable tree surgeons who claimed to be able to diagnose a case, but whose main interest was to collect a good sum of money for their work.

PRUNING HOOKS AND CLIMBING DEVICES.

Besides the careless filling of decayed cavities in trees, there are other practices of certain so-called "tree surgeons" that do the trees more harm than good. Many of these "surgeons," as well as the people who employ them, do not realize the danger arising from fresh injuries to a tree. The tree owner should realize that prompt attendance to fresh injuries will largely do away with the need of tree surgery 15 or 20 years hence. The tree surgeons must realize that if they make fresh injuries in the living bark, when treating decayed portions, they are laying the tree open to more dangers of infection that will result in further decay. Just as a person is subject to infection through cuts and scratches, trees are rendered subject to infection by having their living bark torn. Notwithstanding this, many tree surgeons use pruning hooks and climbing spurs and cut fresh gashes in the tree. To break off small dead branches a workman may use a long pruning hook as though it were a club. In doing so the hook usually causes injury to the young bark nearby. Every new wound may furnish a new point of entrance for decay, even though the old dead branch may have been removed. The use of climbing spurs should be particularly avoided on trees in vicinities where there is a contagious infection. They simply render the treated tree all the more liable to catch the disease which is "in the air." All properly equipped firms of commercial surgeons should have ladders that would reach 40 or more feet into a tree. Ladders, ropes and rubber-soled shoes will allow a man to reach practically every part. Reliable estimates indicate that it takes somewhat longer (perhaps 25 per cent on an average) to do work on a tree when these are used instead of climbing spurs, and this is one reason why many firms who value remuneration more than reputation use the spurs.

TO MINIMIZE UNRELIABILITY.

The department is suggesting a plan that may help put commercial tree surgery on a better basis. Owners are urged to have a definite written contract with the tree surgeons they employ, and the following is suggested as a model for such contract:

(1) No climbing spurs shall be used on any part of a tree.

(2) The shoes worn by the workmen shall have soft rubber bottoms.

(3) Ordinary commercial orange shellac shall be applied to cover the cut edges of sapwood and cambium (which is the soft formative tissue from which the new wood and bark originate) within five minutes after the final trimming cut is made.

(4) All cut or shellacked surfaces shall be painted with commercial creosote, followed by thick coal tar.

(5) All diseased, rotten, discolored, water-soaked, or insect-eaten wood shall be removed in cavity work and the cavity inspected by the owner or his agent before it is filled.

(6) Only a good grade of Portland cement and clean, sharp sand in no weaker mixture than 1 to 3 shall be used to fill cavities.

(7) The contractor shall repair free of expense any defects that may appear in the work within one year.

If the owner prefers to have a cavity filled with asphalt or other material instead of cement, the contract can be altered accordingly. If it is desirable to substitute some other preparation for shellac, this can be done. Similarly, under certain conditions, various other modifications may be made, although alterations in Nos. 1, 2, 5 and 7 should be made with caution. It may so happen that if all insect-eaten wood is removed, the tree may be dangerously weakened; under such conditions the diseased matter can be removed to solid wood and the cavity fumigated. Other suggestions along these lines may be found in the pamphlet issued by the department.

The department realizes that this science is comparatively new and that methods in the near future may be developed that will prove far superior to some now in common use. It therefore invites correspondence either from individuals or firms concerning new methods of treatment and is prepared to advise regarding any particular method so far as experimental results will permit. The cooperation of all who are interested is necessary for this work. All interested are urged to write for the new bulletin.—Dept. of Agriculture News-Letter.

ROSE NOTES.

Propagating.

January and February are two of the best months for rose propagating, as there is usually very cold weather at this time and the extra heat required for this work can be kept constantly under the sand, owing to steady firing, and the wood seems to root readily at this time.

It will be noticed that during the latter part of January the plants begin to take on more vigor and produce a new lot of growth admirably adapted to cutting, and unless one is working up stock of some new variety, they need not start the cuttings until the latter part of January as then there will be better wood and to remove it will not have the same tendency to retard the growth of the plants as it would three weeks earlier, when the plants are practically at a standstill, following the holiday cut. As a rule, if one grafts their stock, one only uses the strongest flowering wood, and the smaller growths are pinched, causing no more check to the plants than the usual cutting of the blooms, but where the propagating is done by rooting the cuttings, one has to use greater care or too much good wood will be taken for the good of the plants. So we would suggest going rather light for the first lot of cuttings, and follow the plan of doing some propagating every two or three weeks, particularly if the range is a small one. In this way the best of wood can be selected and with less strain on the plants.

It is most essential to have a carefully designed bed or bench for the cuttings, preferably a house built especially for this purpose, but we have often seen on some small range, a very practical arrangement for the cuttings, as the propagating house at the start could not be afforded, at least. There are certain conditions that must be present in order to get good strikes, and they may be summed up as follows: A good sound propagating bed to hold three inches of sand, and so situated as to receive plenty of sunshine if necessary and also a pure circulation of air (no draughts), with certain heat sufficient to bring the temperature to 65° and the overhead temperature from 58° to 60°. The bench can be curtained off or the heat retained by enclosing the coils with boards, building paper, etc. As the water usually reaches a very low temperature, which is sure to chill the sand at this season, it is best to sink a barrel under the bench and keep it always filled with fresh water; this water naturally adapts itself to the temperature of the house, which is right. A small lump of lime the size of a pigeon egg dropped into the barrel daily will keep the water pure and sweet. Remember that cleanliness in the propagating house is absolutely necessary; no decayed boards, trash or trimmings from the cuttings should be allowed to lay around. Give the bench a good coat of hot lime wash and sprinkle the walks and surroundings every day or so freely with air-slacked lime.

The sand required is a good sharp, clean sand of medium grade, about like fine granulated sugar. Bank sand is best, as it contains no vegetable matter. We have often seen excellent wood and careful preparation of no avail as the sand used was taken from the side of the road, or was too full of clay, which is so easily over watered. A sand such as rotten rock, or one that contains more or less clay, will give one a good strike providing the first watering is thorough and the cuttings are sprayed afterward, as one watering will in most instances be enough. The sharp sand, as described above, is by far the best as it is almost impossible to overwater it. There should be three inches of the sand after it is firmly packed and watered. The sand should be shaded and this can be taken care of by hanging some cheap cotton cloth in such a manner as to be easily pushed out of the way or slipped along on a running wire fastened to the bars over head. If the cloth is drawn tightly to the roof, it will prevent a draught from the ventilators and can be arranged to lift up from the bottom when watering or putting in the cuttings. The location of the bench will suggest the most practical arrangement of shading. An excellent plan is to tack the cloth on light frames the width of the bench. These can be stored when not in use, and will last indefinitely.

We will now go back to the cutting end of the job. In selecting the wood, remember the very best is none too good, and the best according to our idea is blooming wood, the short growths from four to six inches in length bearing good heavy and well formed buds, taken when the buds are just about beginning to show color. This wood will be found quite ripe at the heel and will be worth more devoted to cuttings than to cut for the blooms, as good stock is absolutely necessary these times. Our experience is that blind wood cuttings reproduce blind wood plants more or less, eventually the running out and deterioration of the plants. If your plants should at present be in this condition, we should strongly advise procuring new wood from some well known grower who has grafted stock, and if one's stock is badly run down the best one can do is to replant with grafted stock which will at least give the proper wood for next season's cuttings. The difference in the price will surely be made up and forgotten about before half the season is over. Own root stock is of course all right if the soil is adapted to it, and the proper wood is selected for the cuttings, but the soils must be heavy and a good sod soil at that.

However, to get back to the cuttings again, take off just enough wood to work up without having any lay around too long. Select a cool, shady place and lay the wood on clean paper and sprinkle it well. Select a sharp knife and cut as many of the cuttings with a heel as possible and none of them less than two eyes. There is no need of removing or clipping the foliage if one has plenty of room in the propagating house; only the bottom leaves should be cut away so they will not rest on the sand, as to do so would cause them to drop their foliage. Open up the sand with an old table knife and use a flat stick for a ruler. Do not cut the sand deeper than an inch or so as it is better to press the cutting a little way into the firm sand or at least to the bottom of the cut. Place the longest cuttings to the back and graduate them, leaving the shorter ones to the front. Water thoroughly and label everything carefully. Be sure to press the sand firmly on each side of the row as each row is put in. Spray every bright day, and remove shading on cloudy days. Having thermometers placed in the sand to a depth of 1½ inches will give one the temperature, which should be 65° to 68° day and night. The sand should be kept quite wet until the cuttings begin to start rooting, then watering should cease and they can then be allowed more sunshine. When the roots have reached a length of half an inch, they should then be potted without delay. American Beauty wood should be selected from the center section of the long canes so as to have the wood of uniform ripeness. They should be made up into two-eyed cuttings and the foliage trimmed a little and placed in the sand so the foliage of one row does not overlap the next row. These will perhaps root uneven in the coolest end of the bench and they will take a little longer to root. Select no wood infested with red spider, mildew, or black spot, or streaked foliage. If so, total failure will be the result. As these directions are principally intended for the grower who is more or less lacking in experience, it has been necessary to go into details in order to clearly describe the work. E.

Toledo.

BOILER RULING BRINGS PROTEST.

The florists and the commercial greenhouse owners and operators of Toledo and vicinity at a recent meeting have addressed a set of resolutions to the chairman of the state industrial commission at Columbus, representing that they are confronted with the alternative of either abandoning their business entirely or of employing high-priced boiler operators for whom they have no need, and who have not been trained to the conditions peculiar to the greenhouse business. The law has been in force about 14 years, but has not been enforced in the case of greenhouse boilers until about three years ago, when Krueger Bros., Harry Heinl and E. A. Kuhnke were cited. Krueger Bros. and Heinl sent their own men, and Kuhnke took the examination himself, and these three firms thereby satisfied the authorities. No further action was taken until last fall, when dull times caused a number of industrial plants to close down and a number of stationary engineers were made idle. This was followed by notifications to practically every owner of a steam heated greenhouse to hire a licensed engineer. This was done in some instances, but the average fireman or engineer, while undoubtedly as good or better at the boiler as the greenhouse man, has not the practical knowledge to handle greenhouse temperature and conditions.

It is further claimed that the examinations are unnecessarily severe, and while perfectly consistent in the case of handling high pressure boilers in large institutions or factories, the low pressure carried in greenhouse boilers, and the fact that practical experiences in temperatures as regards plant growing, gave the greenhouse operator an advantage as a fireman in charge of the greenhouse boiler room. Under these conditions the florists and greenhouse operators ask the state industrial commission to take such action as will give them simple justice and relief from conditions that are discouraging to the cause of florticulture and horticulture in every form. Washington.

TRADE CONDITIONS VERY SATISFACTORY.

Stock is plentiful, prices reasonable, and conditions generally are satisfactory to the retail trade. Carnations are bringing from $3 to $5 per hundred. Roses of all kinds, such as Killarney, Hillingdon, Sunburst, Hadley, Richmond, Radiance, etc., can be had at from $4 to $12.50 per hundred. Orchids are priced from $4 to $6 per dozen, and gardenias are offered at prices ranging from $2 to $3. It is only on rare occasions that there is a run on cornflower, but on Washington's birthday, every florist was short of supply.

NOTES.

Z. D. Blackistone had one of the most attractive window displays ever shown in this city for Washington's birthday. The arrangement was a marble column, surmounted by a life-size bust of the "father of our country." The decorator deserves credit for the display which attracted much attention.

Fred Kramer is at present cutting excellent Killarney Queens. They are about on a par with some of the American Beauty roses that are sent to this market, but not quite as high in price.

Local florists made a splendid showing at the food show last week. Their stands were banked with cut blooms of the choicest varieties, and attracted much favorable comment.

Gus Lovall's tulips are coming in now, and are about as fine as can be expected. He says: "Look out for my gladioli. I have some of the best and newest varieties."

H. Winkler is sending some extra fine snapdragons to this market; they are the best that are being brought to this city.

George H. Cooke reports business as good as can be expected and is busy with luncheon and dinner decorations.

E. L. Miller, formerly of Mansfield, O., is now connected with Z. D. Blackistone in the capacity of salesman.

Visitors: Charles Cook and son and M. Culp, of Catonsville, Md.

Buffalo.

TRADE IS SATISFACTORY.

Weather conditions have been favorable the past week and business was good until the Lenten period opened. St. Valentine's day, coming on Sunday, was almost equal to Easter, and plants, cut flowers, corsages and other orders, such as up to date florists cater to, were all that could be expected. Bulbous stock from now on, will be plentiful with the demand limited, and it will behoove the grower to sell plants, and curtail on what he has to buy. Washington's birthday called forth a goodly number of red and white flowers, carnations being most in demand, and the supply adequate. Roses are more plentiful, the off crop of the past three weeks is a thing of the past. Tulips, daffodils and hyacinths are plentiful and carnations are good. Sweet peas are of first quality. Freesia is in good supply with orchids and lily of the valley in abundance. Choice grown lilacs are on sale in some of the stores and have a ready sale, a handsomelv trimmed lilac for an odd funeral or other order being very acceptable now and different from the always suggested cluster basket or design.

NOTES.

Joseph Streit, foreman of S. A. Anderson's, had a surprise on the occasion of his birthday, when all the force from the store and greenhouse greeted him on his return from a visit to a nearby grower, which was nicely arranged by Mrs. Streit. About 60 of his friends were there and upon his entering the potting shed, he was surrounded by the whole crowd. The occasion was very aptly arranged and the presentation of a Victrola and records by Mrs. Streit and the employes of the store and greenhouse was ably done by E. C. Armbrust, who in a few well chosen words enlightened him on the occasion of the delegation being present. After a bounteous spread had justice done to it, dancing filled the balance of the evening. all enjoying themselves and making it pleasant for Mr. Streit.

Now is the time for the wide-awake florists to have all the little accessories, such as pot arrangements, ribbon bows, and all things that are to be used for Easter in readiness and carefully put away, so that when wanted they will be on hand, for the time is not far off and such things as crepe paper and many other things that are so much used can be prepared in dull times, thus facilitating the business and preparing for the busy time.

The bulb men are calling daily; also representatives from H. Bayersdorfer & Co., H. A. Dreer and M. Rice Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., and Mr. Dykes of Ed Jansen, New York. BISON.

Columbus, O.

TRADE CONDITIONS FAVORABLE.

Florists generally report a satisfactory trade, and one that compares favorably with the same period a year ago. The stamina shown by the market is an agreeable surprise, in view of depressed trade conditions which exist in a number of other retail lines which are regarded as being more staple. There is still a shortage in carnations. The largest growers of central Ohio have been placing orders on the outside, but are not given full shipment. A week of sunshine has greatly improved prospects, and some growers foresee an abundant supply, if not a glut, early in March. Roses are about equal to demand, but the quality is impaired somewhat by mildew, as a result of unfavorable weather. Sweet peas are good stock, but remain a moderate factor in the trade. All kinds of spring stock in bulbous form is moving freely, with supply apparently equal to demand.

NOTES.

The Green-Joyce Company department store has inaugurated a floral branch, opening February 20. This is the first venture of the kind for Columbus. J. R. Clark, a practical florist, who has lately been with Graff Brothers, is manager. He is a young man of good personality and evidently the right kind of man to try out this innovation. He reports a highly-encouraging start. Cut flowers and bulbous stock will be carried. C. C. J.

Holyoke & Northampton Florists' Club.

The monthly meeting of the Holyoke and Northampton Florists' and Gardeners' Club was held Tuesday evening, February 16, in E. J. Canning's office, Prospect Heights, Northampton, and was well attended, some twenty-two members being present. G. H. Sinclair and George Strugnell, of Holyoke, and F. D. Keyes & Son, of Florence, exhibited some remarkably well grown cyclamen plants. It is doubtful if better plants have ever been grown in western Massachusetts. F. D. Keyes & Son also exhibited a vase of that grand crimson carnation, Princess Dagmar. E. H. Downer, of the Smith College Botanic Gardens, exhibited some well grown plants and sprays of flowers of Schizanthus Wisetonensis in a great variety of colors and markings. He also exhibited some specimen cinerarias. Each of the exhibitors were awarded a first-class certificate of merit. The exhibits provoked much discussion among the members, and practically every minute detail of culture was brought out. Frank Barnard, a former active member, sent a paper which was read by G. H. Sinclair, on the history and the quantity of plants and cut flowers grown at the A. N. Pierson Company's range at Cromwell, Conn., where Mr. Barnard is now located. The club presented W. H. Whiting, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, with a pair of gold cuff links, in recognition of his faithful and efficient services as secretary of the club. The March meeting will be held at the large new Sinclair greenhouse at Smith's Ferry.

Muncie, Ind.

Simon Humfeld, who has been in Florida the past two months, has returned and reports that rose growing in Florida is a success. At Lake Hamilton, a new town near Haines City, roses five feet high are in full bloom—long stems and perfect foliage. A Mr. Richardson from Bloomington, Ind., used a red clay and mud from the lake which seems to be an ideal soil for roses. C. C. Harvy has bought land there and will grow roses for the cut flower market. Mr. Humfeld reports that thousands of boxes of citrus fruit will not be sold, there being no market for them.

The Late H. Frank Darrow.

The Riverside Floral Co. has made all repairs on its boiler and potting shed. Their loss by fire two weeks ago on building was covered by insurance, but the plants were not. The decorative plants are a total loss. The mild weather has been in their favor and they have restocked on some of the ferns and decorative plants. The rose house was not injured.

Miller's Flower Shop reports good trade the past week. Funeral work was very heavy. The stock of cyclamens was exceptionaly fine; also, a large stock of new pelargoniums will be in for Easter.

Henry Potornphia's new place on Cramer avenue is in first class shape. Great quantities of bedding stock are being worked up.

Williams & Clark Floral Co. report business good. Their roses and carnations are in fine shape, with good crop on. S. H.

OBITUARY.

H. Frank Darrow.

H. Frank Darrow, New York, well-known importer in the horticultural field, and with long standing connection with leading European firms in the trade, died at the Long Island City hospital, February 21, aged 48 years.

Born in New London, Conn., in 1866, and receiving his education in that city, he entered the employ of Theodore Pabst & Co., 26 Barclay street, New York, at the age of 21, that firm at the time being the American representatives for Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris, France, and for Louis Leroy's Nurseries, Angers, France. Theodore Pabst & Co. went out of business in 1893, being succeeded by the late August Rhotert, who added other agencies to this horticultural representation, and succeeded in getting together a complete and entire line for florists and nurserymen. Mr. Darrow was retained on the Rhotert staff, and upon the death of Mr. Rhotert in 1906, he became sole owner of the business, and had since that time conducted it under his own name. Under his management the business grew yearly, and at present is one of the largest of its kind in the United States, and the European firms represented are among the best and most reliable in the world. Besides the two French firms mentioned above he was sole agent in the United States and Canada for The Haerens Co., Somergem, Belgium; John Palmer & Sons, Ltd., Annan, Scotland, and others. He was also an extensive importer of French, Japanese and Dutch bulbs and raffia. He was also a regular custom house broker and made large exports.

His passing brings to a close a successful business career, and will occasion deep regret among a host of friends, both in the trade and out. For a number of years past he had resided in Flatbush, Brooklyn, and is survived by his widow and one daughter.

Mrs. M. Thielmann.

Mrs. M. Thielmann, the mother of John and Fred Thielmann, well known florists of Brooklyn, N. Y., died in Los Angeles, Calif., February 13, of a paralytic stroke, aged 78 years. Mrs. Thielmann was in the florist business in Brooklyn for 41 years and had a wide acquaintance in the trade in the leading cities from coast to coast. She was a woman universally respected by friends and associates in the trade. She is survived by two sons, John and Charles, and one daughter, Mrs. Rosie Hammes. Interment was in St. John's cemetery, Brooklyn. A. F. F.

Edward Houck.

Edward Houck, manager of the Elitch-Long Flower Store, Denver, Colo., and one of the best known florists in that city, died of paralysis, February 15. He was 48 years old. He had been a resident of Denver for 25 years, coming to that city from his birthplace, San Jose, Calif. He is survived by his wife and two sisters. Mrs. Elitch-Long, of Denver, and Mrs. C. E. Schilling, Los Angeles, Calif.

WEST PARK, O.—The Thompson & Allen Gardening Co. has been incorporated with a capital of $25,000.

MUNCIE, IND.—The greenhouse of the Riverside Floral Co. was partially destroyed by fire, February 7. The loss will be about $500.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, VA.—The Virginia State Horticultural Society will hold its next annual meeting in this city January 12-13, 1916.

IT is generally believed the five per cent advance in eastern freight rates going into effect this week will materially improve business conditions.

OFTENTIMES the manager of a business, especially if it is a small business, pays too much attention to the things which he makes and not enough attention to the people who make them, the people who sell them, and the people who use them. "It's not things that make life—it's people," says Walter H. Cottingham, president of the Sherwin-Williams Company. "It's not things which makes business, it's people—people with red blood in their veins, men and women with hearts and feelings, aims and ambitions—men and women susceptible to encouragement and sympathy, training and discipline."—Current Opinion.

Chrysanthemum Society of America.

The fourteenth annual meeting of the Chrysanthemum Society of America will be held at Cleveland, O., November 10, 1915. The annual exhibition, which will be held in conjunction with the Cleveland Florists' Club, will take place November 10-14. There will also be an exhibit of chrysanthemums under the auspices of the Chrysanthemum Society of America in conjunction with the gardeners and florists of the Pacific coast, to be held at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition, San Francisco, Calif. The date and other details will be announced later.

CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Sec'y.

American Rose Society.

The annual meeting and exhibition of the American Rose Society will be held in Horticultural hall, Boston, Mass., March 18-21. The New York flower show at the Grand Central Palace occurs March 17-23. It has been arranged to stage roses at these exhibitions to conflict as little as possible, and the American Rose Society wishes to call attention to these dates. Roses in pots and tubs will be staged at Boston, Thursday, March 18. All cut roses will be staged, Friday, March 19, on which day the annual meeting will be held at 3 o'clock.

At the New York flower show, all pot grown roses will be staged, Wednesday, March 17. All classes of cut roses, except the special class for display of 1,000 blooms will be staged, Thursday, March 18. This special class will be staged, Saturday, March 20. This arrangement allows an exhibitor the opportunity to exhibit in New York on Thursday and in Boston on Friday. It allows visitors from a distance the opportunity of participating in both the New York flower show and the American Rose Society annual exhibition which, in conjunction with the spring show of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, will be especially attractive.

The American Rose Society invites your attendance and your exhibit. Schedules may be obtained from Benjamin Hammond, Beacon, N. Y. We trust that our exhibition may be a credit to the American Rose Society and worthy of the excellent premium list prepared.

WALLACE R. PIERSON, Pres.

Amer. Ass'n of Park Superintendents.

An executive meeting of the American Association of Park Superintendents was held at the offices of Hon. Cabot Ward, the park commissioner of New York, Saturday, February 20, for the purpose of deciding the convention date. A number of members were present at the invitation of the executive board, from Boston, Providence, New Haven, Newburgh and New York. President Gustave X. Amrhyn presided. It was voted to hold the annual convention this year at San Francisco, August 18.

An invitation was extended by Wm. H. Coldwell, who was present at the meeting, to have the members of the A. A. of P. S. when visiting the Panama-Pacific Exposition grounds, make their headquarters at the exhibit of the Coldwell Lawn Mower Co.

It was the unanimous choice of those present to make the trip to San Francisco, via Chicago, Minneapolis, Glacier National park, Spokane, Seattle and Portland, leaving Chicago, August 6, making a day's stop-over at the points named and arriving at San Francisco, August 16. Returning, leaving San Francisco, August 22 via Los Angeles and San Diego, where a four days' stop will be made, thence a one day's stop at Salt Lake City, Colorado Springs and St. Louis, where the party will separate for home. The trip from New York and return will occupy just 30 days. Railroad fare from New York for entire trip, including lower Pullman berth, $162.80—proportionate fares from interior points. An invitation will be extended to the different horticultural societies to have their members who will go to the exposition at that time join the members of the A. A. of P. S. in their trip across the continent.

IMPROVEMENT IN WEATHER HELPS TRADE.

As the weather has at last shown a tendency to remain fair for a while, business in all lines has picked up rather generously. Of course, funeral work is the main standby. The remarkable period of dull weather has had its effect on all flowering stock. Roses are not what they should be, but are bringing very fair prices. Red seems to be off crop just now, more than any other color. Carnations are not a bit too plentiful, which is in marked contrast to last year, when they were in over supply at this period. Prices show little change. When this flower is so scarce at this time of the year, it is a pretty good criterion as to how the others are selling. Violets, owing to bad weather, have been rather poor, but the past few rainy days have remedied this complaint and the quality may now be said to be excellent. Bulbous stock is arriving in large quantities and may be said to be the only class of stock that is not bringing the prices its growers hoped for, freesias excepted. Formosum, in particular, is hard to move. Cattleyas are in splendid profusion, but as this city is noted as one of the greatest absorbers of this class of flowers, very few consignments go begging. If they don't sell today, they generally do tomorrow. Gardenias, owing to the limited number grown for this source, usually find a ready market at remunerative prices. The different varieties of acacias are coming along with a rush, but as they are only used for second class decorations, they are not much of a factor in the day's sales. Smilax is plentiful, but good ferns are not in over supply.

NOTES.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society held its installation of officers Saturday evening, February 6. The attendance was large and enthusiastic. Many plans were formulated for the visit and entertainment of the Society of American Florists in August. Angelo J. Rossi, chairman of the reception committee, reported much progress. His plans for the S. A. F. convention garden are assuming very mature aspects. From present indications this will be a very creditable showing by the Pacific Coast growers, and while it may be that there are a great many varieties of stock that will not reach maturity in the west, that do on the New England coast, still we feel that our efforts have not been wasted; we will do the best we can—that's all we can do.

The government of France has concluded a contract with MacRorie-McLaren Co. for the furnishing of loam, and supplying and installing trees and plants for the French pavilion garden at the Panama-Pacific exposition site, for $4,000. The French government, despite the war, has gone ahead with all its plans for its exhibit, and it will prove one of the most elaborate foreign displays at the fair.

The floral decoration of the principal business streets of the city during the exposition is being contemplated by the downtown association, and is receiving much encouragement. With Lester L. Morse, president of the American Seed Trade Association and of the American Sweet Pea Society also, in conjunction with A. J. Rossi, it seems that everything points to a successful outcome of the suggestion.

The California Rose Co., of Pomona, Calif., is opening branch yards in most of the prominent cities of the coast, or California at least. We question whether it is proper for a company selling to wholesalers to open up sales offices in their customers' localities. We don't think so. G. N.

Dayton, O.

Nicholas Metz and wife, who were with the force of the Heiss Co., florists, for many years and afterwards in the greenhouse business on Tray street, selling out later to Joseph W. Furst, have the sympathy of their many friends in the tragic death of two of their children, Joseph, aged seven, and Charles B., aged four, the result of a skidding automobile crashing through a fence and into the yard where they were at play.

Plans for the "city beautiful" movement are going forward in good shape. The Dayton Neighborhood Prize board representing all of the improvement association in the city, has divided the city into 15 districts and 18 prizes to each district are offered, with the result that marvelous improvement has been effected in the beautification of the city.

Elizabeth M. Phebus, florist, has filed a petition in bankruptcy, listing liabilities at $4,609.56 and assets, $2,360, including $2,000 worth of real estate and stock valued at $200. J. C. Krebs, of this city is the largest unsecured creditor, his claim amounting to $1,535. M.

DETROIT, MICH.—Harry Balsley is confined to his home with rheumatism.

SAN LEANDRO, CALIF.—The city beautiful committee is planning for the planting of flowers, vines and trees to beautify the city during exposition year.

LAKE FOREST, ILL.—W. E. Tricker, superintendent of Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, Ill., delivered a very interesting and instructive paper on chrysanthemum culture, especially the hardy varieties, at the meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society, February 5.

STOCK MORE PLENTIFUL.

There is a great change in the market conditions this week with stock of all kinds more plentiful and prices a great deal lower. The unfavorable weather conditions of the past week had much to do with the present state of affairs and a slump in trade was first noticeable the latter part of last week. Roses are more plentiful with the exception of American Beauties, which are cleaning up well each day. Carnations are more plentiful also and have dropped considerably in price. Tulips, jonquils, freesias and Paper Whites were never so plentiful this season as they are right now and the same holds good for sweet peas, but fancy stock in the latter is holding up well and the extra select are bringing in a few instances as high as $2.00 and $2.50 per 100. Orchids are in good supply also and so are violets, which are selling at very low prices now. Gladioli from the south are still arriving in large shipments, and while they are meeting with good sale, the prices are nothing to speak of. Lilies and lily of the valley are plentiful enough, but gardenias still seem to be on the short side. Greens of all kinds are seen in quantity everywhere and some especially fine ferns and boxwood are being offered now. While stock is plentiful at present and trade is a little slack, business should show some improvement within the next week.

Illinois State Florists' Ass'n
Annual Meeting and Exhibition
To be Held at Urbana, March 2-3.

NOTES.

On account of the visit of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists, a special meeting and smoker, of the florists' club, Monday, March 1, at the Bismarck hotel, Randolph street and Fifth avenue, at 8 p. m., will take the place of the regular March meeting. Lunch will be served and all members and trade friends are cordially invited to participate and meet the representatives of the national society.

The Easter stock at Vaughan's Greenhouses, Western Springs, is looking particularly well this season, including rambler and hybrid perpetual roses, hydrangeas, azaleas, etc. Some fancy hyacinths and tulips are shown in pans and pots, and Boston ferns and other decorative plants are offered in fine condition and variety.

The J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., of Joliet, has leased the Higinbotham Greenhouses, consisting of 125,000 feet of glass, which are only a short distance from its own plant, for a term of years at a yearly rental of $4,000, and will take possession in the near future.

Irwin Thurman, who has a well established store business at 4246 Indiana avenue, is compelled to give up on account of ill health. He will sell at a low price in order to leave for a more genial climate as early as possible.

Bassett & Washburn have given the contract for five new houses, each 28x300 feet, to the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co.

George Fischer won the gold watch that Edw. Dzubinske, and employe in the local market, raffled off this week.

A. T. Pyfer and Peter Olsem have arranged to take over the local wholesale store and business of the Chicago Carnation Co., on March 1, when the firm name will be changed to Pyfer & Olsem, or some other to be decided upon later. H. N. Higinbotham, the proprietor, has decided to retire from the florist business and has rented his greenhouses to the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co. and made satisfactory arrangements with Pyfer & Olsem to take over the wholesale store at 30 East Randolph street, as mentioned above. Neither Mr. Pyfer nor Mr. Olsem need any introduction to the trade, for the former has been manager of the Chicago Carnation Co. for a long time and Peter Olsem was formerly superintendent of the Chicago Carnation Co.'s greenhouses. The loss of the stock from the Highinbotham greenhouses will of course naturally be felt, but not to any great extent, for several large growers are now shipping their output to this store and they now have the cuts from their own large range at Wilmette. Further interesting information regarding the change will be published in THE AMERICAN FLORIST next week or the week after.

George Wienhoeber had about as pretty a window display for Washington's birthday as one ever had the pleasure to see. A large seven foot wreath of gold magnolia leaves circling a marble bust of the first president and draped with American flags furnished the background, while the window itself was neatly arranged with choice cut flowers with a cherry tree and hatchet scattered here and there. Several magnificent orchid plants in bloom helped considerably to make the window a most beautiful sight.

The Des Plaines Floral Co. is shipping some very choice carnations to the Chicago Carnation Co.'s store, where they are always in good demand.

John Poehlmann and wife spent Sunday, February 21, with their son John, Jr., at Culver, Ind., where he is a student at the Culver Military Academy.

Bob Newcomb, well known representative of Vaughan's Seed Store, and San Francisco booster, is now in that city aiding the local members of the craft in their preparations for the reception of the Society of American Florists next August.

H. E. Philpott of Winnipeg is here on important business this week.

The A. L. Randall Co. has rented the entire second floor of the new eight-story LeMoyne building at the southwest corner of Lake street and North Wabash avenue for 10 years, and will take possession about April 1. The entire floor space consists of about 20,000 square feet and it is rumored that the lease was signed at a rental in the neighborhood of 75 cents per square foot. The new store will be used for the offices and salesrooms and will be equipped with all new fixtures, etc.

Guy W. French and Richard Salms will personally take charge of the range of 70,000 feet of glass at Union Grove, Wis.. that they recently rented from the Union Grove Greenhouse Co. and will hereafter conduct their business under the firm name of French & Salms. They will grow Mrs. Chas. Russell roses exclusively as was mentioned in THE AMERICAN FLORIST some time ago and have placed the order for 33,000 plants of this variety with Poehlmann Bros. Co.

Kennicott Bros. Co. is already starting to talk peonies and will handle a larger supply this year than ever before. R. E. Kennicott, who has a large peony farm at Carbondale, was seen at the store this week, and while it is early to talk about the crop conditions, it would not be at all surprising if his cuts will be larger this year than they were last, for he had a heavy drought to contend with then. The peony season is only about three months away.

H. C. Wullbrandt of the Globe Greenhouses, and wife will leave in a few months on an extended visit in California, where they will take in the sights at the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. They will visit all the other large cities in the Golden State and in the west either going or returning, and expect to be away for several months.

A surprise party was given in honor of George Anderson at his home in Morton Grove, Monday, February 22, when a large crowd of young people enjoyed themselves to their heart's content. George is a son of C. G. Anderson, foreman of Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s plant department and holds a position as cashier at the firm's city store.

Schiller's North Side store is showing sweet peas in bloom in pots, which are attracting considerable attention. The plants came from Poehlmann Bros. Co.'s greenhouses at Morton Grove, where they were permitted to attain their full height; then the stems were wound around the stakes set in the pots.

Peter Reinberg is changing the overhead heating system in his American Beauty rose range now and expects to get better results after the new system is installed. Miss McNulty, Felix Reichling and Peter Bowman of the store force took in the sights at the greenhouses on Sunday, February 21.

The E. C. Amling Co. has not yet secured any permanent quarters and will occupy the store it is now doing business in at 166 North Michigan avenue for several months yet at least. Several places are being considered and a selection will probably be made in the near future.

A. Lange continues to feature the pretty little roses Cecile Brunner and George Elgar in his window displays at his Madison street store. These roses always have a good call at this busy establishment and are becoming more and more popular each day.

Nick Speropoulos, proprietor of the Wabash Flower Market, has opened a new store at 106 South Wabash avenue, where the Williams Flower Shop was formerly located. His old store, a few doors south, will be discontinued.

Wietor Bros. are supplying their trade with choice stock in roses, carnations and American Beauties. N. J. Wietor reports a brisk demand for carnation cuttings and nearly every mail at this house brings in new orders.

F. R. Robinson, with Robinson & Gundecker, New Hampton, Ia., was in the city this week, when he placed an order with The Foley Manufacturing Co. for two new houses, one 27x100 and the other 28x130 feet.

Zech & Mann are featuring fancy sweet peas and freezias in large supply and are having a heavy call for same. Roses and carnations are seen in quantity at this establishment also.

Wm. F. Schofield has had several very pretty window displays at his North State street store of late, and it seems as if Henry Dunn is responsible for the arrangement of them.

Max Schmidl, who is conducting a store at 10108 Ewing avenue, has bought out Ignatius G. Stahl, 2534 East Ninety-first street, and will operate both places in the future.

USE Budlong's Blue Ribbon Valley.

John A. Evans of the John A. Evans Co., Richmond, Ind., is still calling on the growers in this vicinity. He had a new detachable pipe hanger with him that looks very promising.

J. A. Schmidt has been well pleased with the business that he has enjoyed since he moved into his new store in Wentworth avenue. almost directly opposite his old location.

Percy Jones is strong in green goods of all kinds and is supplying his customers with choice stock in this line, especially fancy ferns, of which he has a mammoth supply.

M. Lehman, formerly with Hoyt Bros. Co., Spokane, Wash., has accepted a position as salesman and designer at George Perdikas' South Wabash avenue store.

A. L. Glaser, of Dubuque, Ia., called on his many friends in the trade here this week. He is a large buyer in the local market, which brings him to this city quite often.

U. L. Crawford, of Des Moines, Ia., was in the city this week buying supplies for the new store that he will open in the Shops building there.

The A. F. Amling Co. of Maywood will grow the new rose Mrs. Chas. Russell quite heavily next season.

The Clark Floral Co. will open a new store at Crawford avenue and Madison street in the near future.

A. E. Hunt & Co., of Evanston, cut their first sweet peas this week and it was very fine stock, too.

C. L. Washburn of Bassett & Washburn will celebrate his fifty-seventh birthday on Saturday, February 27, which has always been a big day with the employes at the store in former years. This year there will be no celebration for Mr. and Mrs. Washburn will leave on that day for a short visit with friends at Milwaukee, Wis. Mr. Washburn started to work when he was 14 years old and has had a very successful business career, especially since he entered the wholesale business 28 years ago. He is to be found on duty nearly every day at the store and his steady attention to business has had much to do with the building up of the well known firm of Bassett & Washburn, which will celebrate its twenty-third anniversary on March 1.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is filling a large number of orders for grafted and own root rose plants, carnation cuttings and chrysanthemum plants and cuttings, at its Morton Grove greenhouses every day and the demand is increasing right along. At the store a fine line of roses, carnations and other cut flowers are seen and in the supply department the demand is very heavy now for green carnation powder for St. Patrick's day and for manna grass, which is selling like hot cakes. A sample of the manna grass can be had for the asking and practically every sample that has been sent out so far has brought in an order.

D. Andrew Papatony, proprietor of the Briggs Floral Co., 226 West Madison street, is now conducting the store known as the Briggs House Florist, formerly owned by Trefon Argeson and located at 157 North Fifth avenue. Mr. Papatony took charge February 20, when the firm name was changed to the Briggs Floral Co.

John G. Witt & Son, who are doing business under the firm name of Fernwood Park Florist at 10423 Wallace street, expect to enlarge their establishment in the near future.

John Kruchten will have 35,000 lily plants to offer for Easter, which is the largest quantity that he ever had to handle.

Sidney Buchbinder says that Buchbinder Bros. sold seven florist's refrigerators in one day last week. They will be delivered to U. L. Crawford, Des Moines, Ia.; J. W. Stokes, Springfield, Mo.; American Seed Co., Ottumwa, Ia.; Tim Matchem, East Chicago, The Fair and A. Steffelter, 4916 South Ashland avenue.

A. L. Vaughan & Co.'s sales were exactly the same to the penny on February 17 as they were the day previous. This does not happen very often in the wholesale market, especially when both a large local and shipping trade are being done.

Visitors: Samuel Seligman, representing Wertheimer Bros. Co., New York; F. R. Robinson, with Robinson & Gundecker, New Hampton, Ia.; A. L. Claser, Dubuque, Ia.; Wm. F. Heckenkamp, Jr., Quincy; Mrs. Smely, Aurora; A. N. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; H. E. Philpott, Winnipeg, Can.

St. Louis.

The past week ushered in the Lenten period. With the exception of violets prices held up well. Carnations were not over plentiful and American Beauty roses were selling at moderate prices. Ferns are also plentiful.

NOTES.

F. J. Hermann and wife's store, on Page and Taylor streets, is building up a nice trade. They did good business for Valentine's day and expect to be well established for Easter.

Alphonse Artmann, designer at the North End store of the Mullanphy Florists, had a beautiful window decoration for Washington's birthday.

Scruggs, Vandervoort & Barney, Grimm & Gorly and Foster the Florist, had sales of violets at 10 cents per bunch.

The Retail Florists' Association had a meeting February 15. A banquet will be given at the Washington hotel March 8.

Young & Sons are out with their anniversary garden book, containing a portrait of the late Christopher Young.

George Wagner, of Grimm & Gorly, left for Chicago to look after Easter novelties for the store.

Geo. H. Angermueller is busy with Easter novelties. He expects a full line in all of these.

Windler Wholesale Floral Co. had a great assortment of sweet peas.

BUSINESS IS NORMAL.

The supply of stock is much more liberal than it has been for several weeks. The increase came with the first of last week. Business the first few days of Lent was very slow, but since then trade is back again to a normal point and is good. Shipping business is very good. Roses are more plentiful than they were and continue to meet with the same good market. The carnation cut, too, has increased in size and also continues to meet with a good call. Lilies are becoming very plentiful and the same is true of callas and auratums. The cut of bulbous stock, including tulips, Dutch hyacinths, jonquils and daffodils, is much larger than it was, and meets with a fair market. Paper White narcissi and Roman hyacinths are on the wane. Sweet peas are very plentiful and are among the best sellers. Other offerings are violets, lily of the valley, orchids, primroses, forget-me-nots and mignonette. The supply of green goods is ample.

NOTES.

Fred Lautenschlager of Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago, was a visitor last week. He sold John Evers of Winton Place a No. 12 Kroeschell hot water boiler and Edw. Evers of the same place a No. 9 Kroeschell hot water boiler. He also booked Chas. Kroeger's order for a No. 12 Kroeschell hot water boiler.

TRADE SHOWS GENERAL IMPROVEMENT.

Trade for St. Valentine's day proved to be a taste of old times. The retailers always alive, had amply provided and fully advertised by window display and in the daily press, and the result fully justified the effort. Violets sold well and when exhausted, anything else went, but cut flowers were preferred over plants. Trade in general has improved the last two weeks, several reports of being sold out Saturday night are made and the sale for bulbous pot plants is quite remarkable. Funeral work is still the best paying item of the present trade.

NOTES.

The Montreal Horticultural Society held its annual meeting last week and the reports read by the secretary and treasurer showed the society in prosperous condition. There was a large attendance, also some associate members. The president, board of directors and executive committee were re-elected, A. J. Bowles continuing as secretary and treasurer.

The Montreal Gardeners' and Florists' Club held a social euchre, February 15. The prizes will be distributed Monday, March 1. W. R. Whiting exhibited a specimen cyclamen and two Primula stellata, which were highly commended.

John Henderson, superintendent of Mount Royal park, is ready to leave the Royal Victoria hospital, where he was taken with a bably fractured leg.

Harry McKenna, secretary of the Montreal Floral Exchange, is down with appendicitis. An operation has been performed, and he is doing nicely.

Frank McKenna, of McKenna, Ltd., and president of the Montreal Floral Exchange, is still at the Hotel Dieu hospital, with a broken leg.

Van Zonneveld and A. J. Ploeger, two Hollanders, called on the local trade last week. They stated that the usual orders are booked.

H. B. Cowan, president of the Canadian Horticultural Association, paid a flying visit to town attending a convention.

LENTEN LULL ARRIVES.

The busy days of last week have been followed by a lull, the advent of the season of "sackcloth and ashes" seeming to have called a halt for a time. Stock is becoming much more plentiful, with a general shading of prices. Roses, with the exception of the American Beauty, which is still shy, are in good supply and the quality is fine, with color much improved as the stocks increase, it will be seen whether the new comers can hold their own in the keen competition of an overloaded market. Some few fine Hadley are seen; if a profitable rose from a grower's standpoint, it will surely become a leader in its section. Carnations are a trifle more in evidence. They were choice stock last week. Daffodils are having a good run, being very popular with flower buyers. Snapdragon is more plentiful and will soon be seen in all colors. Violets, while fine, seem to hang a trifle. There is lily of the valley in any quantity. Cattleyas move slowly; they are sold very low in quantity lots. Gardenias find a fairly good sale, the lower grades, however, ruling very low.

NOTES.

Through the auspices of the Pennock-Meehan Co., the flower growers and dealers of this city were taken last Thursday to hear Billy Sunday, who is holding revival meetings in this city. There were about 250 in the party. A very favorable section of seats had been reserved by William Graham, who is active in the work. A stunning basket of flowers in their name decorated the platform. The occasion was most inspiring. Billy Sunday is a wonderful man, thrilling multitudes of from 15,000 to 20,000 people, twice a day.

H. A. Dreer is having a run on young florist's stock for growing on. Many of the New York growers obtain their supply from Riverton. The large auto trucks now make all day journeys, this delivery proving more satisfactory in every way than express or freight.

Pennock Brothers' window contained a rose show the past week. There were vases of all the roses now in the market, some 18 varieties tastefully arranged in vases, with background of rich velvets. All the varieties were carefully labeled. It attracted great attention.

Chas. F. Edgar, who has tried all branches of the business, has settled on the retail branch as the real thing, and is to be found hustling and proving out his theories at 5037 Baltimore avenue, one of the business centers of this large residence district. Success to him.

The second social night on February 15 at the club was well attended, many members being present to take part in the games. This move of President Burton is a happy thought, and will help to make his administration a great success.

The Leo Niessen Co. now offer American Beauties—they are leaders

The M. Rice Co. are making a great bid for the Easter trade. Their Easter folder, just out, is a beautifully illustrative price list, full of new things.

At Berger Brothers' Central Market, spring flowers are a feature. Sweet peas and extra fine lily of the valley are leaders.

Choice specials of the newer sorts of roses were a feature with Edward Reid the past week.

DEMAND CLEANS UP MARKET.

The demand for stock is keeping up remarkably well; and while stock is a little more plentiful in some lines, especially bulbous flowers, the market is pretty well cleaned up on all the other lines, particularly in carnations, and roses, such as Killarney, both pink and white, Aaron Ward, and American Beauties. Richmond roses are coming only in shorter grades now. Sweet peas are becoming more plentiful and a few pansies arrive. Snapdragon, mignonette, calendula and freesia are in good demand, with a fair supply. Callas can now be had in almost any quantity. Easter lilies are scarce. Good lily of the valley is not overplentiful. A fine line of Lorraine tulips, besides red and yellow, arrive daily and form the bulk of the stock. Paper White narcissi and daffodils, both single and double are also in good supply. Greens of all kinds are plentiful, and boxwood wreaths are being used freely. Swainsonas and Roman hyacinths also arrive in limited quantities.

NOTES.

The Women's Florist Club will forward about $100 for the benefit of the wives and children of horticulturists in Europe, which is about the sum realized at their card party, which was held at the assembly room of the Hollenden hotel, Thursday, February 18. The large assembly room was fragrant with the odor of flowers, American Beauty roses being used with ferns and palms. The first prize was a large bunch of American Beauties, the second prize a bouquet of assorted flowers. "This is our first work for charity as a club," said Mrs. Geo. W. Smith, president of the Women's Florist Club, "and naturally we chose a group of people with whom our sympathies might be closely allied in our attempt to be of service." The money will be turned over to the Committee of Mercy of New York, which committee will use its discretion in the selection of the country to receive the contribution. The estimate the committee makes is that $1.00 will feed sixteen people for a day, at the rate they are supplying them, and so this money will save some of our friends over there from starving. Among the club members who were most active in planning and carrying out the card party were: Mrs. Geo. W. Smith, Mrs. Tim Smith, Mrs. J. M. Gasser, Mrs. Herman Knoble, Mrs. Clarence Meyers, Mrs. F. C. Bartels, Mrs. Frank Friedley, Mrs. Edward A. Wilhelmy, Mrs. Carl Hagenberger of Painesville, Ohio, Mrs. Walter Priest, Miss Elsie Swinton and Miss Ruthe Mercer. Mrs. Geo. Schultz assisted the club.

BUSINESS NOT AFFECTED BY LENT.

Considering that we are in Lent, business seems to be surprisingly good. In roses, there is no strong demand for American Beauties, but in special stock of tea roses, there is no surplus and prices remain firm. The No. 1 and No. 2 are moving freely. In orchids, there is no advance worthy of note. The average is from 10 cents to 25 cents per flower. There is no surplus of carnations and they are wholesaling at from $2 to $4 per 100, depending on quality. In lilies and lily of the valley there is little change from our quotations of last week. Bulbous stock, including yellow narcissi, tulips and freesias is very plentiful and selling cheap. It is almost impossible to quote prices on violets. One day they are up and the next day down. Gardenias run along at from $1 to $3 per dozen, depending on quality. The general outlook seems reassuring, regardless of what the "knockers" say.

NEW YORK SPRING SHOW

February 24.—The market opened very slow; particularly is this true of bulbous stock, carnations and violets. Carnations are offered at $1 to $2 per hundred, while violets range in price from 10 cents to 35 cents.

NOTES.

Large posters are now out advertising the flower show. They look rather bizarre and georgeous to the writer of these notes, but, as the good man said, when he kissed his cow, "every man to his taste."

The final schedule of the spring flower show will be out this week. For additional blanks apply to John Young, 53 West 28th street, this city.

F. R. Pierson is keeping all hands on the jump working up the final details for the flower show.

Alexander McConnell is mailing his patrons a very attractive Dickens calendar.

The flower show committee met at the Grand Central Palace February 20.

Lancaster County Florists' Club.

Fifteen seemed a small crowd for us to have on a visiting trip, but weather conditions have considerable to do with this club, as quite a few of us are dependent upon ourselves for the care of our greenhouses, and they are of course the first consideration.

Manheim, and the Hostetters, was the objective point, and in a general way the three places, all owned by Hostetters, were in good shape and the stock looking like a money making proposition. Sweet peas, of the Spencer type, planted alongside of the older sorts, demonstrated the paying qualities of the Spencers better than a day's argument could have done. At E. P. Hostetter's range many had four perfect flowers to a stem and stems fifteen inches long. He also had white and yellow snapdragons, of exhibition quality, Primula Forbesii by the thousand for cuttings, four large houses planted to Sprengeri and plumosus for cuttings, double sweet alyssum wherever there was room to plant it, and carnations—house after house of them. He is very favorably impressed with Matchless, and has quite a large planting of Gorgeous and Philadelphia, both of which are giving satisfactory results. Victory for a red, and Dorner's Winona for a pink, are grown here in quantity and considered good money makers.

The meeting was started promptly at 7:30 p. m. and a grand exhibition of cut flowers staged. A. Guttman sent Laura Weber and Peace, both attracting favorable attention, but the white, Peace, seemed to be the one to receive the most honors. F. Dorner & Sons Co., LaFayette, Ind., sent Pink Sensation and Good Cheer. Pink Sensation was at once declared to be head and shoulders over all others. S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, Pa., sent Akehurst in good shape, and a very good looking red from C. H. Frey of Lincoln, Neb. The latter certainly has some keeping qualities to be sent to Philadelphia, reshipped to Lancaster, and make a good showing. Peter Fisher, Ellis, Mass., sent Alice, and it came through in fine form. E. Winkler, of Wakefield, Mass., sent Morning Glow, which looks as if it might be a productive variety.

Among the local growers Ira Landis, of Paradise, Pa., had a fine vase of Benora, one of Princess Dagmar and Yellow Prince; also an exceptionally fine lot of Freesia Purity. Willis Girvin, of Leola, had Gloriosa, Matchless and Mrs. C. W. Ward. Elmer Weaver, of Ronks, had a vase of his white seedling, which is considered a good one by our growers here. H. D. Rohrer had a vase of his scarlet, and Amos Rohrer of Strasburg exhibited a vase of White Wonder. The paper of the evening was a resume of the Buffalo convention by Albert M. Herr and brought out quite an interesting discussion.

The visiting committee has outlined a trip to take in E. A. Stroud's at Strafford, the houses at North Wales, Heacock's and the Weiss establishment at Hatboro, returning to Philadelphia in time for the meeting of the Philadelphia club March 2. March 13 a trip will be made to Christiana, leaving Lancaster at 12:15 noon, and stopping at the places en route on the return trip home. April 15 will be observed as ladies' night and March 18 Charles H. Grakelow, of Philadelphia, has consented to give us one of his inimitable talks on the business.

Horticultural Society of New York.

An exhibition of plants and flowers was held Wednesday, February 17, at the American Museum of Natural History. Unusually fine displays of cut orchid blooms were made by Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J., and by Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J. The exhibit made by Mr. Moore was very rich in cattleya forms, one of the most interesting being a cross made and reared by himself from Cattleya Dowiana and C. Schroederiana. The display of Lager & Hurrell was rich in genera and species. Much interest was added to the exhibit by the numerous displays of plants and flowers for which no premiums had been provided in the schedule. Special prizes were awarded to many of these. Among the exhibitors who were awarded premiums were the following: Lager & Hurrell, Summit, N. J.; Bobbink & Atkins, Rutherford, N. J.; Clement Moore, Hackensack, N. J.; P. W. Popp, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; G. D. Barron, Rye, N. Y.; Harry Goldman, Deal Beach, N. J.; Mrs. F. A. Constable, Mamaroneck, N. Y.; Ernest Iselin, New Rochelle, N. Y. and Mrs. A. J. Moulton, West Orange, N. J.

A business meeting of the society took place at 3:45, followed at 4 by an illustrated lecture by W. C. McCollom on "The Small Greenhouse:

Its Use and Abuse." This was of great interest, and many practical methods were described by the lecturer. The next monthly exhibition of the society will be held Saturday and Sunday, May 8-9, at the New York Botanical Garden, Bronx park. The usual March exhibition is omitted on account of the spring show at the Grand Central Palace. The April show is also omitted, as it would follow too closely upon the big spring show.

TRADE CONDITIONS SATISFACTORY.

The past week found trade good with a shortage of carnations and roses. Bulbous stock has been on the decline in price. Daffodils, trumpets, tulips and Paper Whites are selling at a reasonable figure and violets are also reasonable. There is a shortage in Sprengeri. Stevia is entirely out of the market. Sweet peas have been moving well, the fancy grade of Spencers selling at good figures. The first week of the Lenten season was very satisfactory to the retailers, and every one reports business good.

NOTES.

H. Schimmels, who has been in the employ of Gust. Rusch & Co., for the past three years, is opening a retail store in Twelfth street, near Cherry. His many friends in the trade wish him success in his new venture.

Gimbel Bros. have had a fine trade, disposing of large amounts of violets and blooming plants at a sale, February 20.

Edlefsen-Leidiger Co., reports business good, having had a large number of funeral orders for the past week.

John C. Rost has been confined to his home owing to a severe injury to his foot.

Walter M. Maas & Co. have purchased another auto delivery car.

Miss Edith Webster is back in her old position at J. M. Fox & Co.

TRADE HOLDS STEADY.

We are having quite a period of rainy weather and everybody is happy. Spring rains are so necessary here to ensure abundant crops, because usually the summers are long and dry. The flower trade is keeping up very nicely, but it is too early yet to know if the Lenten season will have any effect on business. There is a noted decrease in the call for boxes of cut flowers, but this falling off in this particular line is more than offset by the increased demand for baskets arranged with cut flowers, chiefly spring bulbous flowers. The reason for this change in public taste is easily accounted for. Florists here, have for some weeks, been using tastily arranged baskets in their window displays and the public have caught onto the value of the baskets for decorative and for gift purposes.

NOTES.

The Oklahoma State Society of Florists will meet March 1. The name of the association will perhaps be changed as there is a motion under notice for that purpose, and an exhibition committee will be appointed. We are in hopes that a start will be made this year in giving an annual flower show. It is very up-hill work, however, inaugurating annual flower shows where the trade growers are so limited in numbers, and so widely separated as they are in Oklahoma.

Clyde Batten, secretary of the state society, had his home burglarized February 20. Much valuable jewelry is missing and no clue to the thieves.

S. S. B.

Westchester and Fairfield Hort. Society.

The annual entertainment and dance of this society was held in Mechanic's hall, Stamford Conn., Tuesday evening, February 16, and was a grand success. A very pleasing programme was rendered and greatly enjoyed by all present. The members, their wives, families and friends, together with a large number of representatives of leading seed houses and nursery firms, were welcomed by President W. J. Sealy. Scotch ballads were sung by Mrs. James W. Stirling in a wonderfully sweet and clear voice, and the singer was repeatedly encored. Owen A. Huninck sang some old time favorites in a very pleasing manner. Prof. Wilson, Scotch comedian, delighted and pleased the audience with a number of character songs and dances. The talented young son of Jas. Foster, rendered violin solos in an artistic and pleasing manner. Prof. Melcher amused and mystified the audience with a number of clever sleight o' hand tricks that were thoroughly enjoyed by old and young. Classical, sentimental and popular songs were rendered by the Hon. John M. Brown, mayor of Stamford, and by W. J. Collins, Jas. Johnston, A. L. Ricards and others. All were heartily applauded. A splendid and satisfying buffet lunch was served, and in addition plenty of fruit and candies ,was provided for the little folks. A very fine orchestra was in attendance, and a pleasing dance program was rendered under the able floor management of Jas. Johnston, assisted by Al Clarkson. Jas. Stuart and wife led the grand march. The annual entertainment of 1915 will long remain a pleasant memory.

P. W. POPP, Cor. Sec'y.

GLENDALE, CALIF.—C. Harry Woolsey has opened a flower shop in the New Theater building.

HORNELL, N. Y.—F. J. Kennedy & Sons, florists, filed a petition in bankruptcy February 13 as a firm and individually. The liabilities of the firm are scheduled at $3,966.53 and the assets at $2,732.12.

DULUTH, MINN.—J. J. Le Borious, florist, says that the flower market is improving daily and that his volume of sales is comparing favorably with other seasons. On account of the war he has more Dutch bulbs, hyacinths, tulips and daffodils coming into bloom than perhaps in any previous year at this time.

ON ORDERS FOR

Hardy Perennial Phloxes

The Phloxes here offered are all one year old field-grown plants. It is our custom to pot these into three-inch pots about the middle of March for the Spring trade. To save this extra handling we will allow a special discount of 20 per cent from our regular low prices here quoted, on all orders booked for immediate delivery between February 20 and March 15.

General Collection of Hardy Phlox.

Albion (Medium). One of our own introductions; producing very large panicles of pure white flowers, with faint analine-red eye.
Antonin Mercie (Medium). Light ground color, upper half of each petal deeply suffused bluish-lilac, large white halo.
Bacchante (Tall). Tyrian rose, with crimson-carmine eye.
Baron von Dedem (Medium). Brilliant cochineal-red with salmon shadings.
B. Comte (Medium). Brilliant French purple, with crimson carmine shadings, 85 cts. per doz.; $5.00 per 100.
Bridesmaid (Tall). White, with large crimson-carmine center.
Champs Elysee (Dwarf). A very bright rosy magenta,
Coquelicot (Dwarf). A fine pure scarlet, with crimson-red eye. 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100.
Danton (Medium). Scarlet, pure red eye.
Diadem (Dwarf). A fine dwarf, pure white.
Eclaireur (Tall). Brilliant rosy magenta, with large lighter halo.
Frau Rosalie Wildt. Soft pleasing mauve-rose with carmine eye.
George A. Strohlein (Medium). Bright scarlet, with crimson-red eye; does not bleach. $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100.
Henry Marcel (Medium). Pure red, with bright salmon shadings.
Henry Murger (Tall). White, crimson-carmine center.
Henry Royer (Medium). Tyrian Rose, with lighter shadings.
H. O. Wijers (Tall). White, with bright crimson-carmine eye.
Jeanne d'Arc (Tall). A good standard late white.
Jules Cambon (Medium). Bright rosy magenta, with large white center and light halo.
La Vague (Medium). Pure mauve, with analine-red eye.
L'Evenement (Dwarf). Orange scarlet overlaid with salmon-pink.
Louise Abbema (Dwarf). Very large dwarf, pure white, fine form.
Manzelbrunner. A very large bright soft pink, with a large white eye.
Mme Paul Dutrie (Tall). A delicate lilac-rose, reminding one of some of the beautiful soft pink Orchids.
Mrs. Jenkins (Tall). The best tall early white for massing.
Obergartner Wittig (Medium). Bright magenta, with crimson-carmine eye; large flower and truss; one of the best.
Pantheon (Tall). Bright carmine rose.
Pierre Bayle. Crimson-carmine, overlaid with orange scarlet.
Professor Virchow (Medium). Bright carmine, overlaid with orange scarlet.
Rosenberg. Bright reddish-violet, with blood-red eye, large truss and individual flowers as large as a silver dollar.
Rynstrom. An improved form of the popular variety Pantheon; fine for massing, of a Paul Neyron Rose color.

Selma (Tall). Large flower, pale rose mauve, with claret-red eye.
Siebold (Tall). Bright vermilion-red overlaid with orange scarlet; crimson red eye. 85 cts. per doz.; $6.00 per 100.
Sunshine (Dwarf). Large, analine-red with crimson-red eye and light halo.
Von Hochberg (Tall). Bright French purple, one of the finest dark colored varieties. $1.00 per doz.; $7.00 per 100.
Von Lassburg (Medium). The purest white in cultivation, individual flowers larger than any other white.

Any of the above varieties except where noted, 75 cts. per doz.; $5.00 per 100; $40.00 per 1000.

Novelties and Recent Introductions.

Europa. A white variety with very decided crimson-carmine eye; the individual flowers as well as the trusses are very large, entirely distinct.
Frau Anton Buchner. The finest white variety yet introduced, having the largest truss and individual flower of dwarf habit.
Gefion. A new color in Phloxes, a tender peach-blossom pink with bright rose eye. $1.50 per doz.: $10.00 per 100.
Rheinlander. A beautiful salmon pink with flowers and trusses of immense size, the color of the flower is intensified by a very decided eye of a deep claret-red. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.
Riverton Jewel. One of our own introductions which it gives us great pleasure to recommend, a lively shade of mauve-rose illuminated by a carmine-red eye, a splendid improvement on the popular variety Asia. 30 cts. each; $2.50 per doz.; $18.00 per 100.
Thor. A most beautiful and lively shade of deep salmon-pink suffused and overlaid with a scarlet glow and a light almost white halo around its analine-red eye. $2.00 per doz.; $15.00 per 100.
W. C Egan. One of the finest Phloxes yet introduced, and while the individual flowers according to the color-chart are of a delicate lilac color illuminated by a large bright solferino eye the color effect as a whole is a delicate pleasing shade of soft pink. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.
Widar. A splendid improvement on Edmond Rostand; in color a light reddish-violet, with very large white center, which intensifies the color.
Tragedie. Deep brilliant carmine with blood-red eye. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.
Wanadis. Entirely distinct, a mottling of white and light violet, reminding one of the native Phlox Divaricata Canadensis. The color is intensified by a bright reddish-purple eye, a strong grower producing trusses of immense size. $1.50 per doz.; $10.00 per 100.

Price. Any of the above varieties, except where noted, $1.00 per doz.; $6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000.

The Seed Trade

American Seed Trade Association.

Lester L. Morse, San Francisco, Calif., President; J. M. Lupton, Mattituck, L. I., N. Y., First Vice-President; E. C. Dungan, Philadelphia, Pa., Second Vice-President; C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O., Secretary and Treasurer; S. F. Willard, Jr., Cleveland, O., Assistant Secretary.

Thirty-Third annual meeting, San Francisco, Calif., June 1915.

THE death of H. Frank Darrow, New York, is recorded in our obituary column this week.

VILMORIN-ANDRIEUX & Co., Paris, France, have already lost 11 members of their staff in the war.

CHICAGO.—Prices for grass seed on the Board of Trade February 24 were as follows: Timothy, $5.50 to $7.25 per 100 pounds.—J. C. Vaughan was in Pittsburgh this week.

TORONTO, ONT.—Steele, Briggs Seed Co., Ltd., reports that a good season's business is anticipated, catalogue trade is coming in nicely, and considerably in advance of last year.

ALFRED UNGER, of Frankfort, Germany, formerly in Japan, is reported to be in the German army. Albert Steinbrucker, of Hamburg, Germany, is reported doing service as a soldier.

BURPEE'S "War Bulletin," received this week, supplements that firm's catalogue with eight pages of flower and vegetable seeds which could not be offered when the general list went to press.

CONGRESSMAN C. H. DILLON, who introduced in the house the uniform weights and measures bill H. R. 20526, reports that the bill must be pushed through the next congress before it can become a law.

VISITED CHICAGO: Robert Fulton, representing Henry & Lee, New York; E. M. Parmalee, of Sheboygan, Wis., returning from an eastern contracting trip. He reports that nearly all customers are placing new orders and that the total business shows a liberal increase.

DES MOINES, IA.—The Iowa Seed Co. anticipates a better business than last year. The volume of trade was off during November and December, but normal conditions were reached during January. Business at present is beginning to come freely, and continued favorable conditions are looked for.

BULLETIN NO. 13, issued by the Virginia Truck Experiment Station, Norfolk, under date of October 1, 1914, contains an interesting preliminary report by Loren B. Smith, covering experiments made at that station during 1914 for the control of green pea aphis. Results and cost of spraying with various insecticides, control by other methods, and preventive suggestions are included in the report.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—The prospects to L. L. May & Co. look very encouraging, although they were between two and three weeks later this year in mailing their catalogue than the year previous. Their catalogue trade is in excess of last year. It is too early for them to make any definite comparison, but by inquiries and the demand already commenced, they feel the trade for 1915 has a very satisfactory outlook.

Seedsman Urges Peace.

SIOUX CITY, IA.—I notice in your issue of February 20 an item to the effect that some of the German dealers are feeling bitter towards the American seed trade. I feel sure that those who feel that way are not familiar with the other fellows that are cancelling their contracts on the "force majeure clause," and of the real uncertainty that every seedsman in America feels in transacting business with foreign houses during the present conditions in Europe. I think no class of business interests will be more grateful for the restoration of universal peace than the seed dealers of America, or none that feel a greater charity toward all with malice toward none.

H. A. JOHNS.

American Stock of Potatoes.

Unusually large stocks of potatoes were held on January 1 in the large potato-producing states, according to reports of correspondents of the bureau of crop estimates at Washington. Southern potato growers who compete in the spring months with the stocks carried over in the northern states should recognize this fact, that supplies of northern potatoes are larger than in any of the past five years. Prices are unusually low and therefore may not decline further, but material advances in the next few months can not be forecast from present supplies. The estimates indicate that 52.8 per cent of the marketable supply of potatoes of the 1914 crop remained in the hands of producers or dealers on January 1 in the states included in the investigation, which compares with 51.6 per cent of the 1913 crop held on January 1, 1914, 49.6 per cent similarly held two years ago, 41.7 three years ago, and 51.1 four and five years ago.

If, for the purpose of comparison, these percentages be applied to the estimates of total production, it shows, in the states included (which produced 78 per cent of the United States crop), a total of 166,846,000 bushels January 1, 1915, compared with 123,292,000 a year ago, 149,845,000 two years ago, 90,778,000 three years ago, 133,411,000 four years ago, and 142,381,000 five years ago. One feature of the situation is that stocks are held by growers more largely than usual. This year their holdings on January 1 were nearly 5.6 times the amount held by dealers, whereas in the past five years their holdings have averaged four times the amount held by dealers. The United States seldom imports or exports relatively a large quantity of potatoes. Therefore the European war has no material direct bearing upon the potato market of the United States.

BOSTON, MASS.—Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co. is very much pleased with responses to their catalogues recently mailed, and adds that every appearance gives promise of exceptionally good business this year.

FLORAL PARK, N. Y.—Regarding the spring trade conditions, John Lewis Childs writes as follows: "The first half of January, business was about normal, but dropped off considerable during the period from January 15 to February 10. Business since February 10, however, has been very good, running considerably ahead of the corresponding period last year."

SHENANDOAH, IA.—The Henry Field Seed Co., under date of February 22, writes as follows: "Our business the past week showed an increase of 51 per cent in number of orders over the corresponding week last year and an increase of 69 per cent in cash receipts. For the whole season so far, we are about 5,000 orders ahead of the same period last year. We have set our stakes for 100,000 orders during 1915, against 83,000 received last year, but if the present rate of gain holds up we will go far beyond that figure."

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—"All seeds are moving freely, and we anticipate the biggest year in our existence," writes Chris Reuter. "The month of January opened up nicely, with orders ahead of the same period in 1914, but inclement weather in the south, during January, caused a large depreciation in sales. The month of February is showing a splendid increase both in volume and number of orders. The demand for high-priced bean is exceptionally heavy. The price does not seem to have any effect on the sale when a crop is to be planted. The demand for seed corn, seed oats, soy beans, velvet beans, sorghums, millets, etc., is heavy. The growers are planting more home garden than usual and putting in large crops of grain and hay. All southern seed houses will undoubtedly show remarkable trade increases this year, owing to depreciation in cotton acreage."

Burpee Quality Flower Seeds

CONDITIONS in Europe preclude the possibility of securing flower seed from that source within any reasonable time. When stocks become depleted during the season, an American source of supply of undoubted integrity is highly essential.

Fordhook Farms—America's greatest and most complete trial grounds—are famous for the finest strains of flower seeds, especially Antirrhinums, Balsams, Begonias, Celosia Plumosa, Perennial Chrysanthemum, Coleus, Dolichos, Gladiolus, Gourds, Heliotrope, Marigolds, Morning Glories, Petunias, Phlox Drummondi, Poppies, Portulaca, Salvia, Sunflower, Torenia and Zinnia.

Floradale Farm—the California home of Sweet Peas—produces in addition to tons of Sweet Pea seeds the very finest strains of Centaurea, Imperialis, Cosmos, Dahlias, Delphiniums, Dimorphotheca, Eschscholtzias, Hollyhocks, Marigolds, Pelargoniums, Nasturtiums, Petunia, Pentstemon and Verbena.

Sunnybrook Farm in South Jersey has produced for a number of years exceedingly fine strains of Petunia, Poppies, Dahlias, Ipomœas and Dolichos.

With these vast quantities of flower seeds at our command, we are in a position to offer to the trade superior stocks of seeds which have formerly been secured in Europe. When in the market for the very best strains of flower seeds, kindly submit a list of your requirements for quotation.

Please bear in mind that we are in no position to offer in a wholesale way (as we are entirely sold out) the following: Morning Glory Tall Mixed, Ricinus Zanzibarensis, Marvel of Peru Mixed, Vincas and Thunbergia Mixed.

SUPPLY GOOD AND DEMAND STEADY.

St. Valentine day's business was tremendous here. There was a big call for violets, roses, carnations and all varieties of spring flowers, for gifts, and an unusual demand for decorations for parties and dinners. Prelenten parties were numerous and novel decorations were carried out for several announcements of St. Valentine parties. Business has been good in other lines, mostly funeral work. All flowers are in the height of their season. Spring flowers are now appearing in many varieties and are special favorities with the public. Richmond and Rhea Reid roses are of excellent size with good color. These have been greatly in demand, and the supply lately has been rather short. Violets are still plentiful, although they have had a good run. Carnations are good, but not as plentiful as is desired. Easter lilies are not as plentiful as a few weeks ago.

A novel table decoration for a St. Valentine's day dinner was carried out in Richmond roses and violets, which decorated three white lacy straw hats. This decoration was arranged by the Flick Floral Co.

The Bradley Flower Shop has rented a new store at 1026 Calhoun street, to which they will move, March 20. They are now located at 828 Calhoun street.

DREER'S PEERLESS PINK ASTER

Dreer's Famous American Asters

We offer below a short list of the most important sorts; all of the veryhighest quality. For complete list, see our Wholesale Catalogue.

Dreer's Superb Late Branching Asters.

The finest Asters for late August and September blooming.

The plants form strong, branching bushes, 2 to 2½ feet high bearing on long strong stems their handsome chrysanthemum-like flowers, which, under ordinary cultivation, averages 5 inches across. The form of the flowers, together with the length of the stems, places them at the head of Asters for cutting. We offer eight beautiful and distinct colors, viz::

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Azure Blue. Rich lavender	$0 25	$1 00
Pure White. Extra fine stock	25	1 00
Shell Pink. An exquisite shade.	25	1 00
Rose Pink. A very desirable color	25	1 00
Deep Rose. Rich and brilliant	25	1 00
Deep Purple. Royal deep purple	25	1 00
Lavender. A pale grayish-lavender	25	1 00
Crimson. Very rich.	25	1 00
Finest Mixed. All the colors	25	75

Dreer's "Peerless Pink" Aster.

This grand Aster may be briefly described as a glorified late branching shell-pink. The color is similar but more decided than the late branching. The center petals are prettily incurved, while the wide outer petals reflex, making a most artistic and finely finished flower, and stands cut longer than any other. 50c per trade pkt.; $2.50 per oz.

Queen of the Market Asters.

The standard early flowering variety; good flowers on long stems.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White	$0 20	$0 75
Lavender	20	75
Pink	20	75
Bright Rose	20	75
Purple	20	75
Crimson	20	75
Mixed	15	65

King Asters.

The "King" Asters form a distinct class or type. They are of strong, sturdy habit, growing fully 18 inches high, and bear from August to October very large double blossoms, the petals of which are more or less quilled, forming very attractive flowers.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
Dreer's Crimson King. A brilliant new color in this type, which originated with us. It is the richest and deepest crimson variety known to us	$0 50	$3 00
Pink King. Delicate shell-pink	40	2 00
Rose King. A beautiful brilliant rose	40	2 00
White King. Of purest glistening white.	50	3 00

Astermums.

This strain of Giant Comet Asters were first exhibited at the Florists' Convention in 1912, and their immense size and chrysanthemum-like appearance created quite a sensation. They closely resemble Crego's Giant, but come into bloom fully two weeks earlier. We offer three colors:

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White Astermum	$0 50	$2 50
Pink "	50	2 50
Lavender "	50	3 00

Crego's Giant Comet Asters.

Magnificent fluffy flowers, with long strong stems, the finest of this type. Comes into bloom in August, continuing well into September, and unlike most of the Comet sorts, stands when cut and is a good flower to ship. We offer five colors, our own saving, of the highest quality.

	Tr. pkt.	Oz.
White. Purest white	$0 30	$1 50
Pink. Delicate shell-pink	30	1 50
Purple. Bright purple	30	1 50
Rose. Rich deep rose.	30	1 50
Lavender. A rich deep shade	30	1 50

Prices of Indoor Fruits and Vegetables.

Chicago, February 23.—Mushrooms, 50 cents per pound; lettuce 20 cents per box; radishes, 30 cents to 50 cents per dozen bunches; asparagus, $2.00 per dozen bunches; celery, 12 stalks, 15 cents to 25 cents; cucumbers, $1.25 to $1.75.

New York, February 23.—Cucumbers, $1.50 to $2.00 per dozen; mushrooms, 60 cents to $1.25 per 4-pound basket; tomatoes, 15 cents to 25 cents per pound; radishes, per 100 bunches, $1.50 to $2.00; lettuce, per strap, $2.00 to $3.00.

Flats.

The increasing scarcity of manure for making hot-beds at the right time, together with a scarcity of good help—these are factors that are rapidly changing the methods of plant production. More and more growers have the advantage of greenhouses for this work. By using flats, plants can be grown inside and hardened off in cold frames under cloth; if sash are not at hand—and these cold frames can have a steam pipe or hot water pipe to carry them safely through a cold spell. The great advantage of this arrangement is that the work can be done on time, regardless of weather conditions, and it can be pushed day and night if needed. The flats in this scheme form an important link. Some claim cheapness by ripping up grocery boxes, but we doubt this very much. Uniformity of width, depth and length, together with durability are more important than cheapness of first cost. The flats to be practical, must fit closely on the benches or beds of the greenhouse, must again fit the cold frames, and last but not least, must not be too heavy to handle. Almost a standard size has been developed in the trade, 3x12x24.

Some of our greenhouse construction companies are selling these in knocked down shape for a reasonable price and of durable cypress; by using galvanized nails these flats will last for years with good care. In the absence of cypress, chestnut makes a good wood. The requirements of a wood are—cheapness, durability, soft and non-splitting and freedom from warping. Such flats should be cleaned up at the end of the season and stacked in a dry shed.

For the best headway in operating, the ground used should be screened through a ½-inch mesh sand screen; a marker with pointed pegs can be used to fit the flats, thus pounding all the holes at once, making transplanting a rapid process. Spacing of plants can be 1½x1½ or 2x1½ inches. This, in a low temperature with ample air, should produce good plants.

—THE FAMOUS—

which we secured from the introducers last year, we planted, and it proved all and more than they claimed for it. We decided not to sell the fruit, as it looked too valuable to let go that way, so we have a limited amount of seed. One lady canned a few, and when placed on the table on lettuce leaves, the tomato retained its form and made an appetizing sight. Out of bushels none cracked, and all were ripe to the stem, and skin was taken off without cutting or scalding. 25c per pkg. of about 100 seeds, 5 pkgs. for $1.00.

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen: Your Adv. of Feb. 6th in The Florist Exchange is some puff for "John Baer" Tomato, which is all true. I tried the "John Baer" last year and there was not one in your Adv. that had one on me,

From t20 plants I sold over 2¼ tons of Tomatoes, Set 3 feet each way and trained to bamboo stakes trimmed to one shoot. When they became heavy with tomatoes, I tied the top of four stakes together as shown in the enclosed photo, and as the season was cold in the Spring could not set the plants until the last of May and commenced to market on the 17th of July. I rais d Celery between the rows. Inclosed find check for one ounce of "John Baer" Tomato Seed.

Very truly,

J. Bolgiano & Son, Baltimore, Md.

Gentlemen: Glad to see your Adv. again on "John Baer" Tomato Seed. I bought $1.00 worth of seed last year from you, all people gave me the laugh for paying such a price for Tomato Seed, but when they found me picking Big, Fine, Solid, Fine Tasting Fruit on the 3rd day of July, 1914, then all the neighbors came to see them. I could have sold all my fruit, but to please the "wise ones" I presented each with a nice basket of them. Out of 50 "John Baer" Plants I picked on an average of ½ bushel every other day, where on my other varieties, I did not average a small measure a day. I saved 12 of my largest and best "John Baer" Tomatoes for seed, there wasn't enough seed in them to give me 50 plants this year, so you see why I must send for some to be sure I will have good old "John Baer." By me it is more than you claimed for it, in your last year's Adv. in the Florist Exchange.

Yours respectfully, (Signed) WM. F. MASS,

The Nursery Trade

American Association of Nurserymen.

Henry B. Chase, Chase, Ala., President, E. S. Welch, Shenandoah, Ia., Vice-President; John Hall, 204 Granite bldg., Rochester, N. Y., Secretary.

Fortieth annual convention will be held at Detroit, Mich., June 23-25, 1915.

WIGGINS, MISS.—On account of the appearance of citrus canker in this section, local nurserymen are urging an inspection by an expert.

VACAVILLE, CALIF.—C. J. Uhl and C. R. McBride have formed a co-partnership for the purpose of conducting a nursery business here.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Grand Rapids was selected as the next meeting place of the Michigan Horticultural Society at its meeting in this city.

HANFORD, CALIF.—Almond growers anticipate good crops in this section, and with freedom from late frosts a good harvest can be expected.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—The Texas Cattle & Cactus Co. has been incorporated with a paid-up capital of $100,000 and will establish a spineless cactus nursery near Pecos, Texas.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—Senator McCormick has introduced a bill into the Indiana legislature, creating a department of horticulture and forestry and abolishing the state board of forestry.

ANDERSON, CALIF.—The Ehmann Olive Co., owners of one of the largest olive orchards in the state, have planted a carload of fruit trees. The varieties are olives, peaches and plums. Between 5,000 and 6,000 are olives.

REDLANDS, CALIF.—Directors of the Redlands Horticultural Society have decided to hold a spring flower show April 9-10. S. R. Hotchkiss and S. Hockridge are the committee on rules and classifications. The society will offer $200 in cash prices.

OAKDALE, CALIF.—The growing of English walnuts on an extensive scale will be undertaken this summer in this section. Thousands of walnut trees have been ordered and are now being planted in the irrigated districts. By irrigating the trees from the ditches all danger of scald has been eliminated.

Nursery Inspection in California.

Uniformity in regulation and inspection of trees, shrubs and all horticultural and agricultural plants and plant products is the aim of senate bill No. 861 by Chandler of Fresno. The bill emanates from the state horticultural department and is one of those with the administration backing that assures its passage.

Briefly the Chandler bill provides for a force of inspectors and deputies to the state commissioner of horticulture in the various counties, these inspectors and deputies to be directly responsible to the state commissioner instead of to the county authorities. Provision is made for the inspection of all nursery stock grown in the state or imported from other states. Fruit and ornamental trees, shrubbery, plants, buds, seeds, vines, vegetables, and all horticultural and agricultural plants and plant products are included. Not only are shippers of nursery stock required to give inspectors access to their places, but no shipment shall be made unless plants, trees, etc., bear a certificate of inspection.

Dormant Roses Under Storage.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

What is the best method of storing two-year dormant hybrid tea roses grafted and budded?

Illinois. R. G.

We find that the best method for storing two-year-old dormant hybrid tea roses is to cover them up in damp sand, but not wet sand. We think it is best to have the plants almost entirely covered, as we find that the mildew never goes back beyond the sand. We have also been quite successful in storing them in damp moss. Of course, the mildew must be kept out of the cellar as much as possible.

W. & T. SMITH COMPANY.

We believe that the best method of storing two year dormant hybrid tea roses is to cover the roots with light loamy soil. ELLWANGER & BARRY.

Evergreens for Middle West.

Speaking upon the subject of "Evergreens" at a meeting of the North Shore Horticultural Society at Lake Forest, Ill., January 15, 1915, A. H. Hill of Dundee, Ill., expressed his opinion that generally speaking, he believed it is best to confine middle-west planting to as few varieties as possible, selecting those only which are suited to our conditions. Evergreens, he stated, are not particular as to soil. They prefer a light sandy soil, and will do well in any well-drained soil, but they must be selected with reference to the position they are to occupy, the purpose they are to serve, and their relation to the place where they are to grow. For grouping at entrances, near dwelling houses, and for massing in formal plantings, dwarf evergreens are favorites, because they are always cheerful, in evidence, and wide awake the year round. Among the best for this purpose are Juniperus Canadensis, Pinus Mughus, globe arbor vitae, Sabina junipers, Juniperus procumbens, Siberian arbor vitae, Japanese yew.

The list of medium growing sorts is more extensive, some of the most valuable being hemlock, Juniperus glauca, Juniperus Schottii, red cedar, pyramidal arbor vitae, American arbor vitae, Swiss stone pine, Pfitzeriana juniper, concolor fir, Peabody's and Douglas golden arbor vitae, Englemann spruce. Some valuable tall growing sorts are white pine, white spruce, Douglas fir, Austrian pine, Black Hill spruce, red cedar, Colorado blue spruce. Of the small or dwarf growing evergreens, by far the best is Juniperus Canadensis and Juniperus Sabina prostrata, which are native along the north shore. They are splendidly suited to our conditions and excellent for rough banks, rocks and ornamental covers.

People often say—" I do not like evergreens, they are too melancholy" —and questioning will show that their principal acquaintance is with the Norway spruce. While it is true that the Norway spruce is useful and valuable for some purposes and locations, still the Norway spruce has done more than any other tree to injure the popular demand for evergreens.

THE BOOK OF GLADIOLUS

THE first authoritative book on this bulb ever printed in America, or possibly the world, issued April 1, 1911. This 120-page book, written by Matthew Crawford and Dr. Van Fleet, contains many chapters covering all sides of growing, propagating, storing, etc., and also some pages of valuable cultural notes gathered from reliable sources. A necessity for both amateur and grower. The book is bound in cloth and fully illustrated.

Good, strong, well-established plants in 2¼-inch pots of the exceedingly

Valuable New Roses

Ophelia, Francis Scott Key, and Prince E. C. D'Arenberg.

Growers will find all of these valuable additions to the list of standard varieties. They have been tested thoroughly, and have been found to have exceptional value.

OPHELIA. No fancy rose ever introduced possesses so many excellent qualities. It is a splendid grower, a very free bloomer, and has fine stems. It sells on sight. The demand undoubtedly will exceed the supply. Anticipating the large demand, we have propagated it extensively. Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

FRANCIS SCOTT KEY. This variety, raised by Mr. John Cook, is very distinct, being entirely different from any of the indoor roses grown today. Flowers are rosy red, and are unusually large and double, resembling very much a very full, double hardy garden rose. Coupled with its large size and double form, it is an exceedingly free bloomer. It promises to be exceedingly valuable, especially for spring, summer, and fall flowering, when other less double roses are difficult to handle. Its keeping qualities are remarkable.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $15.00 per 100; $120.00 per 1000.

PRINCE E. C. D'ARENBERG. This variety might well have been termed Red Killarney, as it possesses so many of the good qualities of the Killarneys. In color, the flowers are similar to Richmond, but they are much more double, and it should prove a very much more profitable rose. Flowers have fine straight stems on all the grades—from the shortest to the longest. It has fine foliage, comes away quickly, and is even a freer bloomer than the Killarneys. We believe it is the best all-round red rose that we have today.

Strong plants on own roots, 2¼-in. pots, now ready, $12.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

We will be glad to quote on application prices on all the newer and standard varieties—strong grafted plants ready in March.

OPHELIA, ONE OF THE FEW THAT HAS PROVEN ITS WORTH

We have grown this magnificent rose the past season, with most gratifying results. As a free and vigorous grower and great producer it has no equal. It sets bud freely in the short days of winter, and is now coming in with a heavy midwinter crop, doing equally well on grafts or own roots.

MRS. GEORGE SHAWYER is at present more favorably thought of than ever, and we intend to again plant it heavily this season. As a money getter, our experience has proven its superiority over all sorts, and having grown extensively on own roots and grafts, we have no hesitancy in stating that like Sunburst, it does better on own roots.

We will have a splendid lot of both varieties, (grafts and own root), ready for shipment about the middle of March, together with a choice lot of Sunburst, Ward, Prince d' Arenberg, White and Pink Killarney, cutting taken from sand the latter part of December. MATCHLESS A GREAT SUCCESS

MATCHLESS is the best and most profitable white carnation to grow, having no equal in earliness, vigor of growth and production. It is superior in size, fragrance and keeping qualities and is non-bursting. It is a continuous bloomer and is handled with ease by any grower.

Fine Rooted Cuttings for Immediate Delivery,
$6.00 per 100; $50.00 per 1000; $112.50 per 2500; $200.00 per 5000.

Newport, R. I.

After nosing around a while, I found James Watt, the gardener, in the stokehole gathering some very fine mushrooms. One which I saw weighed four ounces. Mr. Watt called attention to a batch of Cypripedium splendens, and said this variety did well if grown cool; otherwise, it would drop its buds. These plants were in flower and look nice. A house of Carnations Ward and Enchantress is well grown, as all stock seemed to be about this place.

Under the patronage of the winter colony of society people, a mid-winter flower show for house plants will be held at the Civic League House March 9-10. The object of the show is to encourage public school children and others, not professionals, to grow plants and flowers. A first prize will be awarded in each class where three entries are made, and an honorable mention as a second prize, if over three entries. Admission will be free.

The appointment of John B. Sullivan, as postmaster of Newport, is quite a step to take from the occupation of gardener. He, along with being a good gardener, is an able speaker, and in recent years has shown much ability in both state and municipal affairs, hence the appointment.

A visit to Mrs. G. W. Welds greenhouses showed a handsome bench of Amaryllis Hippeastrum. These beautiful hybrids, with their clusters of the richest scarlet and blood-red blooms, were a sight worth seeing.

At the next meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., West Grove, Pa., will deliver a lecture, the subject being, "Among the Roses at Home and Abroad."

Wouldn't You?

IF you could keep the water of condensation out of your steam lines and supply your boiler with chemically pure feed water—if you could maintain a steady, even temperature in your greenhouses and feed the condensation to your boilers, placed above ground—wouldn't you be effecting a wonderful saving in time, fuel and labor? With the

Two layers of glass instead of one

One small inexpensive greenhouse made of Sunlight Double Glass Sash.

Get our catalog

This book points the way to bigger profits in gardening. It gives the actual experience of growers all over the country—tells how they, with the aid of Sunlight Double Glass Sash grew bigger, stronger, earlier plants which yielded the big, early market prices.

This catalog is free. If Prof. Massey's booklet on the care and use of a hot-bed, cold frame or a small greenhouse is wanted, send 4c in stamps.

Early plants make the profitable garden

You cannot possibly have vegetables ready for the early prices or flower beds to bloom right unless you use hot-beds and cold frames for starting and expediting them.

Now is the time

Sunlight Double Glass Sash make the earliest and strongest plants at the least cost of labor and money. They are complete without mats or shutters. As they are never covered the plants get all the light and warmth that the sun affords and are secure against the cold night and day.

Expert gardeners and florists, men who know from experience, look upon the Sunlight Double Glass Sash as the standard of efficiency in gardening.

Immediate shipment is made and freights are equalized to the customer according to the distance. Ask about this when you write—and write today.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Executive Committee Meeting, Chicago, March 1-2.

Making Floricultural History.

President Welch, of the Society of American Florists, has every reason to feel proud of the great gathering of prominent men at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, March 1-2, representing the floricultural interests of America. The occasion was the annual spring meeting of the executive committee of the national organization at which its important work is discussed and regulated, including meetings, exhibitions and legislation. For the first time in the history of the society representatives of affiliated bodies participated, marking another era of trade co-operation and progress.

It was eminently fitting that such a meeting should take place in Chicago, where the Society of American Florists and Florists' Hail Association first saw the light in 1884. At this time, when so much is heard against the location of the national conventions and trade exhibitions in such outlying states as Texas, Louisiana and California, it should not be out of place to remind the trade that when the society was organized, only some 30 years ago, its birthplace was considered the far western outcoast of floriculture. There has been remarkable development in all branches of the trade during the intervening years, the handgrasp of fraternity extending from territorial to continental proportions, the confines fading away in seas and ice fields.

The first executive committee meeting of the society was held at Pittsburgh, Pa., February, 1885, and the first annual convention at Cincinnati, O., the following August. The officers of the society at that time were: John Thorpe, Queens, N. Y., president; J. M. Jordan, St. Louis, Mo., vice-president; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., secretary; M. A. Hunt, Chicago, treasurer. Papers and discussions at the Cincinnati meeting included, "Diseases of Plants and Their Remedies," Charles Henderson, Jersey City, N. J.; "Plant Nomenclature," Robt. J. Halliday, Baltimore, Md.; "The Cut Flower Trade," Wm. J. Stewart, Boston, Mass.; "Roses," J. N. May, Summit, N. J.; "Spring and Summer Cut Flowers," H. Michel, St. Louis, Mo.; "Steam Versus Hot Water," John Thorpe, Queens, N. Y.

The attendance at the Chicago meeting this week was most satisfactory, only five members of the board and the national flower show committee failing to appear. Those in attendance were: Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; John Young, New York; W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; August Poehlmann, Chicago; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; J. A. Peterson, Cincinnati, O.; R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Samuel J. Goddard, Framingham, Mass.; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; George Burton, Philadelphia, Pa.; H. H. Bartsch, Boston, Mass.; Geo. Asmus, Chicago; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; W. P. Craig, Philadelphia, Pa.; C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O., and A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis.

Vice-President MacRorie, of San Francisco, Calif., was unable to attend owing to the pressure of work following the opening of the Panama-Pacific exposition. He sent in the names of 44 new members, however, three of them life members, and promised to meet the officers of the society at the New York show, March 17-23, with details of the local arrangements for the annual convention and trade exhibition, to be held in his city next August. Mr. MacRorie's unavoidable absence was greatly deplored, as was that of President Pierson, of the American Rose Society, President Bunyard, of the New York Florists' Club, and Chas. H. Totty, and W. N. Rudd, of the National Flower Show committee.

Details of the proceedings at the meeting will not be made public until Secretary Young finds an opportunity to send them to the trade press, but it is understood that the principal subjects of discussion were trade publicity, national flower show, convention arrangements and transportation. The proposition of the Chicago Florists'

Club transportation committee to arrange for a convention train leaving this city over the Northwestern railroad, next August, was approved and President Welch appointed a committee, consisting of President Bunyard, of the New York Florists' Club; President Burton, of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, and President Bartsch of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, of Boston, to co-operate with the local committee in completing arrangements.

Monday evening nearly all the visitors attended the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club, a report of which will be found elsewhere in this issue, and they were entertained at luncheon at the Hotel LaSalle Wednesday afternoon by representative men of the local trade, where Chairman George Asmus, of the National Flower Show Committee, officiated as toastmaster, calling on the following: Phillip Breitmeyer and Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.; G. E. M. Stumpp, New York; E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; J. C. Vaughan, Chicago; P. Welch, Boston, Mass.; C. L. Washburn, Chicago; August Poehlmann, Chicago; John Young, New York; Wm. Kroeschell, of the Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; George Sykes, of the Lord & Burnham Co., Chicago; Wm. F. Gude, Washington, D. C.; Chas. Henry Fox, Philadelphia, Pa.; L. D. McNeff, Chicago; Thos. Roland, Nahant, Mass.; W. W. Barnard, Chicago; Ernst Wienhoeber, Chicago; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; H. H. Bartsch, Boston, Mass.; George Burton, Philadelphia, Pa.; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; Adolph Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Alex. Henderson, Chicago.

The subjects principally discussed were publicity and credits, Mr. Washburn touching a highly responsive key in referring to the loose business methods of the trade. Everyone present was greatly interested in this topic and it will not be surprising if the opinions expressed at this gathering, representing a great part of the country, result in the formation of a credit bureau conducted by the national society.

Much sympathy was expresed with W. N. Rudd in the illness which compelled him to forego the pleasure of participating in the work of the visitors.

The Much Abused Clique.

What is the Clique? 'Tis a body of men
Who attend every meeting, not just now and then;
Who don't miss a meeting unless they are sick—
These are the men that the grouch calls "The Clique."

Who don't make a farce of that sacred word "brother,"
Who believe in the motto to "help one another;"
Who never resort to a dishonest trick—
These are the men that some call "The Clique."

The men who are seldom behind in their dues,
And who from the meetings do not carry news;
Who attend to their duties and visit the sick—
These are the men that the crank calls "The Clique."

We all should be proud of members like these—
They call them "The Clique" or whatever they please;
They never attempt any duties to dodge;
These are "the cliques" that run most every lodge.

But there are some people who always find fault,
And most of this kind are not worth their salt;
They like to start trouble, but seldom will stick—
They like to put all the work on "The Clique."

ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION

Annual Meeting and Exhibition, Urbana, March 2-3.

The Exhibition.

The tenth annual convention of the Illinois State Florists' Association was held at the floricultural building, University of Illinois, Urbana, March 2-3. Owing to the board of directors' meeting of the S. A. F. and O. H. being held in Chicago on the same days, the usual large exhibits from that city were missing this year, but there were good representative exhibits from the other sections of Illinois, and from our neighboring states of Indiana and Missouri and other parts of the country. The E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind., exhibited four vases of roses in elegant shape, namely: Ophelia, extra fine; Lady Alice Stanley, a beautiful pink of large size; Hoosier Beauty, the well-known new red rose; and a yellow seedling, a very pretty flower. Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, Ill., staged a fine vase of their new red carnation, Belle Washburn, which was fine in form, good color, large flower carried on extra good stems, a fine variety in every way. John Steidle, Olivette, Mo., exhibited seedling carnation Sunbeam, flesh pink, fine in form, good color, a very promising commercial variety. Edward Winkler, Wakefield, Mass., showed a vase of the very pretty carnation, Morning Glow; it is not a large flower, but it has a very pretty blend of colors and appears to be a good keeper. The Mount Greenwood Cemetery Association, Morgan Park, Chicago, exhibited a nice vase of Rosette and another of crimson seedling, No. 6909-A. J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, had on exhibition a large vase of the new scarlet carnation, Aviator, very bright in color and of good form. A. C. Brown, Springfield, exhibited vases of the following standard varieties, all in fine condition: Mrs. C. W. Ward, Beacon, White Wonder, Enchantress and Sangamo. Chas. E. Walker, Danville, staged some well grown White and Pink Enchantress. Frank B. Smith's Sons, Danville, exhibited two promising crimson seedlings, No. 2-02 and No. 108. Chas. Loveridge, Peoria, staged one vase of Killarney and one of White Killarney, which for quality were the equal of any that have been staged at these meetings heretofore; also, a well-grown vase of Philadelphia carnation. A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington, exhibited six vases of extra fine Princess of Wales violets and some vases of winter flowering types of sweet peas. J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet, also had a very fine bright red sweet pea on exhibition. F. Dorner & Sons' Co., LaFayette, Ind., exhibited Rose Hoosier Beauty and carnations Pink Sensation and Good Cheer in fine condition. J. E. Yeats, Champaign, showed the new rose Mrs. Sarah Yeats, color of Richmond, and vases of well-grown White Killarney, Killarney, Richmond, Sunburst and Carnation White Enchantress; also a vase of callas. The plant exhibits consisted of well-grown kentias, pans of tulips, Von Sions, longiflorum lilies, azaleas and rhododendrons from J. E. Yeats, Champaign; the new begonia Mrs. J. A. Peterson, from J. A. Peterson & Sons, Westwood, Cincinnati, O.; fine pots of lily of the valley, primula obconica, spireas and deutzias from Smith, the Florist, Danville. Miscellaneous exhibits consisted of a display advertisement by Kroeschell Bros. Co., boiler makers of Chicago, and samples of flower pots and vases from the Haeger Brick & Tile Co., Elgin.

C. W. Johnson.
President-Elect Illinois State Florists' Ass'n.

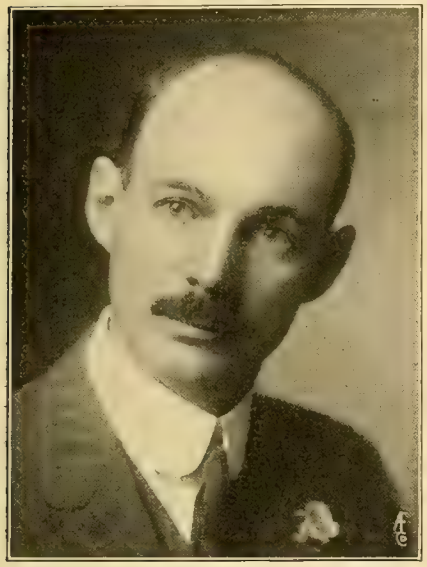
The Business Meeting.

The business meeting opened at 2:45 p. m., March 2, with President H. E. Smith in the chair. Before proceeding with the regular order of business, the members listened to a very eloquent address of welcome by Dr. E. Davenport, dean of the College of Agriculture, Urbana, Ill. The dean impressed upon his hearers the very important object of the university, which was to serve the people of the whole country, and to teach them to avoid mistakes. He spoke of the study of the economic side of production, and also of the good work that Prof. Dorner, with Prof. Blair at the back of him, was doing.

The nomination and election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows: C. W. Johnson, Morgan Park, president; I. L. Pillsbury, Galesburg, vice-president; J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville, secretary; F. L. Washburn, Bloomington, treasurer.

It was moved and seconded that the society hold semi-annual meetings, one of which was to be at Urbana. An invitation was received from the Tri-City Florists' Club to hold the next annual meeting at Rock Island, and was referred to the executive committee.

E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., gave one of his encouraging talks, which was greatly enjoyed by all the members present. Reports were read from the professors of the floriculture department, after which the meeting adjourned.



Herbert E. Smith.
President Illinois State Florists' Association.

SOME PROMINENT MEN IDENTIFIED WITH THE ILLINOIS STATE FLORISTS' ASSOCIATION CONVENTION AT URBANA, MARCH 2-3.

President Smith's Address.

Dean Davenport, members of the floriculture department and of the Illinois State Florists' Association: It is a great pleasure and benefit for our society to meet here at the experiment station, where we can see the results of the work being carried on by the floricultural staff. With this spacious service building, and the modern greenhouses attached, we can certainly feel that the commonwealth of our great state of Ilinois has become more interested in our vocation, and I hope that appropriations for additions to this plant will soon be forthcoming.

We gather here today for the tenth annual meeting and exhibition of our association; I am sure we will all be much interested in the reports of our secretary, treasurer, and the advisory committee; also the reports by the members of the department of floriculture on subjects of vital interest to all florists. Florists' conventions and exhibitions are becoming more popular and profitable each year, a fact demonstrated by the large attendance at the flower shows throughout the country. The grower who exhibits a novelty of merit at these shows is worthy of success, on account of the ever increasing demand of the flower buying public for something new—something different. A great many florists invest each year in enough plants of new varieties to give them a thorough test, and claim the better return received from the ones that make good, always offsets the loss on varieties that are not adapted to their soil and conditions. The originators of new varieties of roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and novelties in the plant line, the inventions and improvements in greenhouse building and labor-saving devices, etc., should have the hearty support of all florists. Often years of patient labor, bring results that are of more benefit to the trade in general, than to the originator.

One of the objects of the association is to promote in all possible ways the art of floriculture. Let us get together, get better acquainted and exchange ideas and experiences; perhaps some one has some new method that may be of benefit to his neighbor, and, after the two days' meeting is over, may we return to our homes feeling well repaid for the short time spent in deliberation. My thoughts are ever with the association, and I trust that what I have failed to express in words has been, or will be, accounted for by my deeds.

Report of the Secretary.

Your secretary reports an increase of annual members of only four and life members two. This is the smallest addition to our ranks in any one year since the organization.

I regret to report the death during the past year of W. L. Palinsky, of Chicago. He was among the foremost of our fellow workers, having last year secured 13 new members—more than any member ever turned in at any one time. We sincerely sympathize with his bereaved family.

It is also with deepest regret that I report the death of Mrs. Chas. Loveridge, of Peoria, the beloved wife of our worthy ex-president. She was a regular attendant at our annual gatherings. She was always cheerful, and with a good word for everyone. I am sure I voice the sentiment of each and every member of this society in extending to Mr. Loveridge and his bereaved family our deepest sympathy.

SECRETARY'S FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Received from annual dues	$61.00
Received from life members	20.00
	$81.00
Paid secretary's expense	$34.65
Paid for printing	13.50
Paid for Florists' directory	3.00
Paid for flowers	5.00
	$56.15

Respectfully submitted.
J. F. AMMANN.

Judges' Report on Exhibits.

E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.—Pink rose, Lady Alice Stanley, awarded a score of 85 points. Rose, yellow seedling; highly commended. A vase each of Roses Ophelia and Hoosier Beauty, of excellent quality.

Chas. Loveridge, Peoria.—Vase each of White and Pink Killarney, exceptionally fine. Carnation Philadelphia; vase of well-grown flowers.

Fred Dorner & Sons' Co., La Fayette, Ind.—Rose Hoosier Beauty, Carnation Good Cheer, dark pink; good quality. Carnation Pink Sensation; light pink, long stiff stem, large size flower of exceptional merit.

J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., Joliet.—Carnation Aviator, bright red; highly commended. Sweet peas, vase of cerise Butterfly peas, unnamed, large flower, good stems.

Chas. C. Walker, Danville.—Carnations Enchantress and White Enchantress.

A. C. Brown, Springfield.—Five vases of carnations of the following varieties: Sangamo, Enchantress, White Enchantress, Beacon and Mrs. C. W. Ward.

Edward Winkler, Wakefield, Mass.—Carnation Morning Glow; a pleasing shade of pink, medium sized flower, but evidently of exceptional keeping qualities and a good shipper.

Bassett & Washburn, Hinsdale.—Carnation Belle Washburn; a red of excellent quality.

Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Association, Mt. Greenwood, Chicago.—Carnation Rosette; fine vase of flowers, evenly colored and in excellent condition. Carnation seedling, 6909-A, maroon.

Frank B. Smith's Sons, Danville.—Carnation seedling, 108-03, maroon; scored 80 points. Carnation seedling, No. 2, maroon. Display of plants consisting of lily of the valley, Primula obconica, hydrangeas, deutzias and spireas; highly commended.

John Steidle, Olivette, Mo.—Carnation Sunbeam, seedling, light pink; a variety of merit.

A. Washburn & Sons, Bloomington.—Several vases of Butterfly peas and Princess of Wales violets; good quality.

J. E. Yeats, Champaign.—Display of kentias, aucubas; bulbous stock and cut flowers consisting of callas, roses and carnations; also a vase of a new red rose, Sarah Yeats, which showed many points of merit.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, Ohio.—A new reddish pink begonia of the Lorraine type; a plant of exceptional merit—had been in full flower for two months.

Haeger Brick & Tile Co., Elgin.—Display of fancy pottery and standard pots.

Kroeschell Bros. Co., Chicago.—Blue prints of heating systems of both hot water and steam—and literature describing various types of boilers manufactured by this company.

The Social Session.

The social session held at the Hotel Beardsley, Champaign, was one of the best events in the history of the Illinois State Florists' Association. Prof. H. B. Dorner opened the occasion by introducing as chairman the president of the Students' Floriculture Club of the department of floriculture, who filled the place in the most creditable manner. Prof. Blair spoke on the work of the horticulture department of the University of Illinois, the growth of the Illinois State Florists' Association during the ten years of its existence, and of the support that had been given to the work of floriculture at the university, together with what was expected for the future. Prof. H. B. Dorner spoke of the work already accomplished, what the floriculture department was now doing, and of the various lines they were taking up and working out. Mr. Dorner also said a few words in regard to the graduates who had already gone out from the department and were making good in their chosen work.

Prof. Evans, responding for the landscape division, spoke of what they were doing and how important it was to the interests of the country, and of the advantages to the florist, no matter how small his place may be, to keep in touch and follow up the work now being carried on in landscape gardening. The other speakers of the evening were: E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; A. F. J. Baur, Indianapolis, Ind.; P. J. Foley, Chicago; Emil Buettner, Chicago; Ernst Wienhoeber, Chicago; H. Bruns, Chicago; John Evans, Richmond, Ind.; Chas. Loveridge, Peoria; E. F. Kurowski, Chicago; F. Oechslin, Chicago; J. M. Jansen, Holland; Retiring President H. E. Smith and each of the elected officers, who strongly urged every member to boost for the Illinois State Florists' Association.

The Visitors.

Those in attendance the opening day included the following:

Chas. J. Addems, Paxton.
J. F. Ammann, Edwardsville.

Illinois University Greenhouses.

Naturally the greenhouses and the work being carried on there was the principal attraction for the members, who took full advantage of all there was to be seen. It will well repay anyone interested in any branch of the florist trade to pay a visit to the University of Illinois floricultural department at this or any other time. On this occasion we noticed a very fine lot of well-grown cineraria plants, remarkable for their large heads of bloom and fine colors. A row of sweet peas were in excellent condition, full of fine large flowers of good substance. A great improvement can be seen in the large palm house, where the plants are making good growth and filling out into good specimens. It would take too long to go into the details of the work being carried on as regards fertilizers for roses and carnations, and the investigations of the diseases of various plants, but bulletins of the work are to be published from time to time, which can be had by writing the floricultural department.

State Florists' Association of Indiana.

At the invitation of W. Frank & Sons, Portland, Ind., the State Florists' Association of Indiana held its monthly meeting with them, March 2. Automobiles were in waiting to carry the delegation to the greenhouses. Frank & Sons have a perfectly modern range of 100,000 feet of glass, consisting of seven houses 30 by 309, eve and gutter houses connected, and are of the opinion that if more field room was available in the future they would build disconnected houses with a vacuum heating system. All the new introductions of roses are being tried out, and it looks as if they would hit Easter with an enormous crop. The carnations show expert culture of all the modern standard varieties. May Day is grown for light pink, and if one could see the benches as they stand, would call this variety a "come back." A new red seedling looks promising.

The meeting was presided over by W. J. Vesey, Jr., the newly elected president. A letter from J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill., urging all the growers in the middle west to get in line and grow exhibition blooms for the American Carnation Society's show to be held at St. Louis in 1916, was read before the meeting. Dinner was served at the Hotel Adair, the table being decorated by the Franks, and fancy roses and Portland Pride carnations were worn as favors. The Riverside Greenhouses, of Muncie, showed some fancy carnation blooms. An effort is being made to boost the membership list this year to 200 members strong to cover the entire state.

Among the members in attendance were the following: W. J. Vesey, Jr., Ft. Wayne; Herman Junge, John Hartje, O. E. Steinkamp, Indianapolis; H. J. and Harry Vanderhorst, St. Mary's, O.; J. A. Ernsberger, Celina, O.; C. H. and H. Treflinger, Van Wert, O.; E. E. Longstretch, Cincinnati, O.; I. J. Byers, Winchester; E. G. Baker, C. C. Clark, H. C. Harrison, C. A. Richardson, Clinton Stradling, Wm. Tringer, Muncie; Dillon Meyer, T. W. Tivener, Bluffton; Geo. Pastor, Huntington; H. C., C. L. and W. Frank, Portland; A. A. O'Brien, Union City; Henry B. Henley, Hartford City; E. E. Sutton, L. G. Barbier, Dunkirk; J. S. Stuart, Anderson.

THE RETAIL TRADE

Conducted by Robt. Kift, Philadelphia, Pa.

Retailing Flowers.

Lecture with demonstrations, delivered by Max Schling, New York, at the meeting of New York State Federation of Floral Clubs, at Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., February 8-12, 1915.

Every successful florist puts as much of his art into a few flowers as into a large order, and the one who buys, gets not only the flowers but the art as well. He who buys for cash, pays his dollars and cents for those particular flowers which serve his purpose, and if his purpose be defeated he does not patronize that florist again. The one who buys flowers for beauty's sake is the right flower buyer, and the florist who buys his stock, for beauty's sake is the best florist. He thus introduces those flowers to the buying public, and teaches them to appreciate flowers and to enjoy them. A good florist is not the one who sells for dollars and cents, but the man who puts his heart and his soul into his business. Every good florist studies his patrons as well as his stock. He should be as courteous to the poor patron as to the rich one. He should expect sometimes to make a personal sacrifice in order to please his customers. For example, perhaps a small child may come in with only a dime. The mother has given the child the money, and instead of buying candy, perhaps the child wants roses. Roses are a dollar and a half a dozen, but if the florist is the right kind, he will notice the child, understand the motive that has sent the child to his shop, and instead of searching for the shortest-stemmed flowers, he will give the child a fresh, long-stemmed rose, even if the price received barely covers the wholesale cost. All this is the ideal, however, and I am not here to speak about ideals; I am here to speak about retailing.

Max Schling.

The main thing in the flower business, in order to build it up and make the business grow, is to have good stock. An individual must strive not only to buy good stock and to sell that stock at good value, but to make his patron ask for his stock. In order to do this, the retailer's name must be written all over the stock. Whether selling direct to the individual or sending the flowers in response to orders, the flowers should be put in a box with the retailer's name prominently displayed. After this name has been given a prominent place, the retailer should have, behind that name, his personality, shown in the arrangement and quality of the flowers.

When making a bouquet, it is necessary to arrange the material in a way that is pleasing. Almost anything is graceful and attractive if arranged naturally, and if a florist can show his stock in such a way as to delight the eye of the public he is sure to be successful. To become a successful florist one must really serve his customers. In general, when a person comes in to give an order or to buy flowers for a friend, one will take almost anything that the florist urges. So, first of all, the good florist should ask the purpose for which the flowers are to be used. The retailer well knows that those good for dinner-table decorations are not at all suited for some other purposes.

Another essential for the successful florist is fairness. If a customer can spend ten or twelve dollars for roses at one dinner, but through the advice of the florist is able to secure that material for six or seven dollars, flowers for two dinners can be had for the price of one. Such a buyer is sure to remember the florist who aided him, and to return with other orders. If another customer has ten dollars to spend and telephones for a certain number of roses, not knowing that roses have gone down in price since the last order, the honest florist will never take advantage of his customer. Be fair with your patrons, gain their confidence, and after that their trade will always come to you.

Another big factor in the florist business is personality. There is no other business built up more largely upon individual personality than the florist's business. An up-to-date florist always uses his imagination and places himself in the position of his customer. If a young man comes in and wants a bouquet for a young lady, the florist, remembering the days of his own youth, will readily understand how such a bouquet should look. The bouquet can, and does, express personality, and the recipient must be able to read from the flowers the message which the young man intends to convey. A florist must always be able to suggest the right thing. Often his ability to estimate an individual's taste aids him in suggesting just the flowers desired. An important thing then to bear in mind is personality.

Florists who are far away from large centers, and have not the opportunities to get, at wholesale prices, all the flowers which they need in order to make a complete stock, are often handicapped. Those located in the smaller towns, where they cannot get all the best material which they would wish, such as violets and roses, are also at a disadvantage. One should remember, however, that during the summer, garden flowers, which are simple but pleasing in character, may often supply the need. Perhaps some friend or acquaintance has a small greenhouse, and during the winter, flowers from these may be obtained to fill a rush order. There is nothing prettier than the simple flowers at home. Do not spoil them, however, by tying them up with a lot of wire, thus making a bouquet that is stiff and heavy. There is beauty in every flower, and each should show its individuality. The flower may be yellow, blue or pink, still it is beautiful, and these colors may be used in the same bouquet if they are put together in the right way. And the right way is the natural way. Accept nature as your teacher. It is not always a choice of colors that makes a thing beautiful. Life is full of color for the individual who knows how to select material. A bouquet of natural flowers, varying in tint and shade, may be far prettier than a stiff formal bouquet of one particular color. In all flower arrangement, simplicity should be followed. In arranging a corsage bouquet, a simple design is especially desirable. The flowers should be put together loosely, tying them as little as possible, yet enough so that they will hold together easily and naturally. Such a bouquet can then be pinned on the lightest dress without harm.

Floral baskets should be simple and graceful. They should be filled with plants or flowers in a natural way, with a few ferns for covering. These baskets should be planted so that the soil is completely hidden. When some one waters it, it is, therefore, necessary to put the hand into the basket to ascertain if the soil is sufficiently wet. Baskets should have but little trimming. A small bow of ribbon to brighten the basket will be sufficient. Under no circumstances should this be conspicuous enough to distract attention from the plant.

Simplicity is especially essential for centerpieces for dinner tables. The best way to construct a centerpiece is to make it in some kind of a basket, using broken ferns for filling. These are moistened and among these ferns, roses may be arranged in a natural way. In arranging the roses, it is often necessary to cut them, so that some flowers may be taller than others. Centerpieces can be made with the flowers all arranged in water at very little expense. If a florist sends out an article of this kind, which will be as fresh and pretty at the end of the dinner as at the beginning his reputation is established. If there promises to be a rush of work during the day, the centerpiece can be made in the early morning, and then put aside until it is time to arrange the dinner table. Such a method is far better than having to hurry his force to finish the order late in the day. If a patron desires to buy the flowers and make the centerpiece at home, it does not injure the florist's business, for such customers will tell their friends about their methods and there will be an increased demand for flowers for centerpieces, and for the materials used in making them. If, on the other hand, a florist makes a centerpiece, and it has poor keeping qualities, his business is injured. It always pays the florist to sell only what is best and freshest. This is true, whether one sells directly to the customer or sends flowers out. He should remember that he is selling his name and his reputation with his flowers.

There is no business which brings a business man into closer contact with his patrons than does the flower business. Purchasers of flowers need the florist all through life. For a birthday celebration, flowers are sent early in the morning, and in case a person dies that evening, flowers are needed again

Flowers are for the baby, when it comes into the world; they are used for the christening, the wedding; in fact, all the events of life. They are especially helpful in the sick-room, when a person knows no one, can talk to no one, and is interested in nothing. It is then that flowers cheer, brighten and bring comfort. They are thus enjoyed by all and needed by all. This the florist should always remember, thinking constantly of his close contact with humanity. He should thus put himself and his individuality into a work that is helpful to all mankind. This is sure to develop a successful business; in fact, it is the secret of success.

One should aim to become more than a florist, and should aspire to be an artist, for it is the ability to understand and appreciate flowers that makes the artist. When we begin to realize the beauty in flowers, when we stop to think how flowers may be utilized artistically, when we consider how we can place our flowers to the best advantage in the shop, then we are utilizing an artistic instinct. When we think for the purchaser and give him the benefit of our artistic ability, he will in turn boom our business. Thus without any special effort to succeed, we yet become successful and without putting our desire to make money first, we find that the patronage is making us prosperous.

One great trouble with florists is that no matter how good florists they may be, they are not good enough gardeners. A man who knows how to grow flowers knows how to handle them. It has been said that out of a hundred florists, eighty-five fail utterly, about ten make a bare living, three or four do a pretty good business, and one makes a decided success. One secret of success is a personal attention to business. It matters not whether a florist be beginning or whether he have thirty or forty men in his employ; no matter where he is located or how large his business is, he must always be in the store. This is not because his clerks cannot be depended upon, but because there is no other business so absolutely dependent upon the presence and personality of the owner. When one orders material for a friend, he wants it absolutely right. When a florist has a large business he cannot of course expect to serve all customers personally. What he can and must do, however, is to impress his customer with the fact that whether the order be given to the boy at the door, the telephone girl, the bookkeeper, or any of the many salesmen, it will be given careful attention. The owner must be present to see that this is carried out. Thus he insures the confidence of his patrons.

Every efficient florist realizes that he has one big factor to fight against. He is very busy during the winter months, and has little to do in summer. Florists, unlike tailors and shoemakers, cannot fill in spare time by making up their stock in advance. One thing they can do, however, during these periods when business is dull, is to make up boxes and baskets. When the great European war started, and I saw that my employes might not have sufficient work, I began to think what I could best give them to do. Instead of paying four or five hundred dollars for a certain kind of flower receptacles, I bought the material and made them up. This practice gives the men work through the dull hours, helps to "prepare for winter" in our business, and aids in keeping us all more cheerful and contented.

In closing, let me tell you an old, old story. There were once some wonderful mills and whenever one felt old and tired and discouraged, he went to the mills, and they ground out beauty, joy, pleasure, youth and contentment. These mills were lost, and for many years men searched for them in vain. They have been found again. Mother nature has given them back to us, for our flowers and plants are the old mills, come back to us again. The children of nature will inherit the beauty that others have lost; they inherit the gift of giving pleasure to humanity; and ever since the days of the lost mills it is the flowers which keep us young and happy, which bring us joy, pleasure and contentment.

GUSTAVE POEHLMANN'S PRIZE PARTY AT MORTON GROVE MASQUERADE BALL.

Who are the Happy Children?

Massachusett Agricultural College.

Under the guidance of Prof. A. H. Nehrling, 14 of the floricultural students at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, including nine of the 10 weeks men, took a three days' instruction trip to Boston and vicinity last week. The first day included visits to three prominent growers at Framingham, Mass., and to the Waban Rose Conservatories at Natick, Mass. J. T. Butterworth, the renowned orchid specialist, was the first visited. He has been in business 50 years, and it was with justifiable pride that he exhibited his valuable collection. He is using the oldest commercial greenhouse in Massachusetts, a lean-to which was built in 1848, and he finds it admirably suited to cypripediums. When asked with what he fed these plants, he replied in his characteristic way, "With brains, man, brains; nothing but brains." He emphasized the fact that nothing is thrown away on his place. Calls were next made on S. J. Goddard, past president of the American Carnation Society, and on Wm. Nicholson and his son. These men are carnation growers, especially, but they also raise minor crops. The best mignonette seen on the trip was at the Nicholsons'.

The Waban Rose Conservatories proved to be the most extensive range the students saw. The establishment consists of about 30 houses and comprises 300,000 square feet of glass. It contains the first steam boiler which was put into a greenhouse in this country. It is a Babcock & Wilcox 75 horse-power water-tube boiler, which was installed in 1862. It is no longer used regularly, but is now kept in reserve. This plant contains the first refrigerator for cut-flowers ever built in connection with a greenhouse establishment.

The second day was devoted to the markets, stores, and private estates. A study of the methods of marketing and of the prices was made at the Boston Cooperative Flower Market and at the Boston Flower Exchange. At the latter, which is the largest exchange of its kind in this country, the product of 173 establishments is offered for sale. During the remainder of the morning Penn's, Carbone's, Hoffman's, and Galvin's two stores were visited, where flowers were seen on exhibition and designs and funeral pieces were seen in the process of making. A call was also made at the wholesale store of Henry M. Robinson where such florists' supplies as baskets, wire frames, etc., were seen. The afternoon was spent at Mrs. Brandagee's estate, the Faulkner Farm, and at Larz Anderson's country place, Weld Garden, in Brookline, where the conservatories were inspected, following which the managers, Messrs. Craig and Finlayson respectively, conducted a tour over the estates pointing out the important landscape features.

On the third and last day of the trip, the class went to Wm. Sim's at Cliftondale, where excellent sweet peas and violets were seen, two crops for which this grower is noted. Mr. Sim was the first to erect greenhouses with high sides and to use wide houses for violets. The water for this range is raised by an electric pump from a drilled well 300 feet deep, at a cost of $250 yearly, whereas the cost from the city supply was formerly $1,000. Calls were also made at Thomas Roland's two ranges, one at Revere and one at Nahant. At Revere there were seen three large houss. One was devoted to 15,500 rose plants, another to sweet peas, and the third and newest house, 75x650 feet, though built for roses, was being prepared for open ground cultivation of 10,000 tomato plants. Two two-horse plows were in operation at the time, one, a subsoiler, following in the furrows of the other and incorporating manure. At the Nahant establishment were found the biggest collection of acacias in this country and the famous collection of ericas. The manager, Mr. Ringdahl, pointed with legitimate pride to the Erica melanthera which won the gold medal at Boston and New York and also a $100 prize. Here were houses devoted to excellent cyclamens, ramblers, and other plants. One house contained an array of 40,000 cuttings of Glory of Cincinnati begonia. But most interesting were the ericas and acacias.

Bridal Bouquet.
By S. Kramer, Passaic, N. J.

One of the most impressive features of this valuable excursion for the students was the warm reception afforded by the different masters of floriculture. In every case attention was cheerfully given to the invading horde and the magnanimous spirit of these men, who by their success in their honorable calling commanded the respect of the prospective florist, was much appreciated by the entire class.

EXPOSITION OPENING STIMULATES TRADE.

The event that everybody has been looking forward to for the last two years has at last come to pass. The exposition opened February 20 in a blaze of glory, and it is a credit to the florists and nurserymen of this city to be able to say that they have contributed in no small degree to the beautiful finish that now attends the grounds and buildings. The leading floral establishments vied with each other in their holiday dress on this occasion. Many of the prominent leaders of the trade in the city and vicinity were allotted places of honor by the committee in charge. The opening of this huge exposition has stimulated trade during the past week greatly. A great number of social events that otherwise would not have occurred have moved large quantities of seasonable stock. Roses are the leaders just now and with a short supply. Up north, the wholesaler who has good stock, need not seek a market. Mrs. Chas. Russell, one of the most popular roses in this city, is in short supply, and readily brings $3 per dozen. American Beauties of first grade are also called for, and the supply is none too plentiful. Killarney, Maryland, Richmond and Mrs. Ward are all quickly disposed of. There seems to be no let up in the demand from the northwest. The south is also calling for good stock. Carnations are still bringing very good prices. Most of the leading growers seem to be off crop and this is the cause of the steady maintenance of the high prices. The immediate prospects for a large supply, owing to the very inclement weather, are not encouraging. Prices range about the same as last reported. There are myriads of violets. The wet weather has made them rather devoid of odor, but it does not seem to stop them from blooming. The street fakirs offer them at the lowest possible prices. There are still large quantities of freesias coming in and prices have taken quite a slump. Lily of the valley is in fairly good supply, with prices steady. There are plenty of Easter lilies, but with little or no demand. Sweet peas are still a scarce article, that is, first-class stock.

NOTES.

George C. Roeding, of the Fancher Creek Nurseries, some time ago suggested to the exposition commissioners the advisability of placing a quantity of specimen orange trees in the nave of the Ferry building to greet our Eastern brethren upon their arrival in this city. His plan has been taken up with enthusiasm and plans are being made to remove to this building some of the finest specimens of the southland. They will all be in fruit and are to be in very large tubs. Mr. Roeding, while not a resident of this city, was born here and always takes the liveliest interest in anything that will add to the beauty of the city of his birth.

Your correspondent ventures to predict that one of the most interesting exhibits to be found in the Palace of Horticulture will be that of the MacRorie-McLaren Co. of this city. They have secured a very large area and have a large force of men working on what is to be one of the attractions of the building. The exhibit is to be devoted principally to tropical plants. Over 1,800 plants of cattleyas are being used, besides quantities of phalænopsis, dicksonias, etc. When completed it will reflect great credit on this local firm.

The annual installation of officers of the Menlo Park Horticultural Society was held at the last meeting. Over fifty members were in attendance. George Ward acted as installing officer and acquitted himself in his usual happy way. Henry Goertzhain was installed as president; D. W. Slade, vice-president; George Mann, treasurer; Percy Ellings, recording secretary; Arthur Bearsby, financial secretary, and Thos. Templeton, trustee for the four-year term. Percy Copp, Owen O'Donnell and John Aitken are the ushers for the next year. The society directed the secretary to correspond with the National Association of Gardeners, which will meet in this city in August, and ascertain if it would be agreeable to them to have this society do its mite towards entertaining them this summer on the occasion of their visit to this coast. After the business meeting was over the members proceeded to enjoy a very delightful smoker and entertainment, which the committee in charge had provided. There were songs and speeches and dances until the morning hours called the members from what will be remembered as a happy evening.

Frank G. Cuthbertson, secretary of the American Sweet Pea Society, is a very busy man these days, perfecting the arrangements for the show at the Palace of Horticulture, June 4. Through his energetic efforts he has interested a very large number of florists and gardeners to grow stock for the show, and from present indications the competition promises to be very keen.

The continual rainy weather which this locality has been visited with this season has made outdoor planting very backward. Most nurserymen and florists report little, if any, demand up to the present time, compared with other years. They are all expecting the weather to clear shortly, and when it does, planting should move by leaps and bounds.

If ever the violet got a boost, it received it Thursday, February 25, which was San Mateo County day at the exposition. It was planned to give every visitor to the San Mateo County exhibit one large bunch of violets, and the entire crop of the country's leading growers was contracted for that day.

John A. Carbone, of Berkeley, still continues to send large quantities of orchids of all varieties to this market. He reports that his daily cut is cleaned up readily, owing to the increased social activities happening in this city at present.

The plans for the convention garden of the Society of American Florists will shortly assume definite shape. The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society is busy, through its committee, perfecting plans.

Percy Ellings, superintendent of the Lynch Nursery Company, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his infant son, which occurred last week.

GOOD DEMAND THE RULE.

After a week of spring-like weather, it has again turned colder. Flowers have become more plentiful, with the demand steady; Easter lilies are arriving in increased numbers, and all indications point to a good supply for Easter. Callas, too, are quite plentiful, but have had an excellent call, which has kept the market cleaned up. Bulbous stock, as is usual at this time of the year, is quite plentiful and will remain so for some time. Carnations have cleaned up daily. Roses are more plentiful, but find a good market. There is an abundance of sweet peas arriving, the better grades being in good demand. Orchids are scarcer now than for some time, while violets and lily of the valley are equal to the demand.

SPRING FLOWER SHOW.

The spring flower show of the Cleveland Florists' Club was held in the assembly room of the Hollenden hotel, Monday, March 1. The exhibits were equal in quality to those of any previous spring show of the society, and were much admired by both the trade and the general public. Among the exhibits the following were noted:

The Naumann Co. showed several pots of well grown hyacinths and primulas.

S. N. Pentecost displayed pots of excellent hydrangeas; also vases of Ajax princeps and Golden Spur.

The Brookline Floral Co.'s display included vases of choice tulips and carnations.

The Smith & Fetters Co. featured a basket of white snapdragons, with maiden-hair fern and Crimson Queen roses. A huge bow of white lace chiffon over red silk ribbon added much to the attractiveness of the arrangement.

The Carl Hagenberger Co., Painesville, O., had an excellent showing, included in which were genistas in pots, a vase of Carnation Gorgeous, and an excellent showing of sweet peas and violets.

Hart Bros.' exhibit of rhododendrons attracted much attention.

At the James Eadie Co.'s exhibit a cradle, with doll and flowers, was a feature that called forth pleasing comment. Boxes of well-grown La Reine tulips, Narcissus poeticus, Golden Spur daffodils and Ajax princeps were also noteworthy.

The Pompeiian Art Ware Co., Brooklyn, N. Y., had an exhibit of baskets.

The Cleveland Florists' Exchange showed vases of Killarney roses, both pink and white, of excellent quality. Vases of white and pink carnations, grown by Claude Tyler, North Olmstead, O., were noted in this well arranged exhibit.

Spring flowers, including tulips, daffodils, pussy willows, etc., arranged in a beautiful basket effect, was a pleasing feature that attracted attention to Knoble Bros.' display.

The Jones & Russell Co. had a Dresden nosegay in a frame that was both novel and artistic.

J. T. BUTTERWORTH, FRAMINGHAM, MASSACHUSETTS
And the Oldest Commercial Greenhouse in the State.

W. A. Calhoun displayed violets and maiden-hair fern in pleasing arrangement.

J. M. Gasser Co.'s retail store was represented by a centerpiece containing white lilac, ferns and cherries as a feature.

Kirchner's, of Quincy street, featured cinerarias in pots.

The Anna Dean Farm, Barberton, O., exhibited a collection of orchids.

The McCallum Co., Inc., featured double violets in vases.

The Cleveland Cut Flower Co. presented an excellent line of display of snapdragons, tulips, carnations and calendulas; also a vase of mixed roses.

A. M. Albrecht exhibited his mystery plant, Choryzenia cordata. This plant has been on display in his window for a week, with the offer of a box of flowers free to anyone guessing the correct name. No one has been successful in guessing the name correctly as yet.

Charles Henry Fox, of Philadelphia, Pa., delivered an address, his subject being "Advertising for Mother's Day and Other Holidays."

NOTES.

Gas drillers on the J. M. Gasser Co.'s property, at Rocky River, Ohio, have struck a gas well that produces about 5,400,000 feet of gas per day. Contracts for the drilling of four more wells have already been let, and will be started at once. New boilers and piping for gas lines are under way and will be hurried to completion, reports F. C. Bartels. Quite a saving in fuel bills will be the result.

W. Q. Potter, of the McCallum Co., has joined the "Million in 1920 Club" of Cleveland. Cards announcing the arrival of Fay Louise Potter, Tuesday, February 23, are out. Hearty congratulations.

Visitors: Julius Dilhoff, representing Schloss Bros., New York; Charles Henry Fox, Philadelphia, Pa., en route to Chicago and Detroit, Mich.

San Diego, Calif.

The visitor to the San Diego exposition finds much of interest in floriculture, the management of the exposition having specialized on this feature, with the result that days may be spent studying the plants and flowers that attract attention at every turn. Conspicuous at the entrance, especially from the fact that they have been in their present location less than three years, are the groups of giant phoenix, all splendid specimens, while near at hand are Acacias floribunda and Baileyana, which are fast becoming a mass of golden bloom, and appeal strongly to the lover of these California shrubs. Further on, one passes successively masses of Abelia rupestris at present autumnal tinted, bottle brushes in variety, Leptospermum lævigatum, Escallonia alba, Grevillea Thelemanniana, Cassia tomentosa and Tecoma Capensis, all effectively arranged, according to the California Garden. The "Prado," the principal thoroughfare of the exhibit buildings, is bordered with Acacia melanoxylon, while the shaded arcades leading to the buildings support Bignonia venusta in full bloom, alternating with terra cotta bougainvilleas, while sub-tropical groups, such as phoenix canariensis, Cocos plumosa, arranged with dracaenas, eucalyptus and acacias, hold position at the corners of the buildings. At other points about the grounds are noteworthy groups of specimen plants, among them being Gunneras, Musa ensete, Sterculias, Hibuscus mutabilis and Derringea, among many others.

The aquatics at the entrance to the Botanical building are worthy of mention. Lilies and lotus, hibernating at present, promise well for the approaching warmer months. Water hyacinths, water poppies, parrot feather, thalias, arrowhead, water irises, and other aquatics make up the formal pool. Inside the Botanical building are seen azaleas, primulas, streptocarpus and saintpaulias, now all at their best, while crotons, anthuriums and philadendrons add to a display that attracts much attention.

The San Diego Floral Association will hold its first show of bulbous flowers March 19-21. This will be followed a little later by a spring rose show. Some interesting special features are being planted for each event.

Cincinnati.

TRADE CONTINUES SATISFACTORY.

Last week's business, taken as a whole, was good. The mid-week was dull, but the first days were good, while the closing days were very good and effected some substantial clearances. Prices realized were fair. Roses are in a better supply than they were, and they will meet with an active demand. The Killarneys and Richmonds are of a very fine quality. American Beauty cuts are somewhat larger than they were, and the supply of this flower is getting back to a normal one. Carnations, though more plentiful than they have been, at times run short of actual needs. Easter lilies are plentiful. The calla cut is large, while the supply of rubrums will easily take care of all present requests. Tulips, jonquils, daffodils and Dutch hyacinths have a fair market. Sweet peas are in a very large supply, and the offerings include many choice blooms. Other offerings include lily of the valley, single violets, double violets, freesias, mignonette, forget-me-nots and primroses. The supply of greens is fully adequate for present requirements.

NOTES.

Chas. Jones, of the Walnut Hills Floral Bazaar, having returned from Martinsville, Ind., is again at his desk.

C. E. Critchell went to Chicago the first of this week to attend to committee business for the S. A. F.

The florists' club's regular meeting will be held Monday evening, March 8, at Hotel Gibson.

Last week Julius Baer used rubrum lilies in a very effective manner in window decorations.

C. E. Critchell has been having some fancy Butterfly sweet peas. H.

Providence, R. I.

SALES IN PACE WITH INCREASED SUPPLY.

We have had some days of clear skies and higher temperature, and the result has been a largely increased output of flowers, but sales have improved and, while business has not been what might be termed active, the clean up on the whole has been quite good—better, in fact, than any one could have expected. Roses are coming in very plentiful just now, and carnations are filling the market. The quality is splendid, but with large quantities of burst flowers. Particularly fine are Matchless, Pink Delight, White Wonder, Beacon, and Benora, while Mrs. Ward and Philadelphia are also good. Violets are very plentiful, with the prices way down. Yellow marguerites are plentiful, but have very little demand. Sweet peas, especially Spencers, sell very well. There is a good supply of all bulbous stock and it sells very well. Freesias are in good supply, but are having very little call. There is a good supply of callas, lilies, and lily of the valley. Cattleyas move somewhat slowly, so do gardenias. Floral work still holds up well.

NOTES.

Westminster Greenhouses are cutting fine Victoria daffodils now.

William Cohen, formerly with Smith, the florist, is now with Hoffman, of Pawtucket.

OBITUARY.

Samuel Y. Haines.

Samuel Y. Haines, well known in the seed trade, died at Rockford, Ill., February 27, age 63 years. Mr. Haines had been suffering somewhat from rheumatism, but was at his desk as usual up to the previous evening. Myocarditis was given as the cause of death. Mr. Haines was a native of Tennessee and for the past seven years was identified with the advertising department of H. W. Buckbee, Rockford, Ill. During the early eighties he started in the seed business in Philadelphia under the name of S. Y. Haines & Co. This venture, however, proved unsuccessful, and in 1882 he entered the service of W. Atlee Burpee, of that city, remaining about five years. He then re-established the firm of S. Y. Haines & Company, having as a partner Harry Faust, a son of David Faust, who was for years president of the Union National bank, and this venture also proved unsuccessful, in fact, only lasting a few months, and the concern was succeeded by I. V. Faust, who was Mr. Faust's sister, Mr. Haines withdrawing. He then took a position with Northrup, Braslin, Goodwin & Co., Minneapolis, Minn., and was later with Vaughan's Seed Store, New York. Mr. Haines then established a mail order business under the name of his sister-in-law, Miss C. H. Lippincott, at Minneapolis, Minn., building up a flourishing trade in flower and vegetable seeds. After this firm dissolved he again started business on his own account under the name of his second wife, Charlotte M. Haines, at Minneapolis, and this was continued through recent years in conjunction with his advertising work. Previous to entering the establishment of H. W. Buckbee he was two years in charge of the catalogue department of L. L. May & Co., St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. Haines had a clever head and eye for designing horticultural advertising as well as a facile pen for trade pulling descriptions. Not all of his schemes were winners, but he was very prolific with suggestions and supplied such a wide range of sketches of more than average quality that a keen-sighted employer might always find some promising ideas. He was always optimistic and cheerful, bearing his occasional reverses with a brave spirit. When in funds he was the true southern gentleman in liberality.

Mrs. Haines died about two years ago, and one daughter, Ruth, about nine years of age, survives. H. W. Buckbee and other friends accompanied the remains to Rives Junction, Mich., where the funeral was held March 2, with interment in the family lot.

Mrs. Frederick Kanst.

Mrs. Eliza Kanst, wife of Frederick Kanst, well known head gardener of the South Park System, Chicago, and mother of Edwin A. Kanst, superintendent of Lincoln park, the same city, died at her home, 6658 Kimbark avenue, after an illness of several weeks' duration, February 19, age 68 years. The funeral, February 21, notwithstanding the inclement weather, was well attended and the large display of beautiful floral tokens showed the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends. The other surviving children are Fred L. Kanst, Chicago, and Mrs. Stelle Gurney, St. Louis, Mo. Interment was at Oakwoods cemetery.

FALL has been suggested as the proper season for the fifth national flower show in 1918.

WE are in receipt of the preliminary plant schedule of the Fourth National Flower Show, to be held at Philadelphia, Pa., March 25 to April 2, 1916, inclusive, offering $15,000 in premiums. Copies may be had on application to John Young, secretary, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

"Back to the Land."

TREASURY DEPT. RULING ON INCOME TAX.

"A person cultivating or operating a farm for recreation or pleasure, on a basis other than the recognized principles of commercial farming, the result of which is a continual loss from year to year, is not regarded as a farmer."

THE final schedule is out for the flower show to be held at the Grand Central Palace, New York, March 17-23. Copies may be had on application to John Young, 53 West Twenty-eighth street, New York.

F. EDWARD GRAY, the well-known California horticulturist, writes from San Diego in a private letter: "Do not neglect coming to the San Diego exposition. It is the most picturesque thing on earth and will appeal to you. I have planted out the grounds of the seven southern counties, only a small section of the general display."

THE meetings of the executive committee of the Society of American Florists, National Flower Show Committee and Florists' Telegraph Delivery, at Chicago, this week, brought together many prominent men representing various sections of the country, and it was the prevailing opinion that much good has been accomplished for the trade in general.

Minnesota State Florists' Association.

Plans are being made for the next meeting of the Minnesota State Florists' Association, which will be held in St. Paul April 13. Afternoon and evening sessions will be held, and, if arrangements can be made, the amateurs of the Garden Club will share in the program. A floral exhibit will be held. One hundred experts from Minnesota and northwestern Wisconsin are expected to attend. T.

Ladies' Society of American Florists.

Wishing to get the opinion of the members of the above society as to the number who expect to attend the San Francisco convention this year; also to ascertain whether the society's money should be expended for educational purposes or for the annual reception, the secretary, at her own expense, mailed about 300 post cards. The number returned was 160 and the opinions were divided as follows: Educational, 89; reception, 36; California, 27; no opinion, 8.

MRS. CHAS. H. MAYNARD, Sec'y.

American Rose Society.

The sixteenth annual exhibition of the American Rose Society will be held March 18-21, in conjunction with the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. The fine hall of the society is the place of meeting. There promises to be some choice exhibits. Massachusetts has a local pride in this work, and local people are doing their best to make a fine showing. By noon time, Thursday, March 18, the pots and tubs will be staged; the next day, on Friday, the cut blooms.

The schedule committee, Louis J. Reuter, Alexander Montgomery and Thomas Roland, have done good work in fixing prizes; the special prizes are liberal. The final list, except for any additional prizes, is now distributed; the entry blanks are available. Secretary Rich of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society is giving all the aid and attention in his power to serve exhibitors. The manager of the American Rose Society's exhibits is Eber Holmes, of Montrose, Mass., and the manager of a rose show always has a job ahead, and so far the men who have acted in this capacity have made all things satisfactory to exhibitors and the interested public. Mr. Holmes will do that.

The annual membership dues are being paid well. There is a free ticket for all members. The election of officers will be an important event; also deciding where the show shall go next year. Philadelphia has spoken for it.

BENJAMIN HAMMOND, Sec'y.

Florists' Telegraph Delivery.

A meeting of the board of directors of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery was held at the Hotel LaSalle, Chicago, Wednesday forenoon, March 3, there being in attendance President Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; Vice-President W. F. Gude, Washington; Treasurer, W. L. Rock, Kansas City, Mo.; Secretary Albert Pochelon, Detroit, Mich.; Philip Breitmeyer, Detroit, Mich.; Ernst Wienhoeber, Chicago; George Asmus, Chicago; John Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; G. E. M. Stumpp, New York. Routine business was transacted and it was decided to employ John Young, secretary of the Society of American Florists, as a representative of the association on a business trip through the west. The visitors expressed much appreciation of their entertainment by the local trade and the members of the board felt much good had been accomplished by their meeting so many of their prominent fellow craftsmen.

Gladiolus Bulb Diseases.

ED. AMERICAN FLORIST:

Some of my gladiolus bulbs are diseased, the trouble showing as brown spots on the bulbs. Can you suggest a remedy J. W. F.

This form of scab or dry rot is apparently caused by a fungus, Myriococeus fusan, that infects most varieties of gladiolus and allied bulbs, such as watsonias, antholyzas, ixias and freesias, where they are grown in soil too rich and moist. The best practical method of controlling it is to plant in fresh and not over rich soil, using chemical potato fertilizer rather than stable manure. Like the potato and beet scabs, it is worse on rich alkaline soils. Ordinary corn ground with a dressing of potato fertilizer containing a good percentage of acid phosphate will be suitable.

The diseased bulbs may be treated before planting by soaking them 12 minutes in a solution of copper sulphate, 1 oz. to 10 gallons warm water; bichloride of mercury, ¾ oz. to 10 gallons water; or commercial formalin, 4 oz. to 15 gallons water. Either solution is quite effective. The husks or skins should be removed from the bulbs before treatment, and they should be planted as soon as fairly well dried off. The scabs do not usually prevent the corms from growing unless they are so numerous as to destroy the rooting surface.

In the case of rare varieties the scabs may be cut out, going well into the sound flesh, treated with one of the above antiseptic solutions and rolled in powdered sulphur before planting.

As a rule never plant gladiolus bulbs successive years on the same soil. W. VAN FLEET.

MARKET SUFFERS SETBACK.

We are sorry to state that business for the past week has taken quite a setback, compared with the briskness that had prevailed until then; but, since Washington's birthday there has been very little activity in the local market. There has been plenty of sunshine ever since the middle of February, but the weather has turned much cooler in the last few days. There is an abundance of everything here excepting carnations, which are in fair supply, but fall far short of the demand. Bulbous stock of all kinds is suffering from the effect of a glut, and prices on this stock have dropped to a very low point, especially on tulips. Sweet peas and violets are selling quite well. Some excellent blooms of Spencer peas are offered by local dealers at very reasonable prices. Practically all of the sweet peas used in Pittsburgh are grown by eastern growers. Freesia is one article that positively will not sell this year, and cannot be moved at any price. The supply of American Beauty roses is getting better, it seems. Tea roses are also doing very well. With the return of cold weather we may hope for better business in the near future.

NOTES.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co. has had a very elaborate painting made of their Bakerstown greenhouses, which is a marvel. Every little detail of the photograph is worked out on the painting, which is attracting much attention.

Both Edward and George McCallum suffered a few days' of sickness the past week, but were able to be around before much time had been lost.

A large attendance is expected at the next florists' club meeting, March 2, when we will hear another of those interesting talks on radium.

Pittsburgh is to have another automobile show, March 13-20, which will undoubtedly call for many large floral settings.

P. S. Randolph & Sons, of Verona, are marketing large lots of white lilac. They are also cutting good sweet peas.

WEATHER UNCERTAIN, BUSINESS GOOD.

Predictions concerning February can safely be made upon two points, viz., a short month and a busy one. When it comes to weather the uncertainty begins—even the ground-hog missed it this year. Most of the month was warm, with much cloudy and rainy weather, and from present indications Kansas and Oklahoma are booked for another record wheat crop. Prospects for spring trade are about as usual, with Easter stock on schedule, and ample supplies of bulbous stock in prospect.

NOTES.

Roy Hanchett has "fired up" his new greenhouse, with a supply of bedding plants, and also vegetable plants for the market gardeners.

St. Valentine day's trade was good and was handled under favorable conditions of weather, prices, quality of stock, etc. The experience of the past two years for St. Valentine day confirms the idea that it is a day worth cultivating.

Visitors: M. Farney, representing M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; George Brackenbury, of Kansas City, Mo.

Lettuce growers are complaining of uncertain market. Much of the crop produced here seeks outlet in Kansas City or St. Louis.

Easter Lilies Stems 3 to 4 feet long; very choice flowers, $10.00 per 100, or $1.50 per dozen.

Roses Very choice quality in all lengths of stem. We especially recommend our Shawyer, as at this time of year it is the finest Pink Rose in the market.

Carnations Our big fancy Red Carnation, the Belle Washburn, at 4c, is the best buy in the market. It is the American Beauty of the Carnation family. Fancy Pink and White Carnations, 3c to 4c, depending on market conditions.

We handle Bruns' Valley, Jurgens' and Cochrane's Tulips, Daffodils, Narcissus and other bulbous flowers, so have the finest stock coming in this market.

STOCK STILL PLENTIFUL.

Stock of all kinds is still plentiful, with the possible exception of fancy American Beauty roses, which command good prices. Roses of all kinds are seen in large supply, and some especially fine stock is now obtainable in Killarney, White Killarney, Sunburst, Ophelia, Mrs. Aaron Ward, Fire flame, Bulgaria, Rhea Reid, Richmond, Milady, Mrs. Chas. Russell and Killarney Queen. Carnations are seen in large quantities everywhere, but are cleaning up well each day at fairly good prices, considering the large supply of other stock that is reaching the market. Some especially fine freesias are obtainable in large quantities now and is having a fairly good call. Sweet peas are more plentiful and are improving in quality each day and are seen featured in many of the window displays in the downtown stores. Violets are in over-supply and are selling at very low prices, which is due to a large extent to the many sweet peas that are now being offered. Lilies and lily of the valley are in good supply and there are more than enough flowers of both arriving to fill all orders. Orchids are in good supply, but gardenias are still on the short side. The supply of tulips, jonquils, Paper White narcissi and gladioli is steadily growing larger, and very choice stock in these lines is now obtainable at very reasonable prices. While stock at present appears to be very plentiful, a few brisk days would find the market pretty well cleaned up and a scarcity in some lines. Everyone is now busy making preparations for Easter, which is rapidly approaching, and some of the dealers report that they have already booked several orders for cut flowers for this occasion.

NOTES.

A. T. Pyfer & Co. is the name of the new wholesale firm that was organized and incorporated on Saturday, February 27, with a capital stock of $5,000. The officers of the new concern are H. E. Philpott, president; V. Bezdek, vice-president; Miss Nettie L. Parker, secretary; A. T. Pyfer, treasurer, and Peter Olsem, chairman of the board of trustees. The new company took over the entire wholesale cut flower business of the Chicago Carnation Co. on March 1 and will conduct its business in the same store in the Atlas building at 30 East Randolph street. A. T. Pyfer says that the new concern will handle the entire output of the Pyfer & Olsem and V. Bezdek ranges at Wilmette, Kirsch Bros.' range at Morton Grove and others. The officers of the new concern need no introduction as they are well and favorably known to the trade in this vicinity and elsewhere, and there is no question but what the A. T Pyfer & Co. will enjoy a successful business from the start.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association is receiving regular shipments of the pretty rose, Fireflame, from the Weiland greenhouses in Evanston. Fancy American Beauty roses are seen in good supply at this store.

CARNATIONS
Beauties-Roses

P. W. Peterson, of the J. D. Thompson Carnation Co., was in the city this week on business connected with the range of 125,000 feet of glass that his firm rented last week from H. N. Higingbotham for five years at a yearly rental of $4,000. Mr. Peterson says the Thompson Co. now has 250,000 feet of their own glass, which is devoted principally to carnations, sweet peas and chrysanthemums. He will have charge of both places, and the entire output will be sold at wholesale direct from the greenhouses as before. Several thousand dollars will be spent to place the newly acquired range in the proper condition as early as possible. There are 400,000 rooted carnation cuttings ready for immediate shipment at the Thompson range now, not to say anything about the chrysanthemum stock, which is advertised. Mr. Peterson says that his firm has acquired all rights to Aviator, the new scarlet seedling carnation, which will be disseminated during the season 1915-1916.

The Raedlein Basket Co. is expecting a large importation of baskets from their large factories in Germany, which is due to arrive here the first of next week. This firm has experienced no difficulty so far in receiving stock from abroad, and will be able to take care of their customers right along. A complete line of Easter baskets is now on display at their Milwaukee avenue store.

Fred Burki, of the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., and family, arrived here from Pittsburgh, Pa., March 1, leaving the same evening for San Francisco, Calif., where several weeks will be spent at the Panama-Pacific exposition. They will also visit the San Diego exposition and the principal cities in the west, either on their way to the coast or on their way home.

The Retail Florists' Association held its regular monthly meeting at the Fort Dearborn Hotel on Monday evening, March 1, when a banquet was given and preliminary steps were taken to incorporate. The papers are now in Springfield and as soon as they are received a meeting of the stockholders will be held, which is likely to be some time this week.

The Paris Floral Shop, now located at 11 East Jackson boulevard, will move into new quarters at 15 East Jackson boulevard in the near future, when the proprietors, Peter Duris and Peter Papes, will change the firm name to the Central Floral Co. This firm has a branch store in the Broadway theater building at Detroit, Mich.

N. J. Wietor of Wietor Bros. says that while business is a little quieter, stock is cleaning up well each day, which is probably due to the fact that many of the larger growers are not cutting very heavily at present. This firm will have a nice large cut of white carnations for St. Patrick's day.

At Peter Reinberg's store the principal offerings are American Beauty and Sunburst roses and fancy sweet peas. Felix Reichling says that the shipping trade is very good and also that his firm is now cutting on an average of 2,500 American Beauty roses per day.

Zech & Mann are having a good call for fancy sweet peas and freesias, which they are handling in quantity. Allie Zech kept things moving at the store this week, while Zech & Mann were attending the Illinois State Florists' Association meeting at Urbana.

J. J. Kral has been very busy the past few weeks buying up all kinds of blooming and foliage plants for the Fleischman Floral Co., at 84 East Jackson boulevard. Mr. Kral has had charge of the plants at the Fleischman store since last Christmas.

Alfred Dietsch says that business so far this year with the A. Dietsch Co. has been very good and that orders for greenhouse materials are continually arriving. The indications are that the season as a whole will be considerably better than last year.

Percy Jones is handling large quantities of seasonable stock, especially choice carnations, which are moving readily. Both the local and shipping trade are holding up well at this busy establishment and promise to continue so.

Chas. W. McKellar says that he has enjoyed the winter on his farm in Niles township as much as he did the summer last year and that so far the trips to and from the store were made by auto.

Hoerber Bros. are handling regular shipments of home grown violets and all bulbous stock in season in addition to their regular line of roses and carnations.

The Frank Floral Co.'s store is directly opposite the Le Moyne building, in which the E. C. Amling Co. and A. L. Randall Co. will soon be located.

J. A. Budlong has never offered as fine a supply of roses at this season of the year as he is right now.

Joseph Ziska & Sons report business as very good in both the supply and wire works departments.

Joe Pollworth, of the Chicago Feed & Fertilizer Co., is calling on the trade in Michigan this week.

The employes at Bassett & Washburn's store had the usual birthday decorations in honor of C. L. Washburn on Saturday, February 27, when Heinze's 57 varieties were artistically arranged on the popular wholesaler's desk with the other trimming that Ed. Enders, Tony Einweck, Joe Einweck, Allan Gerlin and Art Pasternick thought were necessary. The unique decorations attracted much favorable attention. Mr. Washburn received many telegrams and letters from friends from all sections of the country wishing him many happy returns of the day.

Stephen A. Jamieson, formerly of this city, has been selected to act as manager of the Leon C. Warner Co., Warner building, Minneapolis, effective March 15. The company handles a complete line of contractor's equipment, including concrete mixers, hoists, pumps, etc. Mr. Jamieson's association with the Universal Portland Cement Co. here and in Minneapolis has made him a wide acquaintance among cement users throughout the middle west, and his management of the Leon C. Warner Co. should be a valuable addition to their organization.

Wm. Lubliner opened his new store at 36 South Wabash avenue March 2 and is well pleased with the business he has enjoyed since then. The interior of the store is all finished in white and presents a most inviting appearance. Miss Lillian Lubliner will act as cashier and John Madden, formerly with the Ernst Wienhoeber Floral Co., will serve the customers.

Dick Parker is calling on the trade in this vicinity in the interest of Poehlmann Bros. Co. and is booking a large number of nice supply and plant orders every day.

Miss Lottie Sibel is the latest addition to the sales force at the Art Floral Co.'s West Monroe street store.

The E. C. Amling Co. has rented 5,000 feet of floor space on the main floor of the new Le Moyne building at the southwest corner of Lake street and North Wabash avenue for a term of years, and will take possession as early as possible, which will likely be about March 21. New refrigerators will be installed and everything will be up to date, according to John Michelsen, who is anxious to have everything in readiness before the Easter trade sets in.

Poehlmann Bros. Co. is booking a large number of orders for the Hughes shamrock box for St. Patrick's day of the 1915 design, which is a winner. The box is five and one-half inches long, three inches wide and three inches deep. It has a compartment for two 2-inch shamrock plants and an Irish landscape scene is reproduced in the inside cover. In the cut flower department a fine line of stock is now being offered, especially in tulips, orchids, roses and carnations.

A farewell party was given in honor of Richard Salms at the Exchange in Morton Grove, Wednesday evening, February 24, when all the city fathers and a large circle of friends were present. August Poehlmann acted as toastmaster and gave both him and his partner, Guy French, a great send off. Everyone in Morton Grove is sorry to part company with Guy and Dick, but wish them every success in their new undertaking.

Blewitt & Prickett, proprietors of the Des Plaines Floral Co., are now consigning the entire output of their range, consising of 30,000 feet of glass, to Hoerber Bros., the well known local wholesale florists. They grow carnations and miscellaneous cut flowers and the quality of their stock compares favorably with the best that is to be had in this market.

Another surprise party was given in Morton Grove on Saturday evening, February 27, in honor of Guy W. French at his home, and it is needless to add that everyone present had a splendid time. About 40 people were present, including August, John and Adolph Poehlmann and families.

A. L. Vaughan & Co. are showing a large supply of tulips, jonquils, freesias, gladioli and all other bulbous flowers in season. Business continues to be very good at this house with fancy American Beauty roses having the call.

It is rumored that one of the young couples employed in the local market on the second floor of the Atlas building will be married in the near future. Oh, you wedding bells!

Chicago Florists' Club.

The March meeting of the florists' club was held at the Hotel Bismarck, March 1, Vice-President Morton occupying the chair in the absence of President Keimel. This meeting had been advanced several days to afford the members an opportunity of meeting the executive committee of the Society of American Florists, which held its annual spring meeting in Chicago, March 1-2. The routine business was speedily transacted, including the election of Fred Schramm and E. Muret, Park Ridge; Rudolph Ellsworth, Downer's Grove; Chas. Schwake and Milton Alexander, New York; Ernst Knecht, 1335 South Keeler avenue, and Howard R. Votaw, 5201 South Ashland avenue, to membership and the following were nominated for membership: L. Hoeckner, Crystal Lake, Ind.; Fred Ronsley, 106 South Dearborn street, and Gus Swenson, 707 Buckingham place. Guy W. French, for the transportation committee, announced that the Northwestern railroad had been selected for the California trip, and this action was endorsed by the club. It is understood that President Welch, of the Society of American Florists, has appointed a committee of the na-

Vice-President Morton here called upon E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., to take the chair and introduce the various distinguished visitors. Mr. Hill officiated in his usual happy style and the representatives of the various national organizations, American Rose Society, American Carnation Society, Florists' Telegraph Delivery and National Flower Show Committee, as well as the Society of American Florists, told of the good work which is in progress for the welfare of the trade at large, the speakers, including John Young, New York; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass.; A. Farenwald, Roslyn, Pa.; Irwin Bertermann, Indianapolis, Ind.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Wm. R. Nicholson, Framingham, Mass.; Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis, Minn.; August Poehlmann, Morton Grove; R. C. Kerr, Houston, Tex.; Wm. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.; C. E. Critchell, Cincinnati, O.; George Burton, Philadelphia, Pa.; P. J. Foley, Chicago; W. P. Craig, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.; H. H. Bartsch, Boston, Mass., and George Asmus, Chicago. There were many inquiries for Daniel MacRorie, San Francisco, Calif., vice-president of the Society of American Florists; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn., president of the American Rose Society, and Chas. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., of the National Flower Show Committee, and frequent expressions of regret when it was learned that they were unavoidably absent.
